BOMBS EXPLODE AT CHURCHES ON PIUS' BIRTHDAY

Priests Are Slapped, Vatican Charges.

ROME, May 31.—(AP)—The breach between the Italian government and the Vatican widened tonight with the receipt of information that four bombs were exploded near Catholic churches at Bologna, with Premier Mussolini continuing to close Catholic Action clubs throughout Italy and with Pope Pius XI. denouncing Fascist education as "given to hate, to irreverence and to violence."

A bersagliere of the carabinieri patrol was killed by the bomb at Bologna and another soldier and a civilian were injured.

Police tonight forbade the usual processions in honor of the patron saint of a church in the southeast section of Rome. Church authorities said no reason was offered for the restriction and that the procession was purely a religious ceremony not connected with the Catholic Action society.

Charges Priests Are Slapped.

In an address before a group of ecclesiastics at the Vatican, the pope announced he would appeal to the Vatican treaty and the concordat as a basis for a solution of the difficulties. He said the Catholic Action society "had been and is most precious" to him.

The papal newspaper organ, Osservatore Romano, today published a list, two and one-half columns long, of alleged anti-clerical incidents. The list included the invasion of monasteries, slapping of priests, an attempt to burn the bishop's palace at Verona, the trampling of the pope's portrait, and the sacking of Catholic clubs.

The bishop's palace at Verona was set afire, the paper said, by a group of men who drove up in an automobile, sprinkled gasoline on the great doors, and set them ablaze.

Furniture Tossed Into Canals.

It is also charged that two monasteries were invaded at Civita Vecchia Thursday and that the door of the episcopal palace there was forced open by axes, who slapped the face of the vice general, Msgr. Compagnucci. At Cuneo, it said, a parish priest's face was slapped and it charged that Fascists battered three Catholic clubs at Venice and trampled portraits of the pope and King Victor Emmanuel, leaving Mussolini's untouched.

Tables, chairs, and paintings were tossed out of the windows into the canals, it was charged, and at the Turciate club it was alleged 100 Fascists operated under the eyes of the militia, who made no move to restrain them.

The paper said posters were put up in Rome reading: "Death to the pope, to the priests, and to the Catholic Action!"

See Slight Hope for Peace.

Close as a complete rupture between the government and the Vatican seemed, however, it was believed that the situation was still not without some hope of settlement.

Although it was learned on good authority that the Vatican had been notified that Premier Mussolini had decided definitely to dissolve the Catholic Action society throughout Italy, government officials said the dissolution could still be avoided.

The premier's order was being carried out for the meantime, however, and it was estimated that by tomorrow night 15,000 of the Catholic Action clubs would have been closed by the police, affecting 500,000 members of the organization.

U. S. Envoy May Protest.

There was also an indication tonight that the American ambassador, John W. Garrett, could be drawn into the affair.

Papal Count Edward Hearn, head of the Knights of Columbus, announced today he would ask Ambassador Garrett immediately to file a protest with Foreign Minister Dino Grandi against the closing of playgrounds and clubhouses of the Knights of Columbus.

Mr. Hearn was said to be indignant when the San Lorenzo playground was closed yesterday and he ordered the remaining centers to be immediately locked up. He said he would tell Ambassador Garrett that the Knights of Columbus feel the play-

MERGER FORMS BIGGEST AIR LINE CHAIN IN WORLD

Headquarters to Be in Chicago.

Consolidation of management, operation, traffic, and sales of four eastern and western air lines, flying approximately 12,000,000 miles annually, was announced yesterday by F. B. Rentschler, president of the United Aircraft and Transportation company. The four transport units will be designated as divisions of the United Air Lines and will maintain general offices in Chicago.

P. G. JOHNSON.

The air lines involved, forming the backbone of the country's airplane service, are the National Air Transport, operating from New York to Chicago and Chicago to Dallas; the Boeing Air Transport, operating from Chicago to San Francisco; the Pacific Air Transport, operating from Seattle to San Diego, and the Varney Air Lines, operating from Salt Lake City to Seattle and the Pacific northwest.

Largest Air Transport Group.

The combination becomes the largest air transport service in the world. On the compilation of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce the United Air Lines' present daily travel is 32,300 miles, or approximately 12,000 miles a day more than any air transport group in this country. This is about 60 per cent more than any American air transport group and substantially greater than that of the largest European operator.

The four systems give the United Air Lines a through 28 hour service from coast to coast in addition to services linking the great lakes area to the southwest and the Pacific northwest to the Rocky mountain region. Establishment of the central offices of the company in Chicago further strengthens the city's place as an air center and may bring the production branches of the company here.

Will Head New System.

P. G. Johnson, president of the Boeing companies, who was recently made president of the National Air Transport and the Varney Air Lines, is to be president of the new company, Mr. Rentschler said. Mr. Johnson left Chicago yesterday after arranging the details of consolidation.

"Chicago has already established itself as the railroad center, and is now well on the way to secure an even greater reputation as an air center," Mr. Johnson said. "When the consolidation was approached a survey was made to determine the most advantageous location for our general offices. Chicago was selected as the logical city both for its central location and its facilities.

"The bringing of the general offices here by the United Air Lines shows our confidence in the city and more specifically in its future in aviation. Chicago's future growth will be paced by the development of aviation."

Linked with Manufacturers.

The United Air Lines is affiliated with the Boeing, Northrop, Stearman, Sikorsky and Chance Vought airplane companies; the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft company, engine manufacturers, and other divisions of the United Aircraft and Transport corporation.

The company's planes, in traveling 32,300 miles a day, cover 6,110 miles of airways and carry approximately 60 per cent of the nation's air mail, and 0 per cent of the air mail on one route, New York-Chicago-California.

The lines operate a fleet of 120 airplanes, including 32 Hornet and Wasp powered tri-motor passenger transports which are used in the expanded passenger service recently inaugurated on the New York-San Francisco, the Chicago-Dallas, and Seattle-San Diego lines.

Britain Builds Giant Plane.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 31.—Great Britain is to have a new giant air liner. A 40 passenger luxury plane is being built for the air ministry, which, it is hoped, will eclipse the German flying boat DO-X in performance and comfort.

The plane, known as the Vickers super-marine Rolls Royce Buzzard, is expected to fly 1,000 miles with 40 passengers as well as a full crew of seven, according to Brig. Gen. Caddell, one of the constructors. Without passengers, it is claimed the Buzzard will easily carry enough gas to cross the Atlantic.

The air liner will have six engines of 1,000 horse power each. The maximum speed will be 145 miles an hour with a cruising speed of 120.

RED HILL COMPLETES NIAGARA RAPIDS RIDE —SAYS 'NEVER AGAIN'

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 31.—(AP)—William [Red] Hill today completed his trip through the lower rapids of the Niagara river from Niagara Falls to Queenston, interrupted yesterday at the whirlpool, from which he was fished out after drifting for three hours.

Only a few people knew he was to make the trip this morning because Red, seeking to cash in on his exploit, had made a deal with a motion picture concern, but the movie cameraman failed to appear. Finally Red, getting impatient, climbed into the barrel and was shoved off.

Just after it was cut loose the barrel struck a rock, was sucked under, and then was shot almost completely out of the water. The rest of the trip was uneventful, but Red said he was well shaken up.

The rapids were negotiated in four or five minutes, but the barrel was not pulled out at Queenston dock for an hour because the currents and cross-currents were so strong. First one rowboat, then another, tried, and finally a power boat was called.

Hill declared he never again would risk his life in the unprofitable pastime of giving unappreciative people a thrill.

Happy Little Orphans Taken to See the Cops

The gleeful shouts of 35 young children from the Bohemian orphanage, 5061 North Crawford avenue, echoed across the highways northwest of Chicago yesterday as they enjoyed a Sunday afternoon outing with their superintendent, James J. Kilberger. Mr. Kilberger was both chaperon and driver for the youngsters in a picnic truck.

The afternoon passed quickly for the happy youngsters and before they realized it they approached the intersection of Milwaukee avenue and Waukegan road in Niles on their way home.

The Voice of the Law.

Mr. Kilberger slowed down for the intersection, and slipped on across Waukegan road in second gear without coming to a stop. There is where he made a mistake, although he prolonged the afternoon's outing and provided an unscheduled visit to a police station, a novel experience for the orphans.

When Mr. Kilberger crossed the stop street Sergt. Warner Guenther of the Niles police called on him to halt.

"What do you mean by endangering the lives of all those children by scooting across this intersection without stopping?" Sergt. Guenther said he said. "Well, I slowed down and when I saw no traffic coming in kept on going," Kilberger said he said.

It seems one remark led to another and before long the youngsters, Kilberger, and Guenther arrived at the Niles police station. There the children played around in the truck while the altercation was resumed inside the station.

Tells of Protests.

"When I protested," Kilberger said, "Sergt. Guenther and Chief Peter Oszakowski got rough with me. I told them they had better treat me decently or I would have Mayor Cermak exert his influence. Then they batted my head against the wall, shoved me down into a cell, and wouldn't let me call any one to arrange for a bond."

"Kilberger's story is all wet," Chief Oszakowski said. "When Sergt. Guenther stopped him he became insulting, refused to move, and threatened to have the sergeant kicked off my force. When we got him to the station he made a break to get out. After we grabbed him he hauled off and hit both the sergeant and me. So I decided we had better lock him up until he could regain his temper. When he darted out of the station he bumped his head on a stairway."

Rebuttal and Surrebuttal.

"Finally," Kilberger asserted in telling his side of the story, "the policemen called my orphanage and notified my secretary, Miss Violet Beck, who came out and put up a $100 cash bond for me. They had me charged with disregarding a stop sign, resisting arrest, and disorderly conduct."

"I never saw such a man as Kilberger," Chief Oszakowski said. "He went wild when he found that he couldn't order us around like he does his orphans. We ought to have charged him with blocking traffic, too."

"The chief is talking through his hat," was the rejoinder of Kilberger. "I'm going to tell the facts to State's Attorney Swanson tomorrow."

"Kilberger's story is bunk," said the chief in surrejoinder. "I'm going to tell my story to Judge Falk next Saturday and Kilberger will have to be there to listen."

And there the issue is joined.

MRS. DEAN HAS HER OWN THEORY ABOUT MR. DEAN

The elements of the mystery of Mr. Charles Dean were these:

At 7 p. m. yesterday the Willow Springs station of the county highway police was informed that a murder had been committed at 88th avenue and 111th street and that the body could be found behind a refreshment stand there.

The police went to the scene. There they found Mr. Dean, who is 40 years old, a printer and real estate man, and lives at 2414 West 63d street. He was alive, but comatose, and there was a handkerchief stuffed into his mouth, which had been taped shut. His hands were, after a fashion, tied behind his back. Some small boys declared they had seen Mr. Dean tumble out of his automobile.

Elements of the solution of the great Dean mystery were:

Mr. Dean had been missing from home for two weeks. His wife, Mrs. Jennie Dean, said that he had been missing last year for a week and was found in Tiffin, O., when he wired for money. He had only 40 cents left when he was found yesterday. Mrs. Dean opined that Mr. Dean was only establishing an alibi for absence and the Willow Springs police were convinced that if he had been tortured into his comatose condition it was by the demon rum.

Uses Bandit as Shield; Battles Bandits' Pals

Three young bandits were captured after a gun battle early this morning when a detective squad trapped them in a soft drink parlor at 2459 North Crawford avenue. The arrest was marked by the bravery of Policeman Casimer Jarka, who held one of the gunmen in front of him as a shield and exchanged shots at close quarters with his companions.

It was about 1 o'clock when the trio entered. They lined John Windsor, the proprietor; Miss Marie Mueller, 22 years old, of 1623 North Troy street, and Edward Niemiec, 2516 North Mozart street, her escort, against a wall. They took $12 from Miss Mueller, $15 from Niemiec, and about $70 from the till. Windsor at this moment leaped upon one of the men, and during the scuffle Miss Mueller slipped out the door.

Tells Police of Holdup.

The detective squad, comprised of Jarka, John Ogorek, Ralph Stepp, and Frank Denson, was passing at the time and noticed her.

She told them of the robbery and the detectives deployed themselves, Stepp at the rear, Ogorek and Denson on either side, and Jarka at the front. Jarka allowed his mates time to post themselves and entered. As he stepped through the doorway he seized John Palvo, 19 years old, of 1028 North Damen avenue, one of the bandits.

Jarka clapsed him in such a manner as to shield his own body and called on the other robbers to surrender. Both leveled their revolvers at him but refrained from shooting because of the certainjy of striking their comrade.

Warns They Will Kill Pal.

The detective called a momentary truce. "You can't kill me without killing your pal," he called. His argument was answered with a volley of shots. He returned the fire. Palvo's accomplices darted into the rear when their shots failed to strike and smashed a barred window with their guns. They were sent back into the room when Stepp, on watch, let go four bullets through the window.

The men surrendered. They were taken to the Shakespeare avenue station, where they identified themselves as Joe Prestini, 20 years old, of 1039 Polk street, and Sam Nanno, 19, of 928 Polk street. They will be investigated, along with Palvo, for other crimes. None was shot.

PLOT TO POISON PRES. WILSON IN PARIS "BARED"

New York, May 31.—(AP)—The story of an alleged plot to poison Woodrow Wilson while he was attending the Paris peace conference is contained in the book "America's Black Chamber," by Maj. Herbert O. Yardley, in charge of the American cryptographic bureau during the world war.

The author declared a decoded message which fell into his hands while serving with the peace commission in Paris disclosed the plot.

"The reader may well appreciate the shock," Maj. Yardley writes, "I received as I deciphered a telegram which reported an entente plot to assassinate President Wilson either by administering a slow poison or by giving him the influenza in ice. Our informant, in whom we had the greatest confidence, begged the authorities to inform the President.

"I have no way of knowing whether this plot had any truth in fact, and, if it had, whether it succeeded. But there are these undeniable facts: President Wilson's first sign of illness occurred while he was in Paris and he was soon to die a lingering death."

The "black chamber" functioned secretly and between 1917 and 1929 deciphered more than 45,000 such messages.

Make Mush of Poisoned Meal; One Dead, One Ill

Times had been hard with Charles Gates, 45 years old, and William Mulvaney, 42 years old, both of 208 North Halsted street. They hadn't been eating regularly. But yesterday Gates invited Mulvaney to his room for a breakfast of mush. They both ate. A few hours later Gates was dead and Mulvaney, seriously ill, was at the county hospital. Investigation convinced the police the men had been driven to eating meal found outside wholesale food establishments, and that the mush had contained rat poison.

Bloodhounds Trail Man Who Hit Woman with Ax

Freehold, N. J., May 31.—(AP)—Bloodhounds, assisting a posse of 100 men, were put on the trail of Charles Forker, 25, today after his foster mother, Mrs. Lily Malsbury, near death, told police he struck her twice with an ax in her farm home.

800 MILLION LOT OF 18 YR. BONDS TO BE FLOATED

Securities Will Pay 3⅛% Interest.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 31.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon announced today an 800 million dollar long term bond issue bearing 3⅛ per cent interest to meet in part the treasury deficit, which now approximates one billion dollars.

With the country facing the probability that the next fiscal year will produce another billion dollar deficit, the treasury contemplates further long term bond issues as well as temporary borrowings on shotr term certificates of indebtedness.

The announcement of the bond issue is construed as an indication that the Hoover administration has definitely entered upon a program of meeting the deficit by borrowing on the credit of the government instead of by increasing taxes. The indications now are that no tax boost will be sought by the administration if at all until after the presidential election next year.

Public Debt Climbs Again.

As a result of the borrowings to meet the deficit, the public debt, which had steadily been reduced since 1923 until it stood at 1 billions 185 millions in 1930, starts climbing upward again.

The 800 million dollar bond issue now announced is the largest peacetime offering of long term government obligations in the history of the country with the exception of the one billion dollar bond issue in 1924, which, however, was not to meet a deficit but to refinance world war indebtedness.

The interest rate of 3⅛ per cent on this issue is the lowest of any long term government financing since 1916-'17 and nearly as low as that on the Panama canal bonds issue shortly after the turn of the century. That the 800 million dollar issue will be oversubscribed to the extent of hundreds of millions of dollars even at 3⅛ per cent interest is not doubted, partly because of the prevailing cheapness of money and partly because of the fact that while the treasury may have a deficit the credit of the government is A-1 gilt edged.

Dated June 15, 1931.

The bonds will be dated and will bear interest from June 15, 1931, and will mature on June 15, 1949, being redeemable at the option of the treasury on and after June 15, 1946.

The bonds will be issued in both bearer and registered from in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000, and $100,000. In addition there will be registered bonds in the $50,000 denomination.

The federal reserve banks will be the official agencies for the flotation of the issue, but all banks will receive subscriptions from investors. The treasury will accept in payment for the new bonds, at par, treasury certificates of indebtedness of the series TJ-1931 and TJ-2-1931, both maturing June 15, 1931. Subscriptions for which payment is to be tendered in such certificates of indebtedness will be given preferred allotment up to the aggregate amount of 325 millions.

Take Up Borrowings.

The purpose of the long term bond issue is to take up the temporary borrowings of the government in the form of treasury certificates which on account of the deficit in revenues can no longer be met from the income of the government. Outstanding short term obligations of the government now approximate 3 billion dollars.

About 589 million dollars of treasury certificates of indebtedness and about $90,000,000 in interest payments on the public debt become due and payable on June 15, 1931.

The bonds will be exempt from federal, state, and local taxes, except inheritance taxes and surtaxes, although an amount not exceeding $5,000 will be exempt from surtaxes also.

Exempt from Taxes.

The tax exemption as set forth by the treasury announcement follows:

"The bonds shall be exempt, both as to principal and interest, from all taxation now or hereafter imposed by the United States, any state, or any of the possessions of the United States, or by any local taxing authority except [a] estate or inheritances taxes and [b] graduated additional income taxes, commonly known as surtaxes, and excess profits and war profits taxes now or hereafter imposed by the United States, upon the income or profits of individuals, partnerships, associations, or corporations. The interest on an amount of bonds and certificates [but not including any certificates of indebtedness issued after June 17, 1929,] authorized by said act approved Sept. 24, 1917, as amended, the principal of which does not exceed in the aggregate $5,000, owned by any individual, partnership, association or corporation shall be exempt from the taxes provided for in said clause [b] above."

Payment Plan Outlined.

With respect to payment the treasury announcement says:

"Payment at par and accrued interest for any bonds allotted must be made on or before June 15, 1931, or on later allotment. After allotment and upon payment federal reserve banks may issue interim receipts pending delivery of the definitive bonds. Any qualified depositary will be permitted to make payment by credit for bonds allotted to it for itself and its customers up to any amount for which it shall be qualified in excess of existing deposits, when so notified by the federal reserve bank of its district.

"Treasury certificates of indebtedness of series TJ-131, TJ-2-1931, both maturing June 15, 1931, will be accepted at par in payment for any treasury bonds of the issue now offered which shall be subscribed for and allotted, with an adjustment of the interest accrued, if any, on the bonds so paid for."

Has Political Aspects.

Unusual interest attaches to the political aspects of the program of government financing of which the 800 million dollar bond issue is the latest feature.

According to some authorities the present deficit is due to some extent to a too rapid reduction of taxes and a too rapid retirement of the public debt, which redounded only to the political benefit of the Coolidge administration.

Now that the existence of the deficit apparently calls for an increase of taxes the Republican leaders shrink from any step in that direction from fear that it will react unfavorably upon the political future of President Hoover on the eve of the election in which he will be a candidate to succeed himself. No less do the Democratic leaders shrink from indorsement of a tax raise from fear that such an attitude would be politically damaging to their party in the presidential election.

Depend on Business Gain.

The administration is relying upon a return wave of prosperity next fall to restore the revenues of the government income taxes to such an extent that a tax raise would be unnecessary.

SUSPECT WIDOW OF POISONING 19 IN THIRTY YEARS

Evidence Ready for Grand Jury in 4 Deaths.

The taciturn housewife, Mrs. Margaret Summers, who sits in the county jail awaiting grand jury action on the four deaths of which she stands definitely accused, began yesterday to acquire the reputation of a modern Lucrezia Borgia.

C. WAYLAND BROOKS.

Drab and dull as was the surface life of Mrs. Summers, the widow of a street peddler, Coroner Herman N. Bundesen claims grounds for suspicion that she has been a poisoner for 30 years. Her victims, the coroner said, may number 19 persons, including four husbands, one paramour, her first born daughter, two brothers, and a nephew.

Seek True Bills.

In the deaths of her latest husband, Thomas [Shags] Summers; her nephew, Thomas Meyers, and of two fellow peddlers of Summers, William Reenan and Thomas Lanagan; the state's attorney's office believes there is now sufficient evidence to justify murder indictments. Assistant State's Attorneys C. Wayland Brooks said yesterday that he would present the evidence to the grand jury probably tomorrow in the hope of procuring indictments Wednesday.

The bodies of these four having been exhumed and subjected to chemical analysis, Mr. Brooks promises to produce expert witnesses to testify that each was a victim of arsenic poisoning. The conclusion of the experts, Mr. Brooks averred, is that the husband, nephew, and two peddlers succumbed to arsenic, administered in small doses over considerable periods of time to simulate the appearance of natural ailments.

Find Evidence Downstate.

With regard to the fifteen other suspected deaths, Mr. Brooks said, the root of the evidence lies at Mrs. Summers' native town, Effingham, Ill. To bring this evidence before the Cook county grand jury the prosecutor indicated he might subpoena Mrs. Summers' stepmother, Mrs. William Meyers, whose statements to an investigator on Saturday revealed that Mrs. Summers had been widowed mysteriously not three times but five.

The stepmother admitted that Mrs. Summers, since her first marriage 31 years ago, had been married to five men and had lived with another without marriage, all of whom she believed to be now dead.

Father and Girl Die.

The first husband, Mrs. Meyers asserted, was James Lynch, by whom her stepdaughter had a child. According to Mrs. Meyers' recollection the child, a girl, was only a few months old when the father, a hitherto robust young man, was taken ill and died. The child's death followed in two years.

Thereafter, according to the stepmother's recollection, Mrs. Summers married Leonard Jones, Stanley Korzen, James Fairfax, and the peddler Summers, living at one interval between marriages with a Chicago cab driver, whose name the stepmother did not know, but whose photograph Mrs. Summers had sent her. The photograph was expected here in the mails today.

Whether Mrs. Summers held insurance policies on all six, Mrs. Meyers said she did not know. But, in totaling up the list of mysterious deaths of others with whom the step-daughter had associated, Mrs. Meyers brought in two new names, Louis and William A. Meyers, brothers of Mrs. Summers.

Two More Deaths.

Of Williams' death the stepmother recalled that he had been well and healthy until Mrs. Summers came to live with him. Unexpectedly he became thin and complained of stomach pains. Within two months he was dead and his wife moved to California.

Shortly afterward, according to the stepmother's story, Mrs. Summers also went to California. There, presumably, she joined her sister-in-law. The next heard of the sister-in-law was the word from Mrs. Summers, who had come to Chicago, that the sister-in-law had been killed in an automobile accident on the coast.

The prosecutor is tracing reports that the other brother, Louis, also died mysteriously.

Evidence in Bible.

Here the thread of Mrs. Summers' activities was lost to Mrs. Meyers. In the possession of the state's attorney's office, however, is a leaf torn from a Bible, on which she is alleged to have written the names of her insurance risks and the dates of their deaths, prospective or accomplished.

Among those reported on the list are two husbands, Fairfax, who died in 1917 and Korzen, who died the following year; the peddler, Reenan, who died May 23, 1928; the peddler, Lanagan, who died on July 13, 1930; the last husband, Summers, who died Aug. 30, 1930, and the nephew, Thomas Meyers, who died two weeks ago.

It was the nephew's death and the suspicions of an aunt, Mrs. Mabel Lawrenz, that started the authorities on the trail of Mrs. Summers' fatal associations.

GIRL IS KILLED WHEN SHE FALLS BENEATH TRAIN

Miss Irene Kickert, 20 years old, was fatally injured late yesterday afternoon when she fell or jumped from the Illinois Central station platform at 111th street directly in front of a northbound interurban train, which ran over her legs. She died shortly afterward in the Roseland Community hospital.

Attorney I. A. Miller, 5750 Kenwood avenue, in whose home the girl worked as a domestic, said she had given no indication of intent to commit suicide. He was of the opinion that her fall was accidental. Miss Kickert's home was at Rapelje, Mont., but she had been working in Chicago for about two years.

Relatives of the girl, living in South Holland, said she had not visited them for about a year. They added that she had other relatives living in the vicinity of 111th street and might have been on her way to see them.

Chicago Child Dies on Ship Bound for Britain

Six Schools Burned on Eve of Nude Parade Celebration

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

REGINA, Sask., May 31.—Six country schools in the heart of the Doukhobor country were reported burned today as Russian settlers prepared for their June festival of Peter and Paul. Police suspect incendiarism. Doukhobors for a quarter century have marked the June fete with nude parades and bonfires.

BOY, 15, SMILING AS HE RE-ENACTS POLICE KILLING

Officials Ponder Punishment; Hold Inquest Today

Problems of punishment confronted the authorities yesterday as the killing of Policeman Edward Smith was reenacted in the John Marshall High school. Varner Corry, 15 years old, calmly and with a grin, repeated his actions of the day before when he shot Policeman Smith twice when the policeman ordered him, his 12 year old brother, Earl, and Schuyler Pearson, 15 years old, from the school swimming pool. The Corry boys live at 736 South Claremont avenue.

JUDGE BARTELME.

Sergt. Garrett Fleming of the Fillmore street station, who brought the three boys to the scene of the crime yesterday morning, was shocked at their indifference. It was the youngest, Earl Corry, who alone showed evidence of appreciation of the seriousness of what had happened.

Boy Admits He's Sorry.

Persistent questioning of Varner finally brought the admission he was sorry for his deed, sorry for the widow and Ilene, the 3 year old daughter of the slain policeman. Otherwise he was stolid.

What to do with the boys yesterday was the first concern of the police. They stayed in police cells yesterday.

Today they will face the widow and child of the policeman at the inquest, which will be held at 3159 Jackson boulevard. Police and school officials say the electric chair looms for Varner at least, and they think the trial should be in the Criminal court.

Judge Mary Bartelme of the Juvenile court said discretion rests with the state's attorney as to whether the boys should face a jury in the Criminal court or come before her for punishment. The Juvenile court has jurisdiction over boys under 17—but so has the Criminal court, Judge Bartelme said.

Boys Tried for Murder.

There have been instances in Cook county of boys under 17 being tried for murder in the Criminal court, and also in the Juvenile court, Judge Bartelme stated, but none of execution of such youthful slayers. State's Attorney Swanson made no decision yesterday on the question.

The question also arose as to whether the younger Corry and the Pearson boy might properly be considered accessories to the murder or accomplices. If the three were committing a crime at the time Varner killed Policeman Smith all would be equally guilty, it was explained, but whether their breaking into the school would be considered a crime remained a question. It was not contended that the two boys had any advance knowledge that Varner intended to shoot the policeman, although they knew he was carrying a .22 caliber automatic pistol.

Took Gun from School.

"I took the gun from a desk in the school gymnasium a few weeks ago," Varner confessed. "My father found out I had it and he told me to get rid of it."

The boys admitted they had broken into the school on several occasions. Varner had previously attended the John Marshall school, but since then has been a student at Crane Technical High school. They were discovered in the swimming pool Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Mary Crabtree, janitress, who notified Policeman Smith.

"I was undressed and standing here on the north end of the pool," Varner explained yesterday when brought back there. "Earl and Schuyler were already in the water. The policeman walked in and said, 'Come on, you fellows, put on your clothes.' My clothes were over there [pointing and then walking to the designated spot]. I picked the gun out of my pocket and said to him, 'Stick 'em up, you!'

Fires Two Shots at Smith.

"He stepped behind a pillar. I saw him move his hand toward his own gun. I fired two shots at him. He fired once at me and the bullet hit the little finger of my right hand. I grabbed my clothes and all of us got away through a second story window and down the rain pipe."

"I've had experience with boys and many of them tough, but I have never seen boys as callous as these," commented George Keith of the compulsory education bureau. "They think it is a joke."

Sergt. Fleming explained what must have been the attitude of the policeman facing death. He didn't think the boy would dare shoot him, Fleming surmised, and he knew he would be subjected to criticism if he shot boys for the trivial offense of swimming in a school pool, so he withheld his fire until he was mortally wounded.

Killer a Model Boy.

The boy killer, police revealed last night, is a member of the Y. M. C. A. and has won several merit awards as a Boy Scout. His father is a machinery mover and his mother, Mrs. Adeline Jones Corry, has been an art teacher in the public schools for twenty years.

In the Corry home was found an extensive library purchased by the mother especially for her sons. Varner was known as a studious lad who never was inclined to much mischief. His parents were at a loss to account for his act.

Mrs. Anna T. Mulligan, his teacher in the Crane Technical High school, said Varner was an excellent student.

Widow Tells of Fatal Day.

Except for the steady rain that fell on Memorial day, Patrolman Smith might be alive today, it was disclosed yesterday. Seated in the neat little flat at 334 South Kostner avenue, with tearless eyes riveted on her husband's casket, Mrs. Smith told with a visible effort of the last time she saw him.

"He came home for lunch—the first time he'd ever done that," she said, "because he'd been ordered to eat and then go downtown for duty during the parade. I can't figure out what he was doing at that school, so far away from his assignment."

Inquiry disclosed that when the rain prevented the parade the policemen assigned there telephoned their stations and that Smith had been ordered to go to the school to watch for the vandals.

Funeral services will be held at St. Mel's church at 10:15 o'clock Wednesday morning, with interment in Mount Carmel cemetery.

Cooler Weather Fails to Halt Week-End Festivities

FOUR HOT WEATHER 'DO'S' AND A 'DON'T' BY U. S. HEALTH BOARD

Washington, D. C., May 31.—(AP)—Four "do's" and a "don't" were laid down today by the public health service as hot weather rules for keeping comfortable.

They were:

Eat less, with plenty of fresh fruit and vegetables and less meat and fried foods on the menu.

Sleep regularly.

Exercise, but avoid strenuous exertion.

Don't try to acquire a coat of tan in one day.

On the point of food the service recommended ice cream highly and advised plenty of milk and fruit juices, with six to eight glasses of cool water daily. A special warning was issued for picnicking city dwellers against tempting looking springs, in which deadly germs might lurk.

Metropolitan highways and city thoroughfares were congested last night as thousands of motorists returned home from country trips afforded them by the double holiday over Memorial day.

While the widened radial highways of the metropolitan system accommodated the extra traffic with ease, jams were frequent within the city limits. Lines of cars moved at a snail's pace along the cork screw route of South Shore drive through Jackson park and similarly on Sheridan road into Lincoln park.

LIGHTNING SETS 200 HOUSES AFIRE IN BERLIN STORM

BERLIN, May 31.—(AP)—Trees were uprooted, roofs torn off, and 200 houses were set afire by lightning as a severe thunderstorm, accompanied by a torrential rainfall and hailstones, struck Berlin and its suburbs tonight. The storm lasted five hours.

Scores of persons were injured. The returning rush of week-end excursionists caused panics and crushes in the railroad stations and 100 boats were capsized on nearby lakes.

Rain and hail also struck the province of Lippe at Detmold, and the waters rose so high that the inhabitants of many villages had to be rescued through the windows of houses.

Mrs. Rinehart Rests Well After Operation

Washington, D. C., May 31.—(AP)—Mary Roberts Rinehart, author, today was resting comfortably at Emergency hospital following an operation yesterday. Dr. James F. Mitchell said Mrs. Rinehart had rallied well after the operation for removal of her gall bladder.

AUDITOR STABBED BY FRIEND AFTER CABARET PARTY

Marshall C. Buck, 33 years old, 5441 Kenmore avenue, an auditor, was probably fatally wounded early yesterday when he was stabbed in the jugular vein during an altercation after a cabaret party.

His assailant was Edward A. Faris, 54 years old, an advertising salesman living at the Ambassador hotel. Faris was arrested on a charge of assault to kill, later released on $5,000 bond.

Buck and Faris are married men. According to East Chicago avenue police the two, with Willard L. Curtis, 920 Wilson avenue, and three young women whose names were not learned, visited the French cuisine, Delaware place and Rush street. There was some drinking, police said, and at 4 a. m. the revelers started homeward. Outside, Faris objected to Buck's presence and told him to "be on his way." A few words were exchanged, and Buck tried to hit Faris. The latter lunged at him with an open penknife, piercing the auditor's jugular vein.

Curtis took Buck to the Henrotin hospital. Two operations were performed by Drs. Frank Wieland and John A. Graham. Buck may die.

'GOOSESTEP' FOR HEIR TO FALLEN GERMAN THRONE

Imperial Pomp Revived by War Veterans.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRESLAU, Germany, May 31.—With Field Marshal von Mackensen in colorful peacetime uniform at his side, and with Gen. von Seeckt and Gen. Wilhelm Heye, retired commanders-in-chief of the republican army nearby, former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm in a gray uniform and death's head hussar helmet today was jubilantly greeted by 150,000 members of the Steel Helmets, gathered here for their twelfth annual convention.

FRIEDRICH WILHELM.

In the ranks of the "goose stepping" war veterans who were paraded past Franz Seldte, their chief, were the former king of Saxony and young Wilhelm of Hohenzollern, eldest son of the former crown prince, who has been chosen by the monarchists as their candidate for the throne if the monarchy comes back.

On the stand with the guests of honor was the former crown princess, cranking a movie camera to get pictures of the first public triumphal reception for the former crown prince by post-war Germany.

Chief Addresses "Army."

Herr Seldte addressed the Steel Helmeters as they stood rigid under 2,000 waving flags.

"We will never forget that our bleeding borders in the east were chopped to pieces by the Versailles treaty nor that our countrymen are suffering torments under Polish rulers," he said. "Face to the east!"

As he gave this order, the 150,000 men did an about face to salute the east, "where Germany's fate lies."

"The fight for the life of the German people will be decided there," Herr Seldte concluded.

Then Herr Duesterberg, second chief of the Steel Helmets, presented twenty-five flags to the organization in memory of the dead in the battle of Jutland. Church bells tolled and all stood bareheaded while he prayed: "May these flags float over liberated Germany!"

Five hundred bandsmen struck up "Deutschland Ueber Alles," and the masses sang, lifting their hands in oath at the passage: "In misfortune more than ever will we serve the fatherland."

For hours the Steel Helmet ranks "goose-stepped" by. When the Danzig and East Prussian delegation appeared the former crown prince stepped forward to salute, and Von Mackensen rushed to grab the hand of the lanky son of the former crown prince, the pretender to the throne, who was marching as a simple soldier.

The duke of Saxe-Coburg, a former English prince, headed a contingent of 900 motor cars and 500 motorcycles with a galaxy of princes from Thuringia and minor principalities.

Hindenburg Sends Greetings.

The organization sent a telegram to President von Hindenburg, who replied: "Greetings, old comrades!"

While the Steel Helmeters were parading, the Association of Friends of Peace, also meeting in Breslau, assured their Polish friends that millions of Germans are opposed to this war insanity."

Three Steel Helmeters were killed tonight. One lost his life in a clash with communists and two others met death in an automobile accident.

Unveil Bust for Von Tirpitz.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 31.—President von Hindenburg today was present at the unveiling of a bust to Grand Admiral von Tirpitz in the formal naval ministry building, in memory of the battle of Jutland. Sailors in white uniforms escorted the president through Berlin while thousands lined the streets to cheer him and the sailors.

G. A. R. SURVIVORS OF ILLINOIS TO MEET IN AURORA THIS WEEK

The annual conventions of the state department of the Grand Army of the Republic, and its various auxiliaries, will be held in Aurora for four days beginning today. About 250 veterans and several thousand members of the subordinate groups are expected to attend.

First sessions of the G. A. R. proper will be held tomorrow, with election of state officers scheduled for Thursday. A meeting of the women's relief corps, oldest auxiliary of the army, will be held today.

A parade will be staged in the downtown district of Aurora Thursday. Some of the veterans will march. The others will ride in motors.

LOBSTERS SEE OCEAN COWBOYS ROPE 2 STRAYS

Long Branch, N. J., May 31.—[Special.]—A rodeo was staged today two miles off shore in a calm Atlantic. Two cowboy fishermen from this coastal resort who displayed a prowess worthy of the plains to an audience made up solely of the lobsters in their catch, roped a pair of strays and conquered bucking mavericks, so to speak.

Chris Nelson and Harry Hansen, the lobster fishermen, were trimming their catch in their motor boat, their attention fixed entirely on lobsters, when of all things, antlers appeared out of the ocean.

For a moment they looked at each other. They looked again at the antlers. Exclamations gave way to chuckles as two buck deer hove into view at two knots, panting and puffing as spasmodically as a fisherman's dory.

In an instant the bucks were lassoed and securely bound.

State Game Warden Lyell, who freed the deer in the woods near Freehold, said they had probably been chased into the water by dogs and had lost their sense of direction.

Columbus Junction, Ia., May 31.—[Special.]—Clarence A. Lacey, 50, cashier of the Security Bank of Keota, has been missing a month, it was disclosed today. He resigned and dropped out of sight without telling his family where he was going. His accounts have been investigated and found correct. His wife remains at Keota. His daughter, Francine, is attending the University of Iowa.

DRIVER IN STOLEN CAR HITS AUTO, BREAKS WINDOW

Police last night arrested Edward Murphy, 26 years old, of 538 South State street, after the automobile he was driving, found later to have been stolen, collided with one automobile, forced two others into a ditch, and ended up by crashing through a restaurant window in South Western avenue. Murphy's companion, Catherine Wagner, 35 years old, of 4404 South Richmond street, was cut by glass and bruised.

The first incident in Murphy's ride occurred at 95th street and the Southwest highway when the auto collided with another, driven by Paul Kapustianyk, 3219 West 65th street. Kapustianyk and his passenger, Gerald Schrock, 3221 West 65th street, pursued Murphy and saw him force two other cars into a ditch. Murphy turned into Western avenue, and ended his ride by caroming into the window of the restaurant of James J. Maher at 7359 South Western avenue, where Miss Wagner was hurt.

Policeman Timothy O'Connell of the Chicago Lawn station arrested Murphy. Investigation showed that the car was stolen on May 25 by three men from Martin Purian, 7740 Jeffery avenue, at 63d street and Jackson Park beach. Purian identified Murphy as one of the men.

PILOTS PLANE BY RADIO CONTROL FROM ANOTHER

Autrey Shows 5,000 That It Can Be Done.

Houston, Tex., May 31.—[Special.]—In the presence of 5,000 spectators, a pilotless monoplane was flown successfully by radio control from another plane circling overhead at the municipal airport here this afternoon.

This was said to be among the first public demonstrations ever made of a principle of operating motor vehicles by radio discovered seven years ago by Robert E. Autrey, formerly of Los Angeles, who holds three governmental patents on the invention.

Autrey said he had many times before demonstrated the operation of a driverless automobile by radio control, but his tests heretofore with planes had been made in private.

Also Radios Automobile.

The experiment this afternoon included driving a car by radio control, with the master key located in succession in a truck on the field and then in a flying airplane. The engine of the automobile was started by radio control, the horns blown, and the vehicle propelled forward as carefully as if the wheel had been manipulated by human hands. The car was empty during the exhibition, except for a collection of batteries in the rear seat and a maze of electric wires.

The plane which was flown by radio control, a five-place Stinson Detroiter, had double controls. Whitey Owen, a transport pilot, went aloft with the ship to satisfy a government standard requiring a licensed pilot when doing any experimental flying over an incorporated city. Shortly after taking off he plugged in a switch which put the plane in control of Autrey, who was flying in another ship with the sending key in his hand. Autrey kept the radio ship under his control for nearly fifteen minutes, banking it, dipping it, and turning it at will. Once when the two planes became separated by more than half a mile, he lost control for a few minutes, but quickly regained control.

Up 1,000 to 3,000 Feet.

The ships maintained an altitude ranging from 1,000 to 3,000 feet. When the two planes landed Owen said that each time he had thrown the switch, disconnecting the radio current, and took control of the plane himself when Autrey by accident "overcontrolled" it. Autrey explained that an aviator was guided largely by a sense of touch in operating a plane, and that Autrey, flying the ship by radio control, had only his eyes to guide him in determining whether he was banking too sharply.

Autrey said the principle of radio control which he has perfected holds unlimited possibilities in time of war. He declared that one man could easily control by radio a dozen planes in flight.

Hunted After Holdup

MARION (KIKI) ROBERTS.

Middletown, Conn., May 31.—[Special.]—State and local police began an intensive search of isolated areas in this vicinity today for Marion [Kiki] Roberts, chorus girl consort of Jack [Legs] Diamond in the belief that she and several companions might be hiding in an unoccupied summer cottage.

The search for the missing girl, who is under indictment with Diamond in Greene county, New York, was instituted when three victims of a holdup here Friday night identified a picture of the fugitive red haired girl as that of a member of a band of three who robbed them at the point of guns.

Prosecutor John E. Tobin said that as a result of the identification by the robbery victims he contemplated issuing a warrant for Miss Roberts.

FLYER FOGBOUND; JAPAN-AMERICA HOP POSTPONED

SAMUSHIRO BEACH, Japan, June 1 [Monday].—(AP)—Fog at daybreak prevented the takeoff of Thomas Ash Jr., American aviator, on his projected 4,400 mile flight across the North Pacific. At 8:50 a. m. the beach was still shrouded and Ash postponed the start of his flight until 5 a. m. tomorrow.

Ash reduced his gasoline supply by an additional thirty-five gallons today. This, with the twenty gallons removed from the monoplane Pacific yesterday, leaves him 965 gallons and lightened the plane by several hundred pounds.

The flyer said yesterday he doubted he would be able to reach Puget Sound with the smaller fuel supply and might content himself with a 2,600 mile nonstop flight to Dutch Harbor, Alaska, or some point beyond. His plans today were not clear.

G. E. Q. JOHNSON TELLS OF CITY'S FIGHT ON CRIME

Speaks at Enforcement Rally in Iowa.

Fort Dodge, Ia., May 31.—[Special.]—Addressing a law enforcement rally in the community where he was born and spent his boyhood, George E. Q. Johnson, United States attorney for northern Illinois, tonight related the story of Chicago's fight to rid itself of organized crime.

JUDGE W. S. KENYON. [Harris & Ewing.]

Judge William S. Kenyon of the national law enforcement commission and Gov. Dan Turner also spoke, and President Hoover sent a personal message in which he declared he "shared wholeheartedly in the purpose for which this assemblage is gathered."

Johnson, who was born on a farm a few miles from Fort Dodge, warned his audience that his recital of crime conditions in Chicago was not intended in disparagement of "the great city on the lakes, which has been so kind to me and to whose interest I am so passionately devoted."

Problem of All Cities.

"The problem of Chicago," he declared, "is the problem of every other American city. It is not only a city problem, but a national problem with this difference only, the things that have happened in Chicago the last four years have been highly dramatic and spectacular, and it is the policy of our metropolitan press to dramatize these events.

"There is this advantage in Chicago. We have set our faces squarely against organized crime. We have come to a time when we are saying that the 99 men who are lawabiding and God fearing shall no longer be either dominated or besmirched by the one out of the hundred who is anti-social and criminal."

Mr. Johnson described how Chicago, under the previous administration, "truly became an open town, and organized crime operated with a boldness and arrogance perhaps never before known in a great city."

"Born of Privilege."

He told of the growth of organized crime, which he defined as "A form of invisible government, born of privilege to violate the law with immunity granted by some one in authority, who has the responsibility for law enforcement."

"Organized crime," Mr. Johnson said, "is always under the leadership of some pasty crook, who has definite connections with corrupt politics. Organized crime cannot live without this alliance, and cannot operate in a field of privilege without this understanding with corrupt police and corrupt politics.

Aim to Make Money.

"I have suggested to my fellow citizens of Chicago, and we are putting the plan into force, that the way to get rid of organized crime is to make it impossible for crime to make money. The purpose of all crime, leaving out the offenses of passion and degeneracy, is to get easy money. If the source of revenues upon which organized crime breeds and feeds is dried up organized crime will wither and die.

"I have reached a very definite conclusion with reference to organized crime. We are going to get through with it when we take the whole thing and strangle it, and to do this all we need is courage and honesty in the agencies of detection of crime. And courage, ability, and integrity on the part of the prosecuting officials."

Judge Attacks Law Violators.

Judge Kenyon, in his talk, blamed the attitude of a large part of the public toward the eighteenth amendment for stimulating violation of other laws.

"The attitude of some of what is known as 'high society' has helped bring this situation," Judge Kenyon said. "That part of 'high society' which encourages the bootlegger to break the law by using his products is treading on dangerous ground.

"If the 'upper crust' of society can choose the laws it will obey, then the 'lower crust can choose the laws it will obey, and in taking that position the 'upper crust' becomes the ally of the underworld."

HUSBAND KILLS WIFE; SHOT AS HE RESISTS ARREST

Blasej Scukanec, 42 years old, last night shot and killed his wife, Sophia, 41 years old, in a saddlery shop at 123 North Halsted street, of which he is part owner. He then barricaded himself in the store and resisted arrest until he had been shot in the right leg by members of a police squad from the Des Plaines street station.

The killer, who appeared to be intoxicated, told conflicting stories about his motive. At one time he asserted his wife had been unfaithful to him, at another he said they had quarreled over who was to pay for a bottle of wine.

With their 17 year old son, James, the couple had stopped their car in front of the store while they were on their way to the family home at 3040 South Millard avenue. The youth was left outside while they went in. James witnessed the shooting through the window.

When the squad, summoned by a private watchman who had heard the shooting, arrived, Sergt. William Marshall entered the front door and Sergts. John Kuciver, Frank Schultz and Joseph Moriarity the rear. The latter three fired when Scukanec turned his pistol on them. His wounds, which was not serious, was treated at the county hospital and he was taken to the Des Plaines street station for questioning.

31 ARMY PLANES FORCED TO LAND BY BAD WEATHER

Cumberland, Md., May 31.—(AP)—Forced down by bad weather over the Appalachian mountains, 31 of the planes which took part in the national air maneuvers during the last two weeks were quartered at the Cumberland airport tonight.

If weather permits they will leave tomorrow for their bases, Kelly Field, Tex., and Crissy Field, Cal.

Several National Guard planes from Colorado, Indiana and Missouri were included in the group.

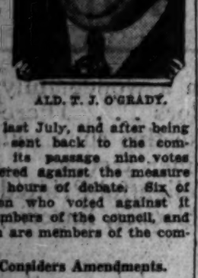
ALDERMEN WILL BATTLE TODAY ON PHONE FRANCHISE

Consider Amendments to Protect City.

Members of the city council who have been bitterly opposed to the proposed franchise grant to the Illinois Bell Telephone company are expected to battle today when the ordinance is considered at a meeting of the committee on gas, oil, and electricity.



ALD. T. J. O'GRADY.

The proposed franchise was passed by the council last July, and after being vetoed was sent back to the committee. On its passage nine votes were registered against the measure after seven hours of debate. Six of the aldermen who voted against it are still members of the council, and two of them are members of the committee.

O'Grady Considers Amendments.

Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th] yesterday was considering the submission of amendments that will give the city greater benefits than now proposed in return for granting the telephone company the use of city streets and alleys. Several disputed sections have been rewritten by Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th], committee chairman, but while they change the wording, the sections are said to retain the old meaning.

In its old franchise, which expired in January, 1923, the company was definitely obliged to pay the cost of removing its properties to make way for subway construction. This is omitted in the proposed franchise, and in substitution there was written that the company would be a party to any agreement between the city and the Insull companies relative to the payment of relocation costs.

Disregard Word of Attorneys.

By omitting the definite obligation as imposed in the old franchise the committee disregarded the advise of its then attorneys, Benjamin F. Goldstein and George I. Haight. In a written report the two attorneys had said:

"If we omit from the franchise any provision giving the city the power to order the removal at the expense of the company the possibility would exist that when the time comes the telephone utility might contest the right of the city to demand removal at its expense, as was in fact successfully done in New York. To avoid this the matter should be settled one way or the other."

Another disputed point was the division of long distance toll revenue between the Illinois company and its parent organization, the American Telephone and Telegraph company, and how much the latter should pay for the use of the Illinois company's local equipment.

As the city collects 3 per cent on the gross revenue of the Illinois company as compensation, the proper division of the tolls is considered by the aldermen as an important factor in the negotiations.

City Must Pay $27,600.

Under the old franchise the city received as a part of its compensation free telephone service, which has been estimated would have cost the city $200,000 a year. This free service is abolished in the proposed ordinance, and under the proposed ordinance the city would be made to pay the $27,000 annual upkeep of the city telephone complaint bureau. Formerly, the bureau's expenses were paid by the company.

EFFECT OF ENFORCING PERSONALTY TAX ON SAVINGS DEPOSITS

Bank deposit	$1,000.00
Assessed valuation factor	.37
Assessed valuation	$ 370.00
Tax rate of $6.03 per $100 valuation	.0603
Tax on deposit	$ 22.31
Deposit	$1,000.00
Annual interest rate	.03
Gross annual return to depositor	$ 30.00
Minus tax	22.31
Net return	$ 7.69

This gives the depositor a net return of a little over three-quarters of 1 per cent.

URGE COUNCIL AND TAX BODIES TO CO-OPERATE

Aldermen and Assessors to Meet Today.

Coöperation between the city council and the taxation bodies was advocated yesterday in discussion of a program for a meeting today of a joint council committee with the board of assessors. Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th], chairman of the state legislation committee; Ald. Berthold A. Cronson [4th], chairman of the efficiency committee, and Ald. John S. Clark [30th], and Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th] are leaders of the council group.

They, with City Controller M. S. Szymczak, are working on the problem of the city's inability to meet pay rolls. Notice was served on the assessors of the city's position that personal tax laws be enforced. Ald. Nelson declared yesterday that Assessor John E. Conroy was mistaken in construing the demand as meaning that money in savings banks should be taxed as personal property.

Defines Personal Property.

"We mean the vast wealth represented by stocks, bonds, securities of all kinds, capital stock of corporations and all intangibles," Ald. Nelson said in giving his definition of personal property. "That's what we want the assessors to tax. There is no reason why the 37 per cent equalization factor now applied to real estate should not be applied to all personal wealth, as provided by law."

Favor Proposed Law.

The aldermen favor the proposed state law making it a jail offense to file an incorrect personal property schedule, Ald. Nelson said. They will also discuss the advisability of supporting the proposed abolition of the boards of assessors and review.

They are concerned over the failure of many of the wealthy taxpayers of the city, including a number of banks, to pay their personal property assessments, now due, and over the limited collection to date of the real estate taxes due, Ald. Nelson said.

MEAT PRICES IN STEADY DECLINE FROM LAST YEAR

Savings of from 16 to 38 per cent on meat purchases were realized by housewives during this May as compared with May of 1930, it was announced yesterday by the Institute of American Meat Packers.

The announcement was contained in a report on packing conditions. The price of live stock fell to the lowest point in twenty years, it was shown.

Wholesale meat prices showed a decrease from those of May, 1930, as follows: Dressed beaf, 30 to 35 per cent; dressed veal, 33 per cent; smoked hams, 16 to 36 per cent, and smoked picnic hams, 35 per cent. The meat export trade was quiet, according to the report.

FEAR SHIP WILL GO DOWN AFTER 500 ARE RESCUED

Los Angeles, Cal., May 31.—(AP)—Although all passengers are safe, concern was expressed in messages from salvage operators today that the coastwise steamer Harvard, aground since early yesterday at Point Arguello, north of here, may become a loss.

All but one of the vessel's holds appear to be punctured, the ship has settled deep into the sand and the aft main deck is under five feet of water, according to a radio message from R. S. Gardner, in charge of salvaging operations.

Gardner, wirelessing from the Peacock, one of the three tugs standing by, declared the Harvard "will not stand any bad weather."

Salvagable cargo is being transferred today from the stricken vessel to the tugs. Several days probably will elapse before an effort can be made to float the ship, which, with 500 passengers aboard, lost her bearings and ran aground during foggy weather on a holiday trip from San Francisco to Los Angeles. The passengers were removed safely and brought to Los Angeles last night.

U.S. MAYORS, TOLD WINE IS HEALTHY, DRAIN GOBLETS

Capital of Burgundy Cheers Visitors.

DIJON, France, May 31.—(AP)—The touring American mayors were given a hearty welcome by a crowd of 12,000 persons when they arrived in this ancient capital of Burgundy this afternoon.

GEORGE L. BAKER. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

The visiting executives and their wives were loudly cheered in a spontaneous demonstration of the holiday throng, many of whom recalled the frequent passage of American troops through the city on their way toward the front.

In the stately old city hall, which once was the palace of the dukes of Burgundy, Mayor Gaston Gerard, and other municipal officials, welcomed the Americans. Mayor Gerard, who also is undersecretary of state for public works and tourism, boasted of the wine grapes of his section, which are used in making Burgundy wines.

All But One Drink Wine.

Pointing to the wine goblets on the refreshment table, he said:

"There are other things to drink on this table, but I hope they will not be used."

Mayor John C. Porter of Los Angeles, Cal., was the only executive who was deaf to this plea. He declined the proffered beverage and contented himself with a glass of ice water. Mrs. Porter emptied her golden goblet, but it contained only orangeade.

"On that table there are a lot of good wines, which we hope soon to be able to sell to you as in the old days," Mayor Gerard said in his speech of welcome. "Remember that we are in a wine growing country whose fermented product is the least harmful in the world for the human system.

"As you go around here just look at our Burgundy peasants, who have drunk wine all their lives, and see how healthy, hearty, and long lived they are."

Quiz Alfonso's Waiter.

Mayor George L. Baker of Portland, Ore., who served as official spokesman, thanked the Dijon officials heartily and the band then played "The Star Spangled Banner," "The Marseillaise," and "The Joyous Children of Burgundy."

On their trip from Paris the Americans were much interested in having the same waiter who served former King Alfonso of Spain on his way from Marseilles to Paris at the beginning of his exile. They asked a number of questions about the monarch and his actions.

Tonight the party dined informally at tables set up in one of the city's spacious parks. Tomorrow they will visit several establishments which handle Burgundy wines. Later in the day the mayors will leave by train for Nancy.

Texas Guinan Near Collapse; Pushes Fight to Enter France

HAVRE, France, May 31.—(AP)—Far from the bright lights of Broadway, Texas Guinan, traveling night club hostess, tonight was near collapse from the strain resulting from detention in the Hotel Trans-Atlantic here, which is being patrolled by French police and detectives.

The entertainer remained behind closed doors in her little room with three narrow beds and barred windows and refused to see all visitors.

"She is all worn out with strain and has a splitting headache," said "Bunny" Weldon, director of the Guinan horus and the party's spokesman. "She can't see anybody."

Permit to Enter Denied.

Meanwhile, Director Mourier of the surete generale police at the ministry of the interior in Paris, announced that Miss Guinan and her troupe of eighteen "Broadway belles" must leave France without putting on their performance in Paris. He added that pleas of Miss Guinan's friends had failed to alter the government's decision that they should not remain in France.

Rigid restrictions now have been placed on the movements of the party, which hitherto had been allowed comparative freedom.

Detectives at the hotel doors today refused to allow the girls to leave the building, which is maintained as a lodging place for deportees and emigrants. A trip to church, originally scheduled as today's only outing, was canceled.

"Gang" Begins to Show Strain.

With the last hope fading that permission will be given to enter Paris, members of the "gang" began to show the strain of their confinement and were becoming irritated with their routine life behind the barred windows nd their breakfast at 8 a. m., to which they are summoned by a gong.

"I could stand it if those bells were not forever clanging," one of the beauties wailed, expressing the general sentiment of the party, which huddled in fur coats as a protector against the cold, rainy weather.

When informed of the government's stand in Paris that she must leave, Miss Guinan said:

"Well, in the words of Coolidge, 'I do not choose to run.' I will not accept this as final until I receive word from my agents in Paris, as I have appealed to the minister of the interior to consider my case. Until I have word directly from him I have nothing more to say."

Kiwanis Boycott on Oleo Stirs U. S. Trade Board

Springfield, Mo., May 31.—[Special.]—Because the Kiwanis club of Springfield last winter launched a national movement to have the nation become more "butter conscious" by not using substitutes the government has sent John H. Bass, a representative of the federal trade commission, into the Ozarks to investigate reports of an alleged boycott against oleomargarine products.

NEW YORK BARS AUTO PARKING ON BROADWAY AREA

New York, May 31.—[Special.]—Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney announced today that parking on lower Broadway will be prohibited from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. under a regulation which becomes effective next Tuesday. The new regulation will be given a trial of one week, after which, if it proves successful, it will be made permanent.

The commissioner explained that the new parking rule is the result of a special survey by police department traffic officials of conditions in the downtown business district. Special consideration was given in this survey to the problem of facilitating and safeguarding the heavy flow of pedestrian traffic in the area.

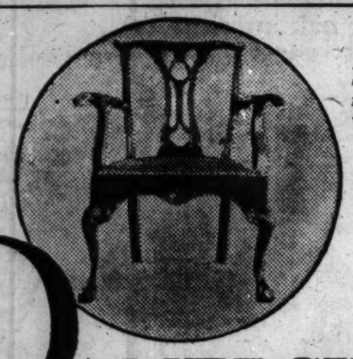
2. The workmanship has passed the critical test of being up to our "standard specifications."
3. They're extraordinarily well made for suits at $40. We firmly believe that it is impossible to find their equal in value at this price—and every suit has two pairs of trousers.

CARSON PIRIE SCOTT & CO



Everyone interested in Americana should be acquainted with the Gillingham chair, one of the greatest masterpieces ever produced by an American craftsman. An exact replica may be seen at the Danersk showrooms all this week.

DANERSK ANNOUNCES
an unusual event. An exhibition of rare furniture at which Master Craftsmen will actually be seen at work

During all this week, master carvers, chair makers, and cabinet-makers from our Connecticut shops will ply their hereditary craft at the Danersk showrooms at 620 North Michigan Avenue. This will afford you an unusual opportunity of going behind the scenes, perceiving the secrets of furniture making and learning what to look for in furniture construction. At the same time there will be exhibited some 30 pedigreed reproductions built by Danersk craftsmen. Included are replicas of the Gillingham chair—that sold at auction for $8500 several years ago—of George Washington's writing table, of the famous General Ephaphroditus Champion sideboard; of a rare McIntyre sofa, of Duncan Phyfe dining table and of other museum pieces revered by collectors and connoisseurs. You are cordially invited to attend. A corps of furniture experts will be on hand to guide you about and to explain the many interesting features of choice oldtime craftsmanship.

IMPORTANT!
To all persons registering as visitors at this exhibition, we will extend a discount of 25% on orders placed within 30 days from date of the visit on floor merchandise.

Here's one of the many Danersk craftsmen whose father, grandfather, and great-grandfather all worked at the same trade. If you're interested in learning the fine points of cabinet-making, watch this man and ask him any questions you will.

To watch a master carver at work is as interesting and informative as to observe a painting evolve from the brush of a skilled artist.

This cabinet-maker, who will be at the Danersk showrooms all week, learned his trade in Scotland and England, where he served many years of apprenticeship without pay, until the guild conceded that he had truly become a master of his craft.

After spending a few minutes studying the different methods of joinery used in furniture making, you will be vastly better qualified to appraise the value of furniture, and to choose more wisely in making your furniture purchases.

BOMBS EXPLODE AT CHURCHES ON POPE'S BIRTHDAY

Vatican Charges Priests Are Slapped in Raids.

grounds are property managed by their organization for Roman children regardless of creed, at a cost of $75,000 a year, that the playgrounds have no connection with the church, and that the Italian government has no right to close them.

Pope Denounces Fascists.

VATICAN CITY, May 31.—(AP)—Proclaiming his reliance on the Vatican treaty and the concordat for a solution of the present difficulties between the Vatican and the Italian government, Pope Pius XI. today described the events of the last two or three days as "the first manifestation of proof of an education that is the antithesis of Christian and civil education and entirely given to hate, to irreverence and to violence."

"We have not lost one day," he said, "in appreciating the inestimable benefits of the establishment of religious instruction in schools—an education that should also be educational.

"But there has begun too soon the destruction with the left hand of that which the right hand had built and which, it was said, it was desired to build. It is a sad spectacle to which Rome and Italy have been treated and it has revealed already how far advanced is the work of destruction of all good education."

Pope's 74th Birthday.

The pope spoke of today, his 74th birthday, as "sad and unhappy" because of "grave griefs that greeted me yesterday in that which has been and is most precious to us—the Catholic Action society, and particularly the juvenile and universities groups.

"It is well known that we have the right and therefore the duty to invoke the treaty and the concordat," he said. "The Catholic world, and the whole world, has a right to be informed that when we were confronted with opposition and nonobservance of eventual unilateral decisions we have not failed to take the proper measures and that these measures are now in progress.

"But this cannot prevent the bishop of Rome and primate of Italy from protesting immediately against that which happened yesterday and the manner in which it was allowed to happen.

Refuses to Be Silent.

"As we said last night, one can ask for our life, but not our silence, when all the things that form the delight of our heart and the delight of God are being ruined."

These things are being ruined, the pontiff said, because in Fascist Italy "even the least parochial bulletin must undergo censorship."

"First there was the press campaign," he said, "based on irreverence and calumnies; then another street campaign also based on irreverence and veritable indecency, overpowering with violence and cruelty, of the few by the many, always to the injury of our sons and even of our daughters.

Expected Different Treatment.

"This campaign, thus prepared, broke yesterday on the Catholic associations of all of Italy with incredible suddenness, with invasions, confiscations, and sequestrations, while the night before our nuncio and our representative was told that there was nothing to be said to him.

"We thought, and we still think, that we deserved a very different treatment."

Italy and its government, he asserted, were honored in his encyclical on marriage. Again, he said in an open letter to the archbishop of Milan, he had invoked coöperation.

Finally, he said, in his recent encyclical he noted "with pleasure Italy's coöperative movement" and added:

"The whole world knows how we were treated regarding that which is nearest to our hearts, and which we have often shown is religious and not political in character."

SENATOR INJURED

SENATOR K. D. M'KELLAR.
[Associated Press Photo.]

Memphis, Tenn., May 31.—(AP)—Senator K. D. McKellar of Tennessee suffered fracture of four ribs and cuts and bruises, and A. H. Lawo, Memphis business man, also was cut and bruised as their automobile ran off a highway near Covington, Tenn., late today and overturned. The accident was Senator McKellar's second within a few months. He was severely hurt Oct. 3, last, when his car was wrecked near Lawton, Okla.

Senator McKellar and Mr. Lawo were on their way to Dyersburg, Tenn., where the senator was to have delivered a Memorial day address.

CUBAN PRESIDENT WILLING TO CUT TERM TWO YEARS

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, May 31.—The consolidated plan for the reform of the constitution, looked upon by its supporters as the only way out of Cuba's present political quagmire, has been completed and will be made public tomorrow when congress resumes its sessions.

The plan is understood to have the approval of President Machado and to contain the greatest concession he is willing to make—that the provisions for new elections in 1932, which would result in his sacrificing two years of the term he is now serving and leave office in 1933 instead of 1935. The continuance of Machado in office for six years following his first term of four years has been one of the points around which the bitterest criticism of the present government has centered.

Curtailing the terms of the president, senators, and congressmen and for election of all national, provincial, and municipal officers in 1932 are its important features politically, but it will also provide for reform of the judiciary by means of jury trial.

Despite optimistic statements today it is generally felt that there is little chance of this or any other plan of constitutional reform passing. The members of the opposition oppose it because it leaves their political enemies in power two years more, while they want them out at once.

CATHOLIC PARADES ATTACKED; SEVERAL HURT IN SCOTLAND

GLASGOW, Scotland, May 31.—(AP)—Several persons were seriously injured today in a clash between Catholics and others in various places in Lanarkshire on the occasion of the annual May Catholic procession.

At Mossend a large Catholic procession, including many children, was attacked and stones were thrown at a statute of the Virgin Mary.

Another clash occurred at Bells hill, near Carfin, in which several hundred participated.

A procession of 10,000 Catholics in the Gallegate district of Glasgow was attacked and several hundred were involved in the fight. Strong forces of mounted and foot police rushed to the scene and quelled the disturbance.

Plane Forced Down; Lands in Tree; Two Flyers Hurt

Uniontown, Pa., May 31.—(AP)—Two Indiana National Guard flyers were injured in the mountains near here today when their plan cracked up in an attempted forced landing. The men, Capt. Matt Carpenter and Sergt. Ira Lee, were brought to a hospital here suffering from lacerations of the head. The plane came down in a tree on a golf course and was badly damaged. Golfers aided the aviators in freeing themselves from the wreckage. Both men are from Indianapolis.

SPAIN RADICALS REFUSE TO JOIN RED ALLIANCE

Syndicalist Masses Come to Republic's Aid.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, May 31.—Almost imperceptibly the skies, so bright at first, have darkened for the young Spanish republic. But one cloud, it seemed tonight from the declarations of Angel Pescana, formidable leader of the syndicalist movement, is not as black as it looks.

INDALECIO PRIETO.
[Acme Photo.]

The fear of an alliance between the syndicalist masses and communist brains and money to sink the republic in disorder and establish some kind of a dictatorship of the proletariat has done much to keep the burghers awake nights and frighten money across the frontier. Which thing, in part, explains the alarming fall of the peseta which has hit new low levels.

Comes to Aid of Republic.

Pescana says this is nonsense in a sensational statement, the first he has made since the formation of the republic. The syndicalists will hold their congress on June 9 at Madrid, the stronghold of their enemies, the Socialists. Being opposed to all political action, they have no candidates for the constituent assembly, but by repudiating violence at this moment in order to accomplish a social revolution and scoffing at any alliance with the communists, Pescana practically comes to the aid of the republic.

"Spanish communism is of slight importance and to us state socialism, at least as practiced in Russia, does not appear to be a solution," Pescana said.

Pescana's name is magic and strong drink to the rancorous proletariat of Barcelona, to the sullen miners of the Asturias, to the impassioned half-starved peasants of Andalusia, who have never "seen the right side of an institution."

"We are as far from the Muscovite dogmas as from that of the Socialist second internationale," Pescana said. "A dictatorship of the proletariat is continually mentioned. We want no dictatorship. The workers must be educated for freedom, not tyranny. The syndicate is the solution.

Social Revolution Looms.

"A political revolution has been accomplished in Spain. Next should come a social revolution. The Russian revolution failed because it was more political than social. We will concentrate our efforts on educating the proletariat. Our iron discipline, the Spanish laborer, despite his innate individualism, accepts gladly.

"The communists have a nucleus at Seville and Malaga, where they seem to work in conjunction with syndicalism. But Andalusia is ours. The miners of the north are rapidly coming into the ranks of our confederation of labor [as opposed to the Socialist general union of labor]. We count on strength from Galicia, Aragon, Navarre, and Madrid."

Despite the assurance of the ministers of the provisional government that they are bound by their concerted pact to stick together until a parliament is elected in July, it is believed that there will be, nevertheless several changes. Indalecio Prieto, minister of finance, whose heart has been broken to see all his drastic measures to keep money at home, is driving it out instead with disastrous effects on the peseta, today issued a declaration of faith.

He told how his colleagues would not let him step down. Then he swore that the peseta was sound, pointing out that Spain was the only country in the world that could redeem its entire paper circulation in gold, declaring that two billion pesetas worth of the yellow metal were left over and 700 billions in silver.

Village Elections Held.

MADRID, May 31.—(AP)—Many Spanish towns and villages held elections for municipal council today. Only local issues were involved and in most cases there were no anti-government candidates. None of the larger cities voted because most of them already have former their councils.

Dispatches from the town of Zarza de Alange told of political disturbances there last night, when attempts were made to interrupt a republican meeting. Pistols were fired by both sides and six persons were injured. Two persons were seriously injured in municipal council election riots in the village of Rio Tuero, near Santander, today, when opponents stormed the polls because the republican socialist coalition was winning.

The Supreme court today dismissed the charges filed against former King Alfonso by the district attorney and Hernando Galan, brother of Capt. Galan, who was executed following upon the December revolt at Jaca. The petition charged the former king with coresponsibility for Capt. Galan's death. The Supreme court declared the case must be presented before a military court.

TEAGUE RETIRES; SAYS FARM BOARD WAS DEMANDED

Co-operative Marketing Put on Its Feet.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 31.—[Special.]—In a letter tendering his resignation, effective today, and made public at the White House today, Charles C. Teague, vice chairman of the federal farm board, assured President Hoover that the board had fully justified itself and its cost to the taxpayers.

C. C. TEAGUE.
[(C) Harris & Ewing Photo.]

Without the help of the board and its half billion revolving fund many farmers' cooperatives must have crashed in the general economic depression, asserted Mr. Teague, who comes from California, has represented the fruit industry on the board, and has been influential in passing on the loans to the California vineyardists.

He defended the board's "emergency operations" in stabilizing wheat and cotton and the board's methods in handling its fund.

"It has, of course, been impossible to be helpful under these most difficult and trying conditions without at times taking some chances of loss to the revolving fund," Mr. Teague declared.

"Not a Trust Fund."

"Had it been administered as a banking trust or fund it would have been of little help to agriculture under existing conditions. I am frank to say that when I accepted your request to become a mamber of the board I had some misgivings as to the possibility of too much importance being attached to the revolving fund and the loan provisions of the act, as I had the very definite conviction that the greatest benefits would come from federal sanction and assistance in the developing of a cooperative marketing system for agriculture.

"There are two distinct methods of stabilizing markets," he pointed out. "Probably the one that has been emphasized most in publicity has been the stabilization operations on wheat and cotton, which were entirely emergency operations undertaken to meet emergency conditions and which I believe are entirely justified and which will have resulted in benefits to agriculture and business generally far outweighing any cost to the treasury.

"However, in my judgment the greatest benefit will come through another type of stabilization of markets which will come through the long time project of developing a system of cooperative control of agricultural products, which will effect a better control of production and a better control of distribution and thus have an important influence in the stabilization of markets."

Kept Free of Politics.

Mr. Teague was one of the board's original members. His term expired last June but at the President's request he stayed on for another year.

"It was indeed fortunate," Mr. Teague wrote, "that during the present serious economic condition the farmers have had this important legislation, with adequate finances and administered by a group of men of your selection who have had such a sympathetic attitude toward the problems of agriculture. In the time that I have been on the board I have never observed any action influenced by section or politics. The board has always sought for the most helpful solution of any problem presented.

"As these facts become better understood by agricultural producers and the public I believe they will recognize the importance of rallying to the support of the board and of the agricultural marketing act."

CANNON ASSERTS NYE LACKS RIGHT TO QUESTION HIM

Washington, D. C., May 31.—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon Jr. today challenged on three points the right of the senate campaign funds committee to investigate his use of anti-Smith funds in 1928.

In a letter today to Chairman Nye of the committee Bishop Cannon denied his campaign organization had taken part in congressional elections.

He said the committee had no authority to investigate charges of crime and asserted the corrupt practices act, which he has been charged with violating, is unconstitutional.

Bishop Cannon in his letter contended the investigating resolution authorizing creation of the committee had only authorized it to investigate senatorial elections. He added the sole purpose of his 1928 organization had been to defeat the Democratic presidential candidate, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

Nye, in the recent hearing, placed in the record the call for the Asheville conference at which the anti-Smith movement was organized, indicating it was also designed to aid in the election of dry Democratic senatorial and congressional candidates.

"It is true," Bishop Cannon said, "that the Asheville conference was called for the purpose indicated in the statement you read, but it is not true that the headquarters committee of the anti-Smith Democrats was organized or operated to elect dry Democratic senators and congressmen. That was left to the workers in the several states."

BROWN QUITS AS EXTRA GOVERNOR OF VIRGIN ISLES

Results from Tiff with Real Executive.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 31.—[Special.]—As the result of a tiff between Dr. Paul Pearson, governor of the Virgin islands, and Herbert D. Brown, chief of the United States bureau of efficiency, this island group has returned to a one governor basis, at least for the present. For the better part of the last two years Mr. Brown has shared in the administration of the islands, with the result that they have had, in effect, two governors, one at St. Thomas and the other at St. Croix.

HERBERT BROWN. [(C) Harris & Ewing Photo.]

The complicated and unique administrative situation which gave two administrators to a group of islands of so little economic importance that President Hoover referred to it as "an effective poorhouse" during his Caribbean vacation, developed when congressional committees asked Mr. Brown to investigate in 1929. The committees particularly desired information which would aid in reducing the appropriations voted annually by this country for island expenditures.

He Spends the Money.

Mr. Brown made three trips in all to the Virgin islands, spending about nine months there. After the first he obtained $141,000 to be expended under his sole direction on a program he recommended. This stirred up trouble between Brown and Capt. Waldo Evans, the naval governor, when the efficiency expert returned to the islands to spend the money. On his return to Washington last winter after his second trip, Mr. Brown recommended transfer of the islands to the interior department. When this was done, Mr. Brown again returned to the islands to aid the new governor and the interior department.

Friction developed. As his authority to hold the purse strings on a large portion of the funds voted for expenditure in the islands was canceled with the transfer to the interior department, Mr. Brown was unable to carry out his program just as he desired. The trouble increased and the efficiency expert returned to Washington and talked the matter over with President Hoover.

Wanted Pearson Replaced.

Notwithstanding the circumstance that Dr. Pearson was hand picked for the governorship by Mr. Brown, it was reported today that the efficiency expert suggested to the President that the present governor be replaced. The interior department has lined up behind Dr. Pearson, and it is not considered likely that the President will take any action without the recommendation of Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur. Reports have circulated that Mr. Brown would now like to have the islands turned over to the department of agriculture.

It is now possible that the Virgin island situation will be further aired when congress convenes in December. Whether Mr. Brown will make an effort to secure congressional support for his program at that time has not been disclosed. It is also considered possible that some congressmen may evince interest in the encroachment by the legislative branch in the preserves of the executive as represented by the sending of Brown to the Virgin islands with authority to administer funds.

How It Started.

Mr. Brown's authority to exercise an administrative function in the expenditure of money originated in this way. Brown wanted the money without any strings attached to it so he would be able to carry out his program unhindered by Capt. Evans. Chairman Burton L. French [Rep., Idaho] of the naval subcommittee of the house appropriations committee and a number of other congressmen wanted him to have this money. Not wishing to put Mr. Brown's name in the naval appropriation bill they conceived the idea of writing a letter to President Hoover recommending that Brown be given exclusive authority to spend the $141,000 item. When the President apparently acquiesced Mr. Brown went to the Island of St. Croix.

15 Canadian Yachts, Leased to Americans, Seized by U. S.

Detroit, Mich., May 31.—[Special]—Fifteen class C sailboats, owned by the St. Clair Yacht club of Ontario and most of them listed as under lease to prominent Detroiters flying the burgee of the Grosse Pointe club, were impounded by United States customs agents pending inquiry into their status under customs regulations. The boats were to have participated in the Memorial day regatta at the Detroit Yacht club.

Among those listed as holding leases on the boats are Edsel Ford, John S. Newberry, Charles B. Warren, Phelps Newberry, Dr. A. F. Jennings, E. E. MacCrone, and D. Dwight Douglas.

Col. H. A. Pickert, collector of customs, described the seizure as technical. "Certain requirements as to bond have not been complied with and I anticipate these will be straightened out," Col. Pickert said today. "I have not yet received the official report of my men and can comment no further."

The boats, according to regatta officials, were constructed two years ago at a Georgian bay port, shipped to Windsor and launched. They are pleasure craft, described by yachtsmen as between dinghy and catboat dimensions. The customs agents' seizures were unexpected and the occasion of no slight criticism.

Hawks Reaches Denmark on "Cannonball Flight"

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, May 31.—(AP)—Capt. Frank Hawks, American aviator, who left Le Bourget field at 11:52 a. m. today on a "cannonball flight" from Paris to Copenhagen, Amsterdam, Basel, Rome and back to Paris, arrived here at 6:12 p. m. The American speed flyer will hop off tomorrow on the next leg of the trip to Amsterdam. He made one stop at Hamburg on today's flight.

U. S. TO QUESTION RAID CAPTIVES ON CAPONE INCOME

Five men and four women arrested in Saturday night raids by government agents and police of the state's attorney's staff were being held yesterday for questioning by A. P. Madden, chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of internal revenue, regarding their knowledge of the income of Alphonse Capone.

The raiders took slot machines, and quantities of beer and whisky in the raids, which were at the following places: Shadow inn, 3939 Harlem avenue; the Prague inn, 4023 Harlem avenue; the Harlem inn, Harlem avenue and 45th street, and the Stockade, all in Stickney. The Stockade, formerly a Capone brothel, was vacant. Those under arrest gave their names as John Dallas, Thomas Kelly, Charles Basa, Jack Carroll, Louis Cosentino, Gladys Gray, Rae Count, Jean Roff, and Shirley Brown.

THE STAR DRAG.

The draft of an ordinance is being prepared in the corporation counsel's office to restrict the use of automobile stars to elected and appointed officials. The purpose is to prevent the misuse of emblems by the species of trash which has sought petty privilege and special consideration by sticking some gaud on their cars. The various officials who can abet this cheap procedure by giving a sort of authority for it have been wide open to requests for it and a public nuisance has been the consequence.

It is a conventional idea that officials need stars on their automobiles and the proposed ordinance evidently will adopt it. There is no excuse even for that. The fire chief does not need a star to get through the fire lines or for any other purpose. The chief of police is not aided in the performance of duty by an emblem on his automobile. Mr. Cermak doesn't need one. Any identification which an automobile required should be printed on it, as: "Bureau of Streets, Department of Public Works." That will indicate public property and public service and it is all any department or any official needs. If an alderman requires an identification of his automobile it can be stamped on the side of it. He won't want it whether he needs it or not.

Furthermore it should be required that cars bought out of appropriations have their departmental services indicated on them. If the detective department can prove an exception it should present evidence. A pretense of public service should be backed up by a definition of it plainly lettered and there will not be so much public service performed in no parking areas, in front of roadhouses, and in violation of traffic laws.

The sensible ordinance to end the nuisance would prohibit the use of any emblems indicating authority. A garbage wagon is lettered as such. "The City of Chicago" on the side of a car will disclose the authority of the person in it, if he has any. "The Lincoln Park District" will satisfy any official purposes of the president of the Lincoln park board.

THE DEMON RUM IN WASHINGTON.

The Washington police are raiding places known to be purveying to the wayward fancies of the inhabitants of the capital, thus interfering with the gambling, drinking, and other unsocial diversions of the semi-citizenship. The recent homicide spurt brought about this conventional police activity, but the authorities say there are no gangs operating in Washington. It's merely carefree human nature untamed by Volstead, excited by knowledge of diplomatic immunities and ambassadorial cellars and craving not the good life indicated by the reform lobbies, but something out of the book of Anak.

Such an idea of Washington behavior may be explained to the marines if any will listen to it. The social lawlessness of the capital is like such lawlessness in other large cities. It is profitable and therefore it is organized. It cannot run without political protection and therefore it gets protection. Such protection is not gratuitous. It is extended for valuable considerations, generally money. Washington is a complex of federal government and the country's model exhibit of paternalism. It might be interesting to know what papas are getting the money involved, the organization and operation of liquor traffic, gambling, and other diversions which social law tries to prohibit. The thing doesn't work by one rule in Washington and another everywhere else.

GENERALS IN THE AIR.

One incident of the airplane maneuvers over Boston is worthy of special comment. The chief of staff of the army, Gen. MacArthur, flew at the head of the line.

That was quite characteristic of Douglas MacArthur, a fighting combat leader in the late war. But we think it had a wider than any personal significance. Efficient leadership in the wars of the future is going to bring the high commanders into the fighting. The theory that the higher direction of operations must be carried on by absentee lords of battle will not survive. It does not produce competence. Not only is the inspiration of the leader's presence with his fighting men required, but also a first hand acquaintance with conditions at the front. Neither can be had by proxy.

Combat is not chess. Victory is not a problem to be worked out in a blue print. Battle is a complex of physical and above all else of moral force. That is a military truism and we need not quote Napoleon in its support. But it is a truism more honored in the breach than in the observance in the late war. Riddell-Hart tells how the high British officer who had insisted upon the murderous futility of Paschendasle burst into tears when, after the sacrifice of thousands of men, he visited the impossible terrain and saw with his own eyes what he had ordered the troops to do. There was too much commanding with inadequate knowledge of the problems to be solved in the late war, and in all armies. That kept the mortality of generals low and that of privates and company officers high.

Generals are not supermen or staff officers in possession of second sight. It is not science to treat battle as if it were a problem of mathematics or statistics. The issue of battle is determined on the field and not in the closet of a general miles away from the front. Efficient generalship will be in the thick of the conflict, to know its conditions at first hand and to meet the fluctuating fortunes of battle as they appear.

The generals of the future will not remain on the ground and far from the front. They will be often in their planes to survey the field of action and their presence there and along the lines will restore to them their true leadership over fighting men. The great commanders of the past were not mere names but personalities to the least of their men, sharing their dangers and knowing intimately their problems and difficulties. The expansion of armies and the complications of their vast organization do not relieve the commander from the prime duty of leadership, and mere direction is not leadership.

CHARITY BY POLITICIANS.

The Wisconsin legislature proposes a five million dollar surtax for statewide charity.

This appears to be unnecessary enthusiasm, not unnatural, however, in view of the depression, notwithstanding it seems to have struck bottom and therefore must mend.

Everybody nowadays is getting himself appointed guardian ad litem for business and unemployment.

We forget that business always has a way of taking care of itself; that it has a rebuilding power of its own. Consumption, deterioration, the natural forces of destruction and the ambitions of men to succeed unite in a coördinating force that automatically sets business activity on its way. Resolutions and acts of congress or legislatures, national and world conferences, political declarations may help some, but alone are futile.

The state, cities, villages and towns of Wisconsin have extended and are extending the legitimate powers of government in aid of unemployment. Under these influences, witness public building, public improvements, transportation and public service expansions, together with a tremendous effort of all the business interests of the country for the relief of unemployment.

The powers of government being necessarily limited in this respect, the responsibility beyond this to relieve distress rests upon those able to do so in the industrial centers of the state and they are now and have been willing to accept this responsibility and are carrying it out ungrudgingly by local public employments, contributions, charitable associations, civic and central associations, churches, and in numerous other ways.

There is no need for legislative appropriations for charitable purposes. The bill being considered proposes an increase on every income tax and would hand it over to towns, cities and villages for employment on public works or "for relief and support of unemployed workmen and their families."

The tax will be paid of course by all the people in the state directly or indirectly; mostly by the industries and the large business concerns. The tax burden for charity in the industrial centers will fall more heavily on labor than any other class of people because it is an assault upon the market for labor.

EXPERTS IN SANITY TRIALS.

A legislative effort to put expert testimony in insanity trials upon a better foundation has recently been upheld by the Supreme court of Wisconsin. The act tested authorizes a trial court in a criminal case in which the issue of insanity has been raised to appoint not more than three disinterested specialists to testify at the trial. The evil in present practice is that expert witnesses are chosen by each side. This right is not foreclosed by the Wisconsin statute. Notice of the appointment of experts by the court is provided for and such experts are subject to cross-examination by the prosecution and the defense. The court's experts are to be paid by the county.

The reason for the appointment of experts by the court is that neither side is likely to employ a witness who is not favorable. As Prof. Wigmore says in his work on Evidence, such witnesses are likely to be influenced by "prior consultation with the party and his self-committal to a particular view. His candid scientific opinion thus has had no fair opportunity of expression, or even formation, swerved as he is by this partisan committal."

Most of the decisions holding against the appointment of such witnesses by the court are in states which had no statutes authorizing the court to act, although in a discussion by L. S. Jacobson of the University of Chicago in the Illinois Law Review attention is called to the case of State vs. Horne, in which the North Carolina Supreme court held the appointment of expert alienists by the court to be constitutional in the absence of any statute, even though under North Carolina procedure the court is not authorized to comment upon the evidence.

The Illinois Supreme court has held the court without power to appoint, but in view of the well reasoned Wisconsin decision it may be hoped that if a similar statute were enacted in Illinois it would be held. Prof. Wigmore recommends that statutes providing for court appointment be passed in each state. The present situation is highly undesirable and it is suggested that the Illinois legislature take it under consideration and enact a law like that of Wisconsin.

Editorial of the Day

THE MAN OF THE HOUR.

[The New York Sun.]

In an article on "Medical Fakes and Fakirs" in Your Health Magazine Dr. Ernest Risley Eaton submits this list of ills and hurts that one single patent medicine is advertised to cure alone and unassisted:

Asthma, abrasions, abscesses; bites, boils, bruises, bunions, bronchitis, blood poison, bowel troubles; catarrh, colds, cramps, chafings, chilblains, corns, carbuncles, cuts, chapped hands, chapped lips; discolorations; earache, eczema; face ache, frost bites, foot soreness; inflammations; joint soreness; lame back, lumbago, loss of voice; mosquito bites, neuralgia, nose bleed; piles, pruritus, poison ivy, poison oak, prickly heat; quinsy; rheumatism, rose colds, razor rash; salt rheum, stiffness, sprains, styes, scalds, sunburn, sore eyes, sore feet, sore throat, sore nipples, sciatica, stings of insects, stomach trouble; tonsilitis, toothache, tetter, throat trouble; ulceration, urinary trouble; varicose veins; wounds.

The gifted author of this list of human ailments remediable by one prescription should not be confined in his beneficent activities to the field of physical impairments and diseases. Plainly, he is the man to cure the depression that now afflicts the body politic. President Hoover should search him out and enshrine him in a commission.

How to Keep Well By Dr. W. A. Evans

HOT WEATHER CLOTHING.

MR. TUPPER, speaking of the customs of the Chileans, said they wore black clothing. The cloth was rather heavy, the weave was likely to be fairly tight, and in it there was liable to be some wool mixed with more cotton. The men wear rather heavy black hats and the women some sort of a black head shawl or mantilla.

This practice, so productive of discomfort, is a product of their mourning customs. They mourn for a deceased relative for a period of two years and, since the families are large and extend as far as cousins about three times removed, and since the death rate is high, the mourning periods overlap, and mourning clothes, once assumed, are never escaped from. The interest is so high the debt never gets paid. Soon everybody is in black and fashion issues an edict that other dressing is not allowed.

Whatever the reason, the habit of wearing black dresses and black headwear is general among peoples of Spanish origin in America. Since so many thousand Mexicans have moved among us in recent years we are having the custom displayed under our eyes. We hope our Mexican newcomers will learn much of our ways, and they will.

We hope they will shortly drop this black dress, black headgear custom. If they are to hold their own among the masses of our population they must find ways to lessen their death rates and their sickness rates, and to make themselves more comfortable. These black garments cannot be comfortable in hot weather. Black absorbs heat from sunlight. The person who goes abroad on a hot day wearing black clothes will either have his temperature go up or else he will overwork his cooling apparatus to keep it down.

Not only is the color of such garments against them but they are too heavy, they are too closely woven, and they contain too much wool. Nor are they built according to designs that promote comfort. Finally, they cannot be kept clean.

The field laborers in hot countries, in the very countries from which these people come, have taught the world just the proper garment to wear for hot weather comfort. It is of cotton, is light in weight, open in weave, and white in color. It is made into two garments—a shirt [with the tail worn out, making a blouse], and the trousers loose at the bottom and not very tight at the middle. However, Mexican and other Spanish-American women are not permitted by custom to follow this example set by their fellow countrymen.

YOUR METHOD IS GOOD.

M. D. writes: There are a number of holes at each side of my throat which are continually being stopped up with hard, yellowish particles of matter that have an unpleasant odor. I loosen these particles with a small wooden stick especially reserved for this purpose.

1. What is the cause of this disorder?
2. How can it be cured?

REPLY.

1. You have found new names for an old disorder, and new terms for part of the tonsils. These cheesy masses of food and other stuff that gather in pockets of the tonsils do no great harm, though they are not nice.

2. I think your method is as good as any. There is an operation or two for the trouble, but the game is not worth the candle.

DEPENDS ON THE TROUBLE.

Miss C. A. G. writes: I am very active in sports, such as golf, swimming, tennis, and horseback riding. I have just recently been informed by our physician that I have kidney trouble. Would any of these sports be injurious, especially horseback riding, in this case? I am 20 years old.

REPLY.

All depends on what kind of kidney trouble you have.

EXPENSIVE LUXURY.

CHICAGO.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I bought a car from a finance company and couldn't keep up the payments. I wanted to return the car but they don't want it. They have a judgment on my father's property and won't give me a clear title on the car. I want to sell the car. I can't keep up the garage rent but they won't let me sell it. What can I do? Can I sell the car? I've had it about 2 years. W. A.

Your rights depend upon the wording of your contract. It probably entitles the vendor to seize the car in the event of your default, sell for your account, and hold you for the deficiency, or if he chooses he can leave the car in your possession and take judgment for the whole balance due.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FLYING STONES.

CHICAGO.—[Friend of the People.]—Some time ago when some safety zones were installed in our block on South Ashland avenue, the city workers left some stones in the roadway. These have been brushed to the curb. Automobiles drive over them and the stones are thrown against my store windows. Believe it or not, I have had five windows broken in a short time from these flying stones. MRS. A. M.

In reply to the complaint that stones were left in front of the premises after the installation of safety zones at this location, an investigation is being made and if it discloses that the stones were left by this department an order will be issued for their immediate removal. F. M. O'DONNELL, Acting Commissioner of Gas and Electricity.

CASHIER'S CHECK.

Chicago, May 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—On April 11 I purchased a cashier's check at a bank which failed to open its doors on April 13. I sent the check to La Grange to pay my taxes. I received a letter from the town collector stating that the check has been returned to him with the notation, "bank closed." He requests me to return to him the receipted tax bill, as my taxes still remain unpaid. 1. Isn't the bank responsible for this check? 2. Is it not up to the town collector, or the county, to force collection on this check from the bank? 3. Are my taxes paid, inasmuch as I hold a receipt for same? 4. Is this not embezzlement? 5. Is this a matter for the state's attorney's office? H. E. W.

1. The holder of the check would be entitled only to the same dividend as other creditors of the bank.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

A CRITICAL CLUSTER.

Friend, before you have begun,
Lest you say when you have done,
With a smile or with a glower,
"Well, her grapes are very sour,"
Let me save myself a scar
And assure you that they are.

CARL SANDBURG.

Ah, now I think my Muse is sent
Too far beyond her element,
And after being gone awhile
Will come and say—with puckered smile
As if her mouth were full of lemons—
The thing the sapient Sam'l Clemens
Said of a cat-fight's horrid clamor:
"It's not the noises; it's the grammar!"

EZRA POUND.

I saw a man the other day
Attempt to read this poet's lay;
I heard him mutter as he passed,
"Well, what's it all about at last."
Poor wight, I know not where he went;
I pray he may be compos ment',
But sorely fear he lost the scrimmage
And choked upon a far-fetched image.
What laid this wretch beneath the sod
None but the poet knows—and God;
But though the theme was never found,
The chances are 'twas Mr. Pound.

ROBERT FROST.

Kommen wir to Mr. Frost;
The more he finds, the more he's lost.
He stands before a shrieking gale
With rain and wind and sleet and hail
And—well, what have you?—ice, and snow,
And feeling all his soul aglow,
And seeing here at last a chance
For all his heart's exuberance,
Lifts an impassioned voice—to say
"The wind is somewhat strong today."
Ah, well, God give us more like that
Than of the kind whose song is fat
With borrowed juice, with borrowed rhyme,
With borrowed hues, with borrowed time,
With borrowed pulse, with borrowed strains,
With everything but borrowed brains.
This granite soul of Northern chill,
Though frugal as an Alpine hill,
Will never lift a single tone
From any voice except his own.
The listener with a Spartan spine
As sturdy as a Hampshire pine
May well exult, may well rejoice
To hear so clear and clean a voice.
It may be true—some poet sings
It often is of other things—
If you walk through his salted ice
Often enough, you'll find it nice.

EDWIN ARLINGTON ROBINSON.

Precious little's left of you,
Little songs, when he's been through,
What with trimming down your lines,
Brushing metre till it shines,
Changing all your adjectives,
Clipping ruffles off your sleeves,
Trying on your seventh title
(So I fancy) while you sidle,
Twitch and twist and wriggle, till he
Longs to leave you, willy-nilly,
Yet no bard more conscientious
Ever yearned to be licentious;
Though his heart be fain to loaf, he's Nature-bound to groom his strophes,
And although he curb your pleasure
Somewhat, with his rigid measure,
All his decent instincts balk
At the "newer freedom" talk;
Songs of his will never go
Wearing petticoats that show.
Little verses, do not quarrel;
Take a lesson from the squirrel;
He could show you what I mean—
How much better than the green
Is the ripened hickory-meat;
Full as sound, and twice as sweet.

EDNA ST. VINCENT MILLAY.

Alack, the task I set to do
Is here assailed, and breaks in two,
Since I am come upon a name
That quivers in me like a flame.
O summer-throated melodist,
O throbbing star amid the mist,
O golden singer, golden song,
I cannot tell where you belong;
I only know that all my heart
At thought of you is cleft apart,
And speaks to you the words that rise
With aching tears before my eyes:
The like of thee
Sings not nor blossoms.

DOROTHY KISSLING.

JUNE. AS CAL MIGHT WRITE IT.

This is the month of June. What is indeed so rare as a day in the month of June? At this time come perfect days, or if they do not then we could hardly expect them to come at all. June is the sixth month of the year of the Gregorian calendar. It is likewise the sixth month of the year of all the other calendars, including the one from the railroad company or the steamship line which hangs on your wall. It has thirty days.

June is a very pleasant month indeed. They often nominate the candidates for President in June. A year from this June they will nominate them. It is usual for a President serving his first term to be renominated by his party. However, it is not obligatory. The officeholders are usually quite enthusiastic about retaining the President in office, and the President himself is generally heartily in accord with the idea. However, as I have before intimated, there is no federal statute on the subject. Therefore, next June presents very great interest. However, this June has thirty days as usual. There is also the June bug, the June berry, Juneau, Alaska, and Alaska Juneau on the New York stock exchange. R. H. L.

SCARING THE GAME

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 1, 1915.

LONDON.—The Zeppelins have reached London. How many there are, over what section of the city they have flown, what damage has been done, cannot be told at this time. The strictest censorship is maintained to keep the enemy uninformed of the effect of his long expected raid over the British metropolis.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Wilson will send a rejoinder to Germany which will require a categorical answer to his demand that there shall be no recurrence of the killing of Americans and of attacks on American ships in the submarine war zone. The President is drafting a note and will submit it to his cabinet. Whether it will be an ultimatum fixing a time limit on the German answer has not been determined.

LONDON.—The great battle on the San, to which the Russians fell back after retreating over half of Galicia, still rages, but the Russians assert that they have assumed the offensive.

CHICAGO.—The body of Mrs. Catherine E. Willey, another Chicago Lusitania victim, reached New York on the steamer Lapland from Liverpool. Mrs. Willey was the mother of Mrs. Robert J. Thorne of Lake Forest, wife of the vice president of Montgomery Ward & Co. The body will be brought to Chicago and buried privately in Rosehill cemetery.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 1, 1901.

CHICAGO. — Nearly 1,800 machinists left their work and inaugurated the greatest machinists' strike Chicago has known for years. Twenty-four plants were tied up completely. It is expected to be a struggle to the death.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—At the cabinet meeting it was decided to notify the Cuban convention that its action on the Platt amendment is quite unsatisfactory to this government. In emphatic terms the Cubans will be given to understand they must accept the act of congress known as the Platt amendment or reject it.

COLUMBIA, S. C.—The resignations of Senators McLaurin and Tillman have been rejected by Gov. McSweeney. He holds it against the popular sentiment to force a bitter political campaign on the state in this, an off year. Unless the resignations are withdrawn he will appoint new men to the two seats. The two senators, bitter foes, resigned that they might go before the voters for "vindication."

BIEBER, Cal. — Five men were lynched at Lookout, Modoc county. They were Calvin Hall, 72 years old; his three halfbreed sons, 26, 19, and 16, and B. D. Yantis, 27 years old. The men had been suspected of petty stealing for some time and last Saturday they were arrested for stealing barbed wire. A mob of fifty men hanged them to a bridge.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 1, 1881.

NEW YORK.—An uncertain speculation ruled and stock circles were in a state approaching a fever by reason of the declaration made in the street that the "boom" had ended, at least for the present. Even the sanguine declared that the "boom" was off. Others, however, would have it that the decline was merely a neutral and healthy reaction; that the pools still had their holdings.

CHICAGO.—There were but few new developments in the Winnetka murder mystery. A TRIBUNE reporter visited Chief Carney of the Evanston police and took with him a powerful magnifying glass with which, if possible, to decipher the names upon the coat of the murdered man, who was found beheaded in Hubbards Woods.

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—The marriage of S. F. Fish of Chicago and Miss Helen Leopold, daughter of a prominent citizen of this city, was the most elaborate social affair of the season. The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Moses at the Temple Emmanuel. Then followed a grand reception and dance at the Plankinton. A. F. Leopold, father of the bride, is a member of the Chicago firm of Austrian & Leopold, owners of the Lake Superior Transportation company.

CHIVALRY.

Vicksburg, Miss., May 26.—A gathering of some 30 young men of the college type of this section—white serge, tweed knickers, and sport ensembles. Place—the town's one business street—in the busiest of its 5 blocks. Add one Negro dwarf, age uncertain, one of the village half wits, twisted in mind and in body, but dressed neatly in his second-hand suit, second-hand straw hat, and second-hand gaudy necktie.

The game was to tease, to plague with good nature. At least 200 darts of exploding matches were shot at this wretch amid screeches of laughter as they landed in his wool, in his face, or threatened his clothing.

To make it a successful party the ever handy claspknife of one of the gentlemen snipped his colorful necktie, the straw hat was crushed and then burned, while the unfortunate Negro blubbered his grief pitifully over loss of his "sport outfit," stung with dozens of tiny burns from the burning darts.

Wonderful young men, these village sports, with the big front and brains of morons. J. L. GORDON.

STRAIGHT ALCOHOL.

Peoria, Ill., May 20.—Surprised you haven't made more of this point in the Kirkland trial: Monday's papers quote Barton, 21 year old school boy, as testifying he had six glasses of alcohol at the party! Arlene Draves had two alcohol and water highballs.

Of far more importance to the state and nation than the guilt or innocence of any one man or woman, whether murder or something less, is this revelation of straight alcohol drinking by representative younger people. These facts were only incidental testimony, not thought seriously of by the witnesses. No paper paid particular attention. Nonchalant alcohol drinking straight even shocks those of us who remember the saloon. That was one thing the saloon did not do—serve raw alcohol to youths of tender age or any one else.

What a subject for an editorial! For some hard thinking on the part of our one track minded business men and old ladies who live in a world of idealism of their own blindness created!

N. B. CHURCH.

THE PIONEER CEMETERY.

Niles, Ill., May 18.—In answer to the inquiry of A. G. T. in this section on May 7, 1931, regarding the pioneer cemetery on Waukegan road south of Dempster street: This cemetery is now under the supervision of the Calef family of Niles. The cemetery was founded and owned by William White, great-grandfather of the writer who, many years ago owned the farmhouse near by and many acres of land surrounding the cemetery. At the death of Mr. White the cemetery and part of the land came into the possession of his daughter, Mrs. Katherin Tiers of South Orange, N. J., and a half-sister of the writer's grandmother, Mrs. Mary A. Calef. This plot was considered a sort of a family burial ground, and most of those buried there are relatives of the original owner.

[Miss] KATHERINE CALEF.

EXPLAINING THE WHEAT SURPLUS.

Lakeport, N. H., May 25.—Just imagine that you were a big wheat grower and ordinarily planted about 10,000 acres of wheat and you had about 5,000 more that wasn't quite so good but would raise wheat in a pinch. Just at this time the government appropriated $500,000,000 to stabilize the price of wheat and cotton. It's still fresh in your memory what a few big traders with 35 to 50 millions cash were able to do in the pit. Now be honest: How much of the 15,000 acres would you have planted to wheat? Regardless of what you would have done, the wheat grower planted the whole 15,000.

In other countries they had their ear to the ground and, as $500,000,000 was a fabulous sum of money, they, in turn, planted the whole 15,000 acres. The tremendous surplus the world over was inevitable under average weather conditions. Wasn't it the $500,000,000 that was appropriated to help the farmer that hypnotized them into raising this unwieldy surplus that has undermined and shaken their very existence?

I often wonder if some of the small bankers in the south and southwest didn't have one eye on that $500,000,000 while making their cotton loans.

JOHN W. CALL.

THE REWARD OF THRIFT.

Chicago, May 26.—In your editorial of May 7 you quoted Mr. Traylor as saying that among others "the wage earner and salaried man who forgot thrift and lived beyond his means" contributed to the present conditions. I notice Mr. Traylor does not say anything about the wage earners and salaried men who did not live beyond their means but denied themselves any luxury and pleasures to save up for old age or hard times by putting money in the banks regularly only to see the banks close their doors.

I did not notice Mr. Traylor's bank coming to the help of the neighborhood banks, most of which could easily have been saved by getting temporary support by the large loop banks, thereby preserving their life savings to many thousands of people who would now, if they had their savings, gladly build and buy, thereby relieving unemployment for thousands.

Neither did Mr. Traylor say anything about the receivers of these banks who seem to manage that very little, if anything, is left for the depositors and who carefully avoid giving these depositors an inkling of what may be saved for them and when they can count on receiving it. WAGE EARNER.

A $3 GOLD COIN.

Fremont, O., May 22.—I was interested in reading a few days ago your article concerning a $3 bank note, held by one of your readers and thought possibly a $3 gold coin might be of general interest. I have one dated 1855 and have never seen another coin of this denomination. On the face there is the crowned head of a woman surrounded by 13 stars. It is different from any coin I have seen during many years of bank work. MAY V. ZBOINSKI.

RAISING A BOAT.

Chicago, May 28.—I sometimes wonder if our boasted progress is justified. It is taking longer to raise that sunken boat at the Clark street bridge than it did to put up one of the great skyscrapers that frown upon it. And should you wish to brush up on nautical knowledge, just mix with the sages on the bridge and learn how it should be done.

MOTOR CLUBS TO ASK CITY PAVING FOR CITY'S TAXES

Demand Fairer Use of Auto Fees.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

West Baden, Ind., May 31.—[Special.]—The keynote of the American Automobile association's annual convention, which opens here tomorrow, will be a declaration of policy advocating a concentration of road expenditures upon turban traffic facilities.

THOS. P. HENRY.

"Automobile owners in cities, large and small," said Thomas P. Henry of Detroit, president of the association, here tonight, "have been paying the bulk of the two billion dollars a year being collected annually for pavements. Yet the governments, national and state, have been spending the bulk of the money on rural roads.

"In the early days of the automobile this rural allocation of pavement expenditures was proper. Cities had serviceable streets, built for buggies and wagons. In the country there was no pavement and the roads were frequently impassable.

Country Taken Care Of.

"After years of rural construction and urban neglect we now find that the country has a fair system of pavements while traffic is mired on congested and dangerous, narrow and rough city streets. Yet most of the political bodies in charge of spending highway funds are continuing to give preference to country roads, denying urgent requirements of the centers of population that foot the bill.

"This unjust administration of road funds can be explained in several ways. State legislatures, which make appropriations and levy taxes, have been dominated by the agrarian vote. Furthermore, farmers have been so aggressive in their lobby for roads that tenancy in office in many districts has depended upon the delivery of concrete and the building of country roads has thus become a form of political patronage.

Municipalities Weary of System.

"This injustice to the motoring public, especially the city automobile owner who is taxed by a state for roads he seldom uses, has become so rank that municipalities have become aroused from their lethargy. The centers of population are being welded together by common suffering for a war against rural administration of highway funds. The ballot will be used against public officials who fail to heed to demands for municipal traffic improvements."

Mr. Henry gave this interview as president of an association of 1,053 automobile clubs with a million members. He did not speak without knowledge of his subject. The American Automobile association has just completed a five year study of current traffic needs and of taxation for pavements.

Reports on this study have a prominent part on the program of the convention, which will continue until Thursday. Approximately 400 delegates, representing motorists of every state in the union, will attend. Chicago is represented by a party from the Chicago Motor club, headed by Charles M. Hayes, president of the club and first vice president of the national association.

NEW YORK MAY ADOPT TEAR GAS NETWORK DEVICE FOR PRISONS

New York, May 31.—[Special.]—A novel device consisting of a network of pipes containing tear gas cartridges with secretly located outlets, designed to flood an entire section of a prison with gas in the event of an uprising or any disorder, is being considered by the state authorities, it became known today, for installation in the new mess halls of Auburn and Attion prisons.

State Architect William E. Haggard, who has supervision of the construction of the mess hall buildings, has been in conference with Commissioner Walter N. Thayer of corrections about the propect, and he admitted today that he has gone over the plans for each mess hall to determine how the pipes could be installed and how the outlets could be located without being subject to discovery by the prisoners.

PLACE WREATHS ON GRAVES OF U. S. DEAD IN LONDON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 31.—Memorial day was observed by a special service at the base of the monument of the American graves' section of the Brookwood cemetery here today. American and British flags flew from the monument and wreaths were placed by Albert Halstead, American consul-general, in behalf of the American Overseas Memorial association, as well as by representatives of the British legion, the Canadian high commissioner, the imperial war graves commission and other organizations. American and Canadian wreaths were also laid beside the British war memorial. Grenadier guards sounded "Last Post."

GOVERNOR GIVES CITY HOPE FOR SUPERHIGHWAY

Pledges State to Survey of Possibilities.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Gov. Emmerson has given James Simpson, chairman of the Chicago Plan commission, definite assurances that the proposed elevated superhighway, leading from the loop to the west or northwest, will be thoroughly investigated.

JAMES SIMPSON.

President Charles M. Hayes of the Chicago Motor club regards this promise of the governor as more definite progress than has heretofore been made towards a superhighway.

"The state highway department should make proper surveys and estimates of cost before a construction of such magnitude is undertaken," Gov. Emmerson wrote to Mr. Simpson. "The department during the next two years will make the necessary surveys and estimates so that the plan, if feasible, can be presented at the next session of the general assembly."

Opposes Legislation Now.

The governor does not approve of action by the present legislature. On that point he wrote:

"I dislike very much to disagree with your views in connection with this matter, but I feel that at this late date, when the road program has been made up for the coming biennium, it would not be practical to undertake to change it.

"It is my opinion further that before appropriations of millions of dollars are made proper surveys and estimates of cost made by the highway department should be a matter of record.

"When I became governor, I was in hearty sympathy with the theory that Chicago and Cook county had not received a fair proportion of the highway funds of the state, and for that reason stood for an appropriation of $19,000,000 for the metropolitan area at the general assembly two years ago.

"At that time Col. Hayes was enthusiastic about the widening of main arteries and of separated crossings, which program the department has attempted to carry out. It was also suggested at that time that the main highways of the state should be widened for many miles outside of the metropolitan area—a program which it seems to me is unnecessary at this time.

"However, should the suggestion of Col. Hayes be carried into effect, it would be necessary to delay the elevated highway in which you are interested.

"It is impossible to spend the same money for two purposes. The bond issue routes of the state should be practically completed during the next two years. It will then be a question for the general assembly to determine as to whether the gasoline tax shall be reduced or a proposition such as the elevated highways in which you are interested be undertaken.

"There is also a suggestion being made that an elevated highway should enter the loop from the southern boundaries of Chicago. Both of these are very desirable, but could probably not be financed at the same time."

In reply Chairman Simpson expressed his regret that "nothing can be done at this session of the legislature to enable partial use of the gasoline tax for Chicago superhighways."

He added that he is "very much pleased" that the governor will instruct his highway department to make the surveys and estimates of costs "covering the development of one or more elevated highways in Chicago."

"I hope you will also instruct the department," continued Mr. Simpson's letter, "to take full advantage of the cooperation and assistance which the Chicago plan commission is ready and willing to give, to the end that the department may save time, effort and money in making these surveys."

Lists Material Available.

Then Mr. Simpson listed the material already compiled by the commission which he said he would be pleased to place at the disposal of the state highway department, as follows:

"A report of the commission's technical staff covering the development of an elevated highway known as Avondale avenue, extending from the convergence of eight or ten state highways at the northwestern city limits diagonally through Chicago to the heart of the city.

"This report not only includes detailed plans of construction, complete estimates of cost and general design plans, but it also contains drawings showing how every piece of property and every building of whatsoever kind along the route will be affected, where the ramp incline connections to the normal street system can be made, and all other necessary details and data.

"A 228 page report of our committee on west side street improvements, with several hundred maps, charts, drawings, photographs, estimates of cost, traffic compilations and data covering a comprehensive study of the west side street situation as it exists and as it is expected to be in 1950.

"This report recommends three west side superhighways, Austin-Kinzie route, Monroe street, and Polk street.

North Side Route Tentative.

"We have detailed plans and surveys for a north and south superhighway extending from the southern city limits north to the loop by way of South Park and Indiana avenues. Our estimates of cost of this improvement are not complete, but probably will be so by the time the highway department might desire to have them."

Mr. Simpson also wrote that the study for a north and south superhighway, from the loop northward has not progressed beyond the point of tentatively selecting a route, which is usually referred to as Railroad avenue.

Mayor Cermak two months ago gave a general indorsement of the elevated highway plan for Chicago. He is expected to give this subject detailed consideration as soon as he finds a solution for the financial difficulties of the local governments.

LOSES JOB; KILLS HIMSELF.

Evansville, Ind., May 31.—[Special.]—Despondent over loss of his job as a laundry wagon driver, Frank Kell, age 44, committed suicide yesterday at Henderson, Ky., by drinking poison in a room over a café which he had rented for the purpose. He is survived by his widow and four children.

$3.60 Want Ad Sells $145 Worth of Antiques

"Last year I put an ad in the Chicago Tribune, 'For Sale—6 antique chairs,'" writes J. M. V., 607 N. Diamond, Jacksonville, Illinois. "I received several replies, and an antique buyer from Wisconsin came to see them. I had sold them for $100.00. She found a number of additional articles she wished to buy and paid me $45.00. Do you not think $145 a good return for an expenditure of $3.60?" This is a true story. It won a $5.00 prize for J. M. V. in the Tribune's recent True Want Ad Experience competition.

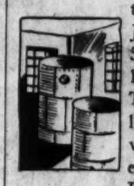
"White Elephants" Traded Through Want Ads

Two 12-foot iron tanks occupied valuable space in the garage of J. Paschke, 5339 S. Ashland Avenue. They were like the proverbial white elephants. Mr. Paschke no longer used them. He offered to give them away, but nobody wanted them. Even the junk man refused them as a gift! Just what to do with them Mr. Paschke didn't know until one day he found the solution to his problem in the Tribune Want Ad Section.



Tries Swapping

"One day I happened to be reading the Tribune Want Ads," said Mr. Paschke. "The column headed 'Barter and Exchange' caught my eye. I read over a few of the offers and reached for the telephone. I called the Tribune and dictated an ad offering to trade my tanks for anything of value.

Gets $35 Worth of Shr...

"To my surprise, I got about twenty calls from people offering radios and a variety of other articles in trade. Finally I made a deal with a florist who needed the tanks for irrigation purposes. He agreed to plant $35 worth of shrubbery around my home. Now he has the tanks and I have the extra space in my garage plus $35 worth of fine shrubberies"!

Tries Again!

"Later I had a similar experience," continued Mr. Paschke. "I had an old lathe and motor that I had no more use for, but needed the space they occupied for my service depart... I tried to sell them without success. Then I offered them in the Barter and Exchange column for anything of value. I got more answers than I expected and didn't have to trade them after all. I got $0 cash for them!"

This is a true story. It won for Mr. Paschke a $25 prize in the recent Tribune True Want Ad Experience competition.

ITALIAN REPORT OUTLINES NEEDS FOR NEXT BIG WAR

Sees France, Jugo-Slavia as Her Enemies.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, May 31.—European countries expect that the next war will be one of "movement" in contrast with the "static" nature of the last war, and that the special feature of the next great conflict will be "aerial and chemical aggression" and "technical surprise," according to the report on the current Italian war budget submitted to the chamber by Deputy Baistrocchi.

GUGLIELMO MARCONI. [Harris & Ewing.]

There must be intimate coördination between military preparation and unity of command, urges the report. Air warfare will be one of the large elements of surprise, continues the report. Air war, by its "lightning action and effected with appressive spirit, which will enable us to swoop unexpectedly on the enemy," will greatly influence the action of the other armed forces.

Hint at Strong Radio Beam.

It is generally believed in Italy that Senator Marconi has an invention which he has turned over to Italy which will enable Italy to destroy enemy factories and ammunition stores through directing a radio beam upon them from long distances.

The Baistrocchi report goes into great analytical detail in comparing the Italian budget with the war budgets of France and Jugo-Slavia, indicating that these two countries are Italy's anticipated enemies in the next war. This comparison has already set off polemical firecrackers in the two mentioned countries.

The report states that while Italy this next year plans to spend $140,000,000 on its army, France is spending $270,000,000 and Jugo-Slavia $55,000,000. Furthermore, it adds, this figure comprises all that Italy spends on its army, while the French figure is not complete nor is the Jugo-Slav, for in the budgets of those countries military expenditure is hidden under other headings. And Italy, says the report, has reduced its army to the lowest possible level.

France Registers Protest.

To this accusation the French have already registered a protest that it is not very likely that in France, where the military budget is subject to free discussion and even attack in the chamber, military expenditure should be disguised, while in Italy, where parliamentary control is nonexistent, nothing would be hidden in other budgets.

The French also contest the Italian claim that it has reduced its military effectives. The Italian effectives, according to Geneva figures, are placed by the French at 714,000 men, not counting 52,000 men in the colonies. And this figure would be doubled if the black shirt militia, the advance guards—boys of 14 to 18 who are given military training—and the young Fascists, militarily trained boys between 18 and 21, are counted. The French, on the other hand, claim their army, which in 1914 was 810,000 men, is now only 522,000 men.

Whatever the merits of the controversy, it has served to show the relatively high number of men kept under arms in France and Italy, and especially the highly trained potential war force of youth which Italy has ready.

In its analysis of the French military organization the Baistrocchi report goes into details of facts and figures showing how many divisions France has at home and how many in Africa; it discusses French black and Asiatic troops, defensive organization and its cost, anti-aircraft defense, etc.

TWENTY GOVERNORS GIVE FRENCH LICK CONVENTION ASPECT

French Lick, Ind., May 31.—(AP)—Producing the appearance of a joint political state convention, state executives from more than a score of commonwealths gathered here late today for the 23d annual conference of governors which opens here tomorrow morning.

Chief among the arrivals were Govs. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, and George White of Ohio, all mentioned as Democratic presidential possibilities, and Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania.

The spokesman for an Indianapolis delegation said to Gov. Roosevelt:

"These gentlemen want to vote for you for President."

"I hope they never have to," Roosevelt replied. "I'm pretty busy now trying to run New York state."

Gov. Pinchot had been assigned by the executive committee of the conference to speak on "Timber Needs of the Future," but instead he distributed to the press advance copies of an address he intends to give on Tuesday on the subject of public utilities.

"I have asked the committee if I may speak on utilities," said Gov. Pinchot, "of course I can always talk on reforestation, as this is close to my heart."

Political leaders of both parties in Indiana are gathered here, some to act as sponsors for the gubernatorial delegation and others to talk politics.

FRENCH TOWN GIVES BOURBONS SET OF SILVER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 31.—Without a brass band in deference to royal wishes, the suburb of Fontainebleau today presented a silver service to former King Alfonso and former Queen Victoria of Spain at their hotel in honor of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

Baron de Coulange, mayor of Fontainebleau, and members of the municipal council made the presentation. It was a simple ceremony, Alfonso having indicated that he would accept the gift provided it was offered with no ostentation.

The exiled couple received numerous other silver gifts and many congratulatory telegrams during the course of the day. The family spent the day quietly, attending early mass and later driving and walking through the countryside. They gathered for an anniversary dinner at 9 o'clock tonight.

4. This offer is open to everyone—men, women, boys and girls—except employees of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

5. Tune Tangle Crosswords are to be submitted only in complete sets. Do NOT send in each puzzle separately. Hold all puzzles until you have the complete set of 42. Then send them to "Tune Tangles," Chicago Tribune, Postoffice Box 1718, Chicago, Illinois. All entries must be in by midnight, 15 days after Puzzle No. 42 has been printed.

6. Each entry must be sent by First Class Mail, postage prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Postoffice Department. Contestants may submit as many sets of puzzles as they wish, but no contestant will be entitled to more than one prize.

7. You need not buy the Chicago Tribune. You may copy or trace the puzzles and send them in. The Chicago Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at Public Libraries free of charge.

8. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties, a duplicate award will be paid to each tying contestant.

RAILROADS CUT DOWN ACCIDENT TOLL 1,015 LIVES

Awards Show Result of Safety Efforts.

New York, May 31.—[Special.]—Railroads in the United States improved their safety programs last year to an extent representing the saving of 1,015 human lives and the prevention of 27,565 personal injuries, the American Museum of Safety announced today. At the same time Arthur Williams, president of the museum, made public the 1930 awards of the E. H. Harriman memorial medals, given annually to railroads with outstanding safety records.

ARTHUR WILLIAMS. [Pirie MacDonald Photo.]

In the group of large railroads the Pennsylvania railroad, central region, was awarded the gold medal for the year, with the New York Central railroad receiving a certificate of honorable mention as runner-up. The Long Island railroad, while not reported eligible for an award, was singled out by the committee for special mention.

Medals Provided in Memorial.

The medals are provided by Mrs. Mary H. Harriman in memory of the late Edward H. Harriman. In making the awards the railway systems of the country are considered in four groups, according to size, and the winner of the award for each class is determined by accident statistics of the interstate commerce commission.

Second group: Silver medal, the Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railroad company. Honorable mention, the Gulf, Mobile and Northern Railroad company.

Third group: Bronze medal, the Missouri-Illinois railroad. Honorable mention, the New Orleans and Northern railroad.

All Roads Show Improvement.

The estimate of 1,015 lives saved and 27,565 injuries prevented is based on a comparison of the accident records of 1930 with those of 1929, said the announcement. All of the roads which figured high in their respective groups showed marked improvement in their safety records last year, Mr. Williams said, and demonstrated that there had been no retrenchment in their expenditures to prevent deaths and injuries, notwithstanding the depression.

"It will be remembered that the year 1929 showed marked improvement over any preceding year," Mr. Williams continued in pointing out the significance of the still more perfect 1930 record. "To win any of these medals or certificates is yearly becoming increasingly difficult. The effort has developed a very desirable kind of competition between the railroads to prevent accidents, and has resulted in the coördination and exchange of experience and information.

FIRE RAZES CHURCH BUILT IN 1868.

Hillsboro, Ill., May 31.—[Special.]—St. Agnes Catholic church in Hillsboro, erected in 1868, was destroyed by fire today. Loss is estimated at $40,000.

WHAT TEN-WORD SENTENCE CAN YOU MAKE USING ONLY THE WORDS IN TODAY'S ADS?

The Chicago Tribune Will Pay

$1000.00 A Week

IN CASH PRIZES

GOOD TIME CHARLIEGRAMS"

Here Are Some Samples: Can You Make Up Better Ones?

A Good Time Charliegram is a sentence of exactly ten words which conveys a timely message of good cheer or sound advice: "Every time you buy something you help bring back prosperity." "The time to stock up is when prices are low." "Large savings can be made on nearly everything bought today." "When business starts humming prices are bound to rise again." Do you think you can make up a better Good Time Charliegram than any of these?—using only the words appearing in advertisements in today's Chicago Tribune? Try your hand at it! Read the simple rules and start now!

WHAT sentence of exactly ten words can you make up, using only the words which appear in the advertisements in today's Chicago Tribune? Last week we made up the Good Time Charliegrams and invited you to hunt for them. This week we are going to let you have all the fun. This week you are invited to make up your own Good Time Charliegrams. There are no daggers to hunt for—no stars to look for—no particular words to find. This week we've thrown the treasure hunt wide open. Just pick out any words in today's ads that you think make up a timely message of good cheer or sound advice. Try it. You'll have loads of fun. To make it even more interesting, there's $1,000.00 a week in cash prizes for successful contestants. Read the simple rules now and start the exciting hunt through the advertisements in today's Chicago Tribune.

THE SIMPLE RULES:

1. The Chicago Tribune will pay $1,000.00 a week in cash prizes to the persons who send in the best and next-best complete sets of seven (7) original Good Time Charliegrams in accordance with these rules.

2. A Good Time Charliegram is a sentence of exactly ten words which conveys a timely message of good cheer or sound advice. The sentence must be made up of words taken from advertisements, EXCEPT Classified or Want Ads, published in a single day's issue of the Chicago Tribune. To indicate where you get each word, simply write down the name of the advertiser following the word. Words are NOT to be taken from the Want Ads.

3. Not more than one word shall be taken from the advertising of any one product, store, company, or individual. If an advertiser has more than one advertisement in the same issue of the Tribune, only one word from such advertisements may be used in the same Good Time Charliegram. The same word may be used more than once, provided that it is taken from a different advertiser every time it is used.

4. The prizes for each week are as follows:

1st Prize	$250.00
2nd Prize	100.00
Next 2 Prizes $50.00 each	100.00
Next 4 Prizes $25.00 each	100.00
Next 25 Prizes $10.00 each	250.00
Next 40 Prizes $ 5.00 each	200.00
73 weekly prizes totaling	$1,000.00

5. This offer is open to every one—men and women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

6. Good Time Charliegrams are to be submitted in complete sets only. DO NOT send in each day's entry separately. Hold all Good Time Charliegrams until you have the complete set of seven (7). Then send them to "GOOD TIME CHARLIEGRAMS," the Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill. All entries in the Second Series must be received in the Tribune office before 6 P. M. on Wednesday, June 10, 1931.

7. Contestants may submit as many sets of Good Time Charliegrams as they wish, but no contestant will be entitled to more than one prize.

8. You need NOT buy the Chicago Tribune. You may use the handy blank supplied each day in the Tribune or you may submit your entry on a separate sheet of paper. The Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at public libraries free of charge.

9. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties, duplicate awards will be made to each tying contestant.

HEAD, HANDS AND FEET OF MAN ARE FOUND IN BUNDLE

Brooklyn Is Stirred by Murder Mystery.

New York, May 31.—[Special.]—Brooklyn police were provided with a murder mystery of major proportions today with the finding of the head, feet and hands of a man—obviously the victim of a peculiarly fiendish killing—in a vacant lot in the factory district of Williamsburg.

The grisly exhibits were neatly done up in two separate packages each tied with painstaking care. The head was wrapped in a copy of a Brooklyn newspaper dated March 26 and the feet and hands—the latter with the forearms attached—were done up in a copy of a New York newspaper of a little later date. An ambulance surgeon summoned to the scene said the man had been dead about two months.

Unable to Make Identification.

The victim was apparently about 35 years old. He had dark brown curly hair but the features were in such an advanced stage of decomposition that identification of them was impossible. Possible clues were provided by a third package found nearby and containing a silk shirt with a laundry mark which detectives were not able to make out without a microscope, a pair of man's yellow silk underwear and a pair of women's bloomers.

Detectives believe the head and other severed members may be missing parts of the same human body of which portions have been found in various sections of Brooklyn in the last two months. Only a few weeks ago a part of a man's thigh was found on Williamsburg bridge. A few days later a section of an arm was found on the Brooklyn waterfront—both neatly done up in packages like the exhibits found today.

Medical School Theory Upset.

At the time these "finds" were believed to be "relics" from some medical school dissecting room, dropped by some careless or excitement-loving student. With today's discovery however the police awoke to the fact that they had an unusually brutal murder on their hands—one in which the fiend had dismembered the body of his victim, wrapped the different parts, and amused himself by distributing them throughout the borough.

Hold Up South Shore Ticket Agent; Get $1,500

Michigan City, Ind., June 1.—[Special.]—Two armed men held up Marshall Camp, agent, in the ticket offices of the South Shore electric line here at 1:10 o'clock this morning and fled with $1,500. The gunmen waited until the last train had left for Chicago. They then approached the ticket cage, menaced Camp with revolvers, and forced him to surrender the receipts. The loot represented holiday fares.

KILLS HERSELF

MRS. ZOE HAGER.

With a bullet wound in her right temple, Mrs. Zoe Hager, 25 years old, was found dead yesterday in her room at 4958 Market street, Niles Center. A revolver was found beneath her body.

According to police, Mrs. Hager evidently committed suicide. Her body was found by Harry Taubert of Niles Center and Fred Croll, 1524 Main street, Evanston, when they called to take her to dinner. Through them, Chief Charles Holmes located Pat Croll, Fred Croll's brother, who had last seen Mrs. Hager alive.

Mrs. Hager killed herself, Pat Croll said, probably over belief that he had jilted her. Early yesterday morning he and Mrs. Hager were at the Bungalow, a roadhouse, in Morton Grove. He kissed another woman, and Mrs. Hager at the time threatened that he "would never see her again," according to his story. Croll, a one legged world war veteran, said he had been going with Mrs. Hager since she separated from her husband, David, a street car motorman. Their daughter, Jean, 5 years old, is in a boarding school.

News Vender, Stabbed in Mystery; May Die

Lawrence Vennice, 712 Buena avenue, was stabbed and possibly fatally wounded yesterday near his news stand at 63d street and Kimbark avenue. According to a witness, Joseph Tighe, 1545 East Marquette road, Vennice was seen in conversation with two unidentified men just before he was stabbed. Vennice was taken to the Illinois Central hospital. His brother-in-law, Lee Hennessy, gave blood for a transfusion resorted to in the hope of saving his life.

ROB AUTO RENTAL AGENCY.

Three bandits entered the Hertz Drive-It-Urself station at 2667 Milwaukee avenue yesterday morning and escaped with $50 after leveling guns at four employes.

RUSSIA REDEEMS 745,000 WAIFS FROM CRIME LIFE

Teaches Homeless Youths Trades and Farming.

MOSCOW, May 31.—(AP)—Russia's wild youth, known as "besprizorni," or homeless waifs, are being tamed and educated and taught to work.

A government statement says there now are fewer than 4,500 of these waifs in soviet Russia and by the end of this year authorities expect they will have been entirely eradicated.

The government is proud of its accomplishment with these children in view of the fact that after the famine of 1921 the homeless waifs throughout the soviet union numbered 750,000.

Led Lives of Crime.

In rags and tatters and driven by hunger they roamed aimlessly through the streets and byways, becoming pickpockets, thieves, bandits, and general menaces.

Traveling in gangs, they robbed and even killed strangers on lonely roads. Foreigners with watches, fountain pens, and rings, as well as money, were often their victims.

Most of these homeless waifs were an aftermath of the revolution. Many families were so poverty stricken they were unable to feed their children.

Place Them in Homes.

The government recognized the danger and the All Russian Central executive committee appointed a commission with special instructions to corral the wild youth and install them in homes hurriedly erected.

Aided by the Ogpu, political police, the regular police seized hundreds of thousands of them on the streets and placed them in homes or labor communes, where they were strictly disciplined, given a rudimentary education, and taught trades.

On reaching the age of 15 or 16, they were sent to factories, apprentice schools, or to various other enterprises. However, the most effective way of combatting the problem was through the state collective farms. In efforts to overcome the homelessness, the government spent some $25,000,000 during 1930.

In the matter of crime, the soviets go on the theory of correction rather than punishment and special efforts are made to redeem wayward youths between the ages of 16 and 20.

Numerous reform schools have been started, the most famous being the prison colony for youths operated by the Ogpu near Moscow. This is unique in that the youthful inmates run the place themselves under the honor system. There are no guards, cells, or prison walls.

FIND BODY OF THIRD WOMAN VICTIM OF YACHT SUNK BY BLAST

Darien, Conn., May 31.—(AP)—The body of Mrs. Florence Mendenhall, third victim of the Sea Fox disaster to be recovered from Long Island sound, was found early today in shallow water off Tokeneke, a suburb of Darien.

Identification was established by Dr. Robert O. Spear of New York university, a close friend of all members of the party that perished when the sloop is believed to have been sunk by an explosion aboard. The body was found about three-fourths of a mile from where the body of Mrs. Donald Snedden was found early last week, and not much farther from where the body of Miss Doris Dewey was located.

STATE PROBING DEFENSE CLAIM IN DEATH PARTY

Assistant State's Attorney A. E. Ferrari said yesterday he is investigating the claim of Stephen Proharska and his son Stanley that they were justified in protecting their home during the trouble early yesterday which resulted in the killing of Albert Kowalkowski, 18 years old, 4734 Throop street. However, he said, he is of the opinion "the wrong man" was shot.

"The Proharska's were having a party at their home, 1015 West 47th street, in honor of the daughter, Betty," the prosecutor stated. "Two young men not invited forced their way in and were put out and a fight started in front of the home. The father came out with a revolver and fired several shots in the air. His son, Stanley, took the gun from him and fired it, mortally wounding Kowalkowski, who was passing with his brother, Andrew, 21. My information to date is that the Kowalkowski brothers were not among those who tried to 'crash' the party."

The Proharskas were being held pending the inquest today.

MILITARY LEGION OF ARGENTINA TO GUARD NEW RULE

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

MONTEVIDEO, May 31.—The Argentine police today announced the discovery of another counter revolutionary plot by followers of former President Yrigoyen and many arrests have been made, including Dr. Jose Abalos, Yrigoyen's minister of public works. The police accused him of being the leader. Abalos' sanitarium in Rosario and his private residence were searched by the police for incriminating documents. He was taken to Buenos Aires to await trial.

The plotters are alleged to have been meeting after midnight in the same building where they were raided.

Bomb Explosion Wrecks 14th Street Restaurant

A bomb was exploded early this morning in the front entrance of John Korenevich's restaurant at 671 West 14th street. The blast smashed the door, tore a hole in the sidewalk immediately at the entrance, and broke windows in the restaurant and across the street. Damage was estimated at $500 by Lieut. Christopher Hughes of the Maxwell street station. Korenevich, who lives above the restaurant, could not explain the bombing.

Snaps Trigger with Toe, Ends Life with Shotgun

Despondent over ill health, John Dyrdula, 37 years old, father of two children, shot and killed himself in his home at 13357 Burley avenue shortly before midnight. His wife, Mary, found his body. Dyrdula committed suicide with a shotgun, pressing the trigger with his toe. The charge passed through his heart.

KEEP KISSABLE

. . . WITH OLD GOLDS

OLD GOLDS were created to give you THROAT-EASE . . . as well as a more delightful tasting cigarette. But the makers also considered your breath, your lips, your teeth, as well as your THROAT.

They created a pure-tobacco cigarette . . . free of coriander and other greasy artificial flavorings* that burn into clinging, staining, breath-tainting vapors.

To avoid unpleasant aftermaths, smoke pure-tobacco OLD GOLDS. Their clean, sun-ripened, natural-flavored tobaccos will be like honey to your THROAT. And they leave no objectionable odors either on your breath or clothing, or in the room.

HERE'S THE PROOF*

Open up a pack of OLD GOLDS and smell the tobacco. Do the same with any other cigarette. Judge for yourself which has the natural, pleasant, all-tobacco aroma. It's a favor to your family and friends, as well as to yourself, to smoke NATURAL-FLAVORED, pure-tobacco OLD GOLDS.

TWO CHILDREN'S NAMES ADDED TO AUTO DEATH ROLL

Girl Falls from Car and Is Killed.

Three persons, two of them children, died yesterday in Cook county as a result of injuries received in automobile accidents. Their names swelled the 1931 death toll to 479. The victims:

Anthony Amato, 3 years old. Died at his home, 937 West Congress street, of injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile at Sangamon and Harrison streets on Wednesday. The driver of the car, Nathan Schaffner, 1237 Oakley boulevard, took the child to the county hospital, but it was not discovered until he had been sent home that he had a skull fracture.

Eugene Vines, 8 years old, colored. Killed when he was struck in front of his home at 5255 South Wabash avenue by an auto driven by Arthur M. Baumgartner, 6359 South Halsted street.

Michael Madden, 30 years old, 5713 South Wood street. Fatally injured at 59th and Halsted streets by a Yellow taxicab driven by John Dubowski, 1915 Washburne avenue. Dubowski was held.

Audrey Archer, 4½ years old, daughter of Stanley A. Archer, 2149 Chestnut road, Homewood, a sales manager, was killed when she accidentally fell from the family automobile near Gilman, Ill. Archer, his wife, Maris; their children, Audrey and Jean, and Mrs. Archer's mother, Mrs. Julia Hackenbroch, were driving toward Onarga when Audrey's shoe slipped off. She balanced on one foot while trying to put on the shoe and stumbled. Her hand struck the side door lever. The door opened and the girl toppled out.

Five Hurt in Crash.

Five persons were injured when the automobile in which they were riding collided with another, which had been stolen from John Ehrlich, 3516 Douglas boulevard, at Crawford avenue and Jackson boulevard. The driver of the stolen car fled. The injured are Henry Beaver, 32 years old; his wife, Marion, 28 years old, and their 5 year old daughter, Mindy, of 3649 South Union avenue; Frank Seamon, 36 years old, and his wife, Sadie, 3648 South Union avenue.

Harry Kinchen, 1108 Christiana avenue, and three friends riding in his automobile were injured in a collision on Dunes highway near Michigan City yesterday. Kinchen's car collided with another driven by James Rusell of Kenge, Mich. The other Chicagoans hurt were Bernard Nathan, 1108 Christiana avenue, and Rose and Elsie Prohmick, 4247 Grenshaw street.

Chicago Couple Injured.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lewis, 1400 East 53d street, also were slightly hurt in an accident near Michigan City. Their car was crowded off the highway into a ditch by another motorist who did not stop.

Motorcycle Policeman Harry H. Lartigue, 35 years old, of 2019 North Kostner avenue, suffered a fracture of his right leg yesterday when he was hurled from his vehicle in a collision with an automobile in Addison street at Southport avenue. He was taken to the Alexian Brothers' hospital.

DEATHS OF A DAY

MISS MARY CONWAY, 70 years old, died suddenly of heart disease yesterday at the Austin Manor hotel, 212 North Central avenue, Oak Park. A native of Louisville, Ky., Miss Conway came to Chicago in 1915. Until three years ago she had been secretary of a publishing company.

Britain Grants Ceylon Vote as Test for Action in India

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 31.—Another one of John Bull's little Irelands is Ceylon, which is a trifle smaller than the Emerald Isle and has a population of 5,500,000, composed now mainly of East Indians, whose ancestors emigrated in the seventh century.

These 5,500,000 people have all practically ceased work in the excitement of getting ready for the fun of a general election, the first in their 3,000 year old civilization. Ceylon has been granted universal suffrage by the Labor party and in less than a month a great experiment will be tried there within the shadow of the equator.

Not Consulted on Matter.

Democracy has never been exported to so warm a clime before, and the reason for this export is not any peculiar admiration for Ceylon on the part of those who sit behind Prime Minister MacDonald in the house of commons. They were not consulted. Britain is merely using Ceylon as a political laboratory, where the professors of the Labor party can experiment with political medicines later to be offered to the older and somewhat more troublesome patient, India.

Ceylon resembles her Mother India in that she possesses a varied population within her gates. She has Buddhists, who are in the majority, Hindus, native Christians, Moslems, and Europeans. The native Christians number about 500,000, the Buddhists 4,000,000, the Moslems 400,000, and the settled Europeans 120,000.

Europeans Oppose Move.

The latter are engaged chiefly in the rubber and tea industries, and to a man are opposed to the changes about to be introduced. Hitherto they have been able to obtain indentured labor from India, with the result that Ceylon has had to import rice from India, though a rice producing country, because the British insisted on developing rubber and tea.

The new experiment is the result of a royal commission which visited Ceylon under Lord Donoughmore in 1926. It is on the report of that commission that the colonial office has acted and now girls on the beach of the Cinnamon Island have given up plaiting coral in their hair and talk of nothing but the coming election, when they will swing the pendulum and make laws to be obeyed by their masters of yesterday!

The Moslem women can have the vote as well, if they wish it, and that is one of the places where trouble is expected. The Moslems, though in a minority, are very wealthy traders with vested interests in Colombo, one of the world's great junction ports since the Panama canal was cut. Ceylon's male Moslems are not very advanced.

The Catholics have a majority by something like 80 per cent over the Protestants. Feelings between the two are not less exacerbated in the Cinnamon than on the Emerald Isle. There again the intermingled gases may explode and blow up the political laboratory. The Buddhists have a creed which teaches that the world matters nothing—a poor slogan for a political party, chiefly a majority party. The British settlers are compact reactionaries.

Indians will watch the experiment with more amusement than enthusiasm. They stand behind Canute in their hundreds of millions and hear his courtiers tell him the tide won't come in Ceylon, for they have built too many racial breakwaters. But the tide always does.

Blame Put on Britain.

If the experiment in Ceylon fails, Indians will answer that it was imposed without reference to the people. It was drawn up in London, this new constitution, to be tried on like a ready made suit, 7,000 miles away. If it does not fit, the willing customer will naturally enough blame the tailor.

On the other hand, the Ceylonese, being royal to their Indian brethren, may combine to make a go of it, whereupon the clamor in India for a ready made parchment constitution without reference to parliament may become louder.

Whichever way the pendulum swings in the political laboratory on the equator, the chances are the feet of Canute will get wet, despite the assurances of 120,000 tea and rubber courtiers.

L. F. VOSBURG, RAIL OFFICIAL, DIES IN NEW YORK HOME

New York, May 31.—[Special.]—Loren F. Vosburg, vice president in charge of passenger traffic of the New York Central railroad, died suddenly at his home in Mount Vernon today. He was 63 years old.

Death was due to hardening of the arteries. Mr. Vosburg had been in ill health for nearly a year. He had a severe attack of illness last autumn and was absent from his desk for several months but was thought to have recovered.

Mr. Vosburg was born at Rolin, Mich., April 7, 1868, and started his railroad career as assistant station agent of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railroad, now a part of the New York Central. At Adrian, Mich., he became general western passenger agent of the New York Central with offices in Chicago in April, 1905, and later was made general passenger agent of the road with headquarters here in New York. Subsequently he had served the road as assistant to the general passenger agent, passenger traffic manager, and traffic manager. He was promoted to the vice presidency and placed in charge of traffic in February, 1930.

Surviving him are the widow, Mrs. Helen Sands Vosburg, and a daughter, Mrs. R. O. Wilson of Los Angeles, Cal. Burial will be at Adrian, Mich., on Thursday.

ROULEAU, QUEBEC CARDINAL, DIES OF AUTO INJURIES

QUEBEC, May 31.—(AP)—Cardinal Felix Raymond Marie Rouleau, archbishop of Quebec, died today, aged 65. Seriously injured in an automobile accident last summer, he spent weeks in the hospital, but was discharged and resumed his duties. He reëntered the hospital last month for what was declared to be a few days' rest.

He was Canada's third cardinal, his predecessors being Cardinal Begin and Cardinal Taschereau, who also were archbishops of Quebec. He was created a cardinal in November, 1927.

Cardinal Rouleau was born on a farm at Isle Verte, Quebec. He joined the Dominican order of St. Hyacinthe in 1886 after his seminary education. Six year later he was ordained a priest in Corsica. In 1894 he returned to St. Hyacinthe, where he filled various religious posts. In 1923 he was appointed bishop of Valleyfield and in 1926 named archbishop of Quebec. On his return from Rome after his appointment as cardinal, the clergy and laity of Quebec diocese presented him with a purse of gold amounting to $30,000, which he turned over to charity.

FATHER M. A. KELLY OF DUQUESNE U., PITTSBURGH, DIES

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 31.—[Special.]—The Rev. Michael A. Kelly, widely known lecturer, retreat master and professor of languages, who was head of the department of English, Duquesne university, died here today. He came of a family of educators, both father and mother having been teachers in Ireland.

As a member of the Irish mission band for 15 years he had established a reputation as a speaker throughout the east, particularly in New York City, Philadelphia, and Boston. He was also known in Chicago and in the south.

Dr. Kelly was a graduate of the Holy Ghost school in Paris, France, the National university of Ireland, and received his doctor of philosophy and his licentiate in sacred theology from the Gregorian college in Rome. He came to the United States in 1912. He was the author of many lectures, essays, and articles.

Funeral services will be Wednesday. Two brothers, Frank and Luke Kelly, live in New York. The third of 8 brothers who survive him, Matthew J. Kelly, resides in Chicago. Five other brothers are living in England and Ireland.

ISAAC H. RUBEN, MOVIE MAGNATE, DIES AT AGE OF 63

Minneapolis, Minn., May 31.—[Special.]—Isaac H. Ruben, founder of the northwest's largest theater chain, the Finkelstein-Ruben enterprise, died today in his summer home at Crystal Bay, Lake Minnetonka. He was 63. Heart disease was the cause of death.

Mr. Ruben's death followed that of his partner, the late M. L. Finkelstein, by four months. Mr. Finkelstein died Jan. 22.

Beginning life as a newsboy in Syracuse, N. Y., he forged his way to leadership in the movie industry. When the Finkelstein-Ruben chain was sold two years ago to the Paramount-Famous-Lasky corporation the partnership had grown to the point where it employed 2,000 persons in twenty-seven northwest cities and paid out $5,000,000 annually in overhead expenses.

Joseph Knecht, New York Orchestra Leader, Is Dead

New York, May 31.—(AP)—The death last night of Joseph Knecht, widely known orchestra leader, was revealed today. Knecht conducted the dinner orchestra in the rose room of the old Waldorf-Astoria hotel for 14 years.

Simply Brushing Hair Now Ends Gray Hair

NOW you can quickly, easily and surely end those gray hair handicaps by sprinkling a few drops of Kolor-Bak on your brush before brushing your hair.

If your hair is now gray, Kolor-Bak will once more give it that youth-like color. If beginning to gray, Kolor-Bak will banish those invading gray hairs and keep your hair looking young.

Method Defies Detection

No one need ever know you use Kolor-Bak; no one can ever tell. Your hair will never have that harsh, flat, dull, "dyed" look, so all-revealing. There will be no telltale streaks. You cannot tell which hairs once were gray if you use Kolor-Bak each morning. As colorless and pleasant to use as water. Kolor-Bak does not leave the hair sticky.

Applied As Hair Is Brushed

With Kolor-Bak, thousands avoid the disadvantages of gray hair. Gray hairs cut pay, prevent promotions, lose positions, thwart ambitions. Banish those gray hairs by the easy, sure, and absolutely indetectable Kolor-Bak way. Secure a bottle today at your druggist, or write to United Remedies, Inc., Dept. 40-6, 365 E. Illinois St., Chicago for special offer.

Symphony in Words—Critic's View of 'Father'

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

IF there is any one writer in English who can always be counted upon to give one that extra-evangelical joy in the actual way she sets word to thoughts—like songs to music — that writer is "Elizabeth."

ELIZABETH.

No matter what she writes, there is for the reader a definite glee in the reading of it. Her writing has all of the nice quality of whimsy without any of its forced ones. It is the kind of writing that you can't skip through because its charm lies in the turn of the phrase, in the subtle twist of the idea, and that happens in every sentence. Elizabeth is the most delightful of writers of gay tales.

"Father," which is published today by Doubleday Doran, is as gay as any of her bouquets of humor, not her major opus, perhaps, but it is the kind of book that is so amusing that you don't ask whether it is a major opus or not.

The story is in itself bubbly with gayety. It starts with Father, who is a famous romantic novelist, very different from his books, bringing home to his thirty-three year old daughter a young girl whom he had married just before tea time. The daughter had promised her mother, as Mother lay dying, always to take care of Father, never to leave him. And she had spent twelve solid faithful years at it, and when Father came back to tea with a new wife her only thought was "O, how glorious to be free!" She was a little tubby, Jennifer was, and her legs were too short and she looked older than she was, a "Mum" to be exact, as she found when she tried out her freedom and went to look for a cottage in the country and the porter addressed her with that reassuring "Mum." Life stretched before her in a gorgeous pattern of aloneness at last, only it was alone at last with herself that was her idea of bliss. She had a hundred pounds a year and passion to live in the country (she had been cooped up for her whole life in London, and Mother had before her, because Father hated the country).

Jennifer's attempts at finding a cottage, the fortuitous circumstances of one being let to her instead of to the hoped for grave digger who had been advertised for, her first night at the cottage when she slept under the trees on a mattress and was violently kissed by the local vicar . . . that is the beginning of a series of adventures that are a delight. One might well say that that is the middle of them, for the adventuring started the very minute that Jennifer was introduced to the timid young thing that Father had made his bride, and who had married him because her relatives all admired his work so profoundly rather than because she felt any irresistible urge to Father's loving arms. If Father's arms had been less loving things might have been different, and if young vicar's sister hadn't been, like Father, a miniature Cæsar, things certainly would have been different.

"Father" is full of amusing sentences and delightful twists of the mind and what has been described aptly as "tenderly malicious satire." Romance, in Elizabeth's novels, always is a little ironically incomplete—as it is in life. Ecstasy comes, as it does for mankind, from the inside, not the outside. Romantic novels have built up a false picture for so many years and realistic ones have torn it to shreds for so long that life and novels are rarely on speaking terms.

Elizabeth's novels are probably falser than either the typical romantic or the typical realistic novel so far as the actual events in them are concerned. She cuts her plots to fit her pattern of life rather than her pattern to fit her plots. But there is something more realistic about them than the work of realists and more romantic than the chronicling of romanticists. For her romance never has the trappings of classic romance, and her realism always has the redeeming quality of humor about it. You have a feeling as you read Elizabeth that however incredible the things that happen to the characters, it is life that is happening. And so often in modern novels you feel that it isn't life at all, but something that the author has mistaken for life that is happening to creatures which the author mistakenly believes to be human beings.

For that detestable few hours when it is too hot to sleep or to think any of the serious things that ought to be thought, or too rainy to be outdoors sloshing around in the mud, or too heavy aired to be anything but correspondingly light minded, "Father" is a perfect companion.

Elizabeth, who is really Lady Russell, is, according to Rosita Forbes, a mysterious companion herself. "Wherever she goes," Miss Forbes writes of her, "Elizabeth is surrounded by friendship. It permeates her cottages [she inhabits a series of enchanted cottages perched in unexpected places all over the world], but I doubt," she adds, "if her friends really know Elizabeth. They see her, like a Bronzino portrait in cramoisie velvet and dark fur, her wimple of ash gold hair needing the pearls of the Renaissance, bending over a chessboard, her small, cold hands as colorless as the ivory castles. They walk with her one by one in pine woods and olive groves, but they do not learn much about Elizabeth, except that she is young as hope and old as wisdom."

The photograph which we reproduce is the first that her publishers have had for twenty years.

"Father" is the June choice of the Book of the Month club.

Good Morning!

"Laughing Sinners" is "The Torch Song's" imbecile new name. The picture is an adaptation of the play which ran at the Blackstone—and didn't do so well.

This movie follows the stage production closely enough, is well acted, and proves, on the whole, an entertaining number that points a moral inoffensively.

True to my resolve to no more bare the stories of films, I shall only inform you that the heroine of this yarn finds in the Salvation Army what she didn't discover in the cabaret —where she is the star attraction when you meet her.

The primrose path brought her a traveling salesman. (Mr. Neil Hamilton.) The Salvation Army produced Capt. Carl. (Clark Gable.) Mr. Gable is the boy with the devastating dimples, and I ask you, maidens, which would you prefer? (Which man, not which dimple.)

"Laughing Sinners"—I almost wrote "Laughing Water" — which would have just about as much bearing on the story—is fairly eventful and gives Joan Crawford (who's gone blond, wurra, wurra!) chances to dance and sing. She dances better than she sings. Direction was thoughtful and the piece has a coupla laughs and one, two or three touches of pathos.

"TABU."
Produced by Paramount.
Directed by F. W. Murnau.
Presented at the Roosevelt theater.

THE CAST.

Boy	Mathi
Girl	Reri
Old chieftain	Hitu
Policeman	Jean

I'm sorry Mr. Murnau died! He made such beautiful pictures.

South Sea island movies are no novelty, but "Tabu," photographed by the late F. W. Murnau and Robert Flaherty, is, scenically, such a thing of loveliness that no one could possibly terms it "just another South Sea island film."

"Tabu" is silent but is charmingly synchronized with music and sound. It tells a piercingly sad little story of two lovers for whom happiness on earth was not to be. The acting is all done by native-born South Sea islanders, and it is charming to watch. These children of the sun seem one with the waterfalls, the foliage, the hot sands and the ever-changing skies. The heroine is a liquid-eyed, white-toothed darling. And how her lover—who is "Tabu" [forbidden]—CAN dive and spear a fish!

Though the story construction of "Tabu" leaves much to be desired, the production, as a whole, holds you in thrall—like haunting music, or sunset in the mountains.

See you tomorrow.

President Hutchins to Receive Degree from Father Today

Berea, Ky., May 31.—(AP)—An honorary degree of LL.D. will be conferred at Berea college tomorrow by a college president father upon his son, a college president.

DR. ROBERT HUTCHINS.

Dr. W. J. Hutchins, president of Berea, will confer the degree upon Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, who will deliver the commencement address at Berea college.

Dr. Hutchins of Berea, who is believed to be the first college president ever to confer an honorary degree upon his own son, a college president, will confer a similar degree upon Sir Wilfred Thomason Grenfell, missionary of Labrador.

The commencement exercises will mark the close of the celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the college. A pageant depicting the growth of Berea since its establishment in the mountains in 1855 was produced tonight after having been postponed last night because of inclement weather.

Westminster Abbey Holds First Service for Negroes

LONDON, May 31.—(AP)—For the first time in its history Westminster abbey today was the scene of a service exclusively for Negroes. The congregation consisted of members of the newly formed London branch of the Improved Benevolent Protective Order of Elks. Before the service the Negroes, who numbered about 50, assembled in Parliament square. The sermon inside the abbey was preached by the Rev. Frederick Lewis Donaldson, canon of Westminster. He said that great pioneers and prophets of every age had affirmed the same belief in the brotherhood of man. Conducted by Canon Donaldson the party then toured the dim interior of England's great religious shrine. A large garland was placed on a statue of Abraham Lincoln outside the abbey in the square.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 31.—[Special.]—A three months' trip to Paris, where she will take English lessons, is part of the summer schedule for Conchita Montenegro, Spanish actress, who starts abroad this week.

Her family found it advisable to leave Spain during the recent disturbances and are now in Paris. Conchita, worried, decided to visit them there, so she got a three months' vacation from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio. Her employers, who fancy Conchita as an actress with a future in English speaking films, wondered about a relapse in the actress' accent, but that obstacle was overcome when her mother wrote: "We have engaged an English speaking chaperon for you while you are here. As you can see [the mother inclosed the English girl's picture], she is very charming and you can take her anywhere."

Peggy Shannon, who stepped into Clara Bow's rôle in "Secret Call" and filled it so ably, from the viewpoint of the Paramount studio, is rewarded today with an assignment in "Silence," a Clive Brook starring picture for which Marjorie Rambeau has been rented from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's to provide the feminine villaining.

During this same "Secret Call," finished a few days ago, Richard Arlen had one workless day and decided to improve it by visiting the dentist. Arlen tells the subsequent events: "The dentist told me he couldn't see me that day because he had eighteen cavities to fill. So I knocked off and went over to the Lakeside golf course, where I met the dentist on the fifth hole."

When it came to peddling a film story, Joe Sherman, member of the publicity staff of eMtro-Goldwyn-Mayer, found his own bosses unresponsive, so sold his brain child to the opposition at Paramount. Sherman, who was once sheriff's office reported for the Los Angeles Times, worked on the story with Mark Flavin, playwright. They named their play "Through the Window." It's one of seven mystery thrillers Paramount is stocked up with, waiting to cast.

Marilyn Miller earned herself a rest until August or September yesterday when she read the script of "Lady from New Orleans," which was handed her at First National, and refused to play in it. She said the starring rôle would not put her in the romantic light to which her followers are accustomed. As a result Lillian Bond will get the main rôle, replacing Marilyn. The latter expects to remain in Hollywood through the summer while she and the studio debate about starring Marilyn in some vehicle she likes better.

Baltimore Lawyer of 29 to Head St. John's College

Annapolis, Md., May 31. — (AP) — Douglas Huntly Gordon, 29 years old, Baltimore lawyer, has been elected president of St. John's college, one of the oldest in the country, Walter H. Buck, chairman of the executive committee, announced tonight. He was a 1926 honor graduate of Harvard college, and of Harvard law school two years later. Mr. Gordon is one of the country's youngest college presidents. He succeeds Dr. Enoch Barton Garey, president from 1923 until his resignation in April, 1929. Dr. Garey reorganized the college, changing it to a liberal arts institution from a military academy. Mr. Gordon is a member of the state legislature.

Mary Garden to Sing Here Again in Fall

Star Will Give Concert for Children's Home.

Mary Garden is coming back to Chicago to sing in the fall.

The petite soprano whose singing for years has charmed enthusiasts of the opera has not turned her back entirely upon a music loving public, for all her retirement from the opera footlights at the completion last spring of the Chicago Civic opera season. When Nov. 9 rolls around her voice may be heard again at Orchestra hall in the songs that Mary Garden herself likes to sing.

Mary Garden's singing on the concert stage here will be for the sake of convalescent children. The proceeds of the concert will go toward the endowment fund of the Country Home for Convalescent Children at Prince Crossing. Mrs. William J. Chalmers, its president, announced yesterday. The leaders of the home hope to add between $12,000 and $14,000 to the endowment fund.

"Every box has been sold," Mrs. Chalmers reported, "and tickets are already going for the reserved seats. There is perhaps no person more pleased over the plans for this concert than Mary Garden herself. Her cable from Paris was quite enthusiastic: 'Will sing with joy at the concert. Nov. 9 is all right with me. Very happy about it.'

"It was less than two weeks ago that we dedicated the new building given by Mrs. Anna Louise Raymond in memory of her husband, James Nelson Raymond. Additions to the home, of course, increase our expenses no matter how beneficial they are."

Tickets may be obtained from members of the women's board of managers, from Mrs. Chalmers, 3100 Lake Shore drive, or from the special committee, including Mrs. Charles Swift, Mrs. P. A. Valentine, Mrs. Henry Field, Mrs. Samuel Chase, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Thomas Hinde, Mrs. Waller Borden, and Mrs. Francis Johnson.

Among the boxholders are Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Chalmers, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Swift, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Morris, Mrs. Valentine, Mrs. Borden, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Johnson, Col. and Mrs. R. R. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Rawson, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brewster, Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Lowden, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Sewell L. Avery, Harold McCormick, Harold Swift, and Samuel Insull.

"THE RAP."

THE CAST.

Newspaper reporter	Jack Marvin
Detective Garrison	Paul Harvey
Clarke	Edwin Vickery
Elevator man	Richard N. Gregg
Anne Stewart	Helen Tenney
Window cleaner	Kenneth Bradshaw
Another policeman	Robert Shayne

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

IN the prologue of "The Rap," which has come to the Studebaker theater as final entry of the regular play-going year and vanguard of the summer shows, you see a pistol flash in the dark, aimed at a figure silhouetted against a glass door. That marks the end of Lawyer Harrington, who wanted to reform the New York judiciary, and the beginning of several thousand questions asked by Detective Garrison.

"The Rap" may be described as melodrama with an interrogation point. Three-fourths of its dialogue is composed of such vigorous and stirring lines as "Where were you when you heard the shot?"—"Where were you when Mr. Harrington came back from lunch?"—"Where were you when the elevator stopped at the fourth floor?" Detective Garrison asks and asks and asks, but seldom gets a satisfactory answer. His suspects are so evasive that the plot hobbles around in a mental fog. Threats of the third degree fall to place them in a coöperative frame of mind. One of these obstructors of justice is a newspaper reporter, who jeers at John Law with an ironical lift of the lip.

At times "The Rap" ceases to be frank, clew hunting, get the villain melodrama and adopts the hankypank of the "mystery" farces. The lights go out; police officers are slugged by unseen fists; the corpus delicti disappears; a black robed figure flits about; a colored elevator boy gibbers in comic terror. While all this is going on "The Rap" gets the laughter that usually accompanies such halloween antics. But after Detective Garrison has asked his five hundredth question the audience begins to wonder when the play will start telling its story.

Close to the end of the third act, the newspaper reporter, who has been behaving like an understudy to Harry Houdini, swings into action. He tells Detective Garrison that he can solve the mystery of Lawyer Harrington's murder with two telephone calls and proceeds to prove that he isn't boasting. In five minutes the "papers" [a list of New York judges whose ermine is soiled] are in his possession; one of the slayers has confessed and the other has jumped to his death out of the window.

But that's not the finish of "The Rap." A snapper on the tail of the plot cancels everything and puts villainy on the throne as the curtain falls. This is a new kind of melodrama—one which permits evil to thrive and righteousness to perish. There is ingenuity in this sudden twist of the story; and yet I feel that it is a somewhat sour and unpalatable surprise.

In accordance with the customary etiquette in such matters, I will not reveal what happens to the gifted reporter when he starts to telephone the true story of Lawyer Harrington's killing to his newspaper. I will only observe that it isn't according to the rules of the game. Plays that want to send the customers away in faith that all's well with the world shouldn't end that way.

Paul Harvey is the most active and persuasive member of the cast as the assiduous detective. Helen Tenney, an attractive young actress, serves as a tearful heroine without a love interest in her part; Jack Marvin is the sarcastic reporter who razzes the cops; and Richard N. Gregg, an alumnus of "Porgy," proves himself a skilled Negro comedian as the terrified elevator man.

Find Valuable Painting in Attic of Cathedral

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, May 31.—A valuable painting of Johann Spillenberger [1672] has been discovered in the church attic of St. Stephen's cathedral in Vienna. The search for the painting has been a long one, but the dome trustee knew that it was somewhere in the huge cathedral. The painting, depicting Christ's ascension, was originally planned to decorate the ceiling. For some reason, however, it was stored away and for many years completely forgotten.

Report on Test of Lower Cost Hospital Care

Year's Test by Rosenwald Fund Described.

A summary of a year's experiment in supplying hospital and medical care to patients of moderate means at reduced rates, payable in installments, was made public yesterday by the Julius Rosenwald fund.

The experiment was conducted in two hospitals in Keokuk, Ia., population 15,000, chosen as "an average American city," during the year from February, 1930, to February, 1931, when it was discontinued by the action of the hospitals' medical staff, despite the fact that the administration officials of the two hospitals and the Rosenwald fund favored the continuance of the plan.

Under the experiment, as described in the summary published by Dr. Michael M. Davis, director of medical service of the fund, patients not in the charity class, yet unable to meet the regular costs of regular medical and hospital rates, were enabled to procure hospital treatment and care for about half of the customary expense and were permitted to pay these reduced costs on the installment plan if they were unable to settle in full at the time of their discharge from the hospital.

Under the plan an admitting officer, whose salary was provided by the Rosenwald Foundation, investigated all applications for such care, which was known as the "middle rate" plan. If it was found that the applicant could not pay the ordinary rates, but was not in the charity class, the patient was admitted to the hospital, placed in a two patient room, given the customary nursing, food, laboratory tests, dressings, drugs, physician's care and other needs just as if he were paying the full rates.

On discharge the hospital would present a bill to the patient to cover the entire cost, out of which the hospital would pay the attending physician his fee, reduced to meet the middle rate charges.

Under the schedule of reduced rates, for example, an obstetrical case with ten days' hospitalization cost only $43, of which the attending physician received $20, the hospital, the anesthetist, dressings, drugs, and other expenses consuming the remainder of the bill.

For a major surgical operation, which ordinarily would cost the patient a minimum of $125 for the surgeon's fee alone, under the middle rate plan would cost only $112.50 for the entire service, including hospital, anesthetic, operating room, and the necessary hospital care. Of the $112.50, the surgeon would receive $66, the anesthetist $12, the hospital $24 for room, board, and nursing service, $5 for the operating room; dressings, $2; laboratory, $2.50, and drugs, $1.

In voting by a narrow margin to discontinue the plan, according to the Rosenwald summary, the staffs of the two hospitals made several objections to the project.

They protested that it was "state medicine," which interfered with the doctors' professional independence. They asserted the plan established two financial standards for patients, embarrassing to the physician. They said it was unfair to the physicians of neighboring communities because the lower rates attracted patients to Keokuk. They contended it was propaganda to increase the practice of a certain group. They complained it was unethical because of newspaper publicity. They said the plan interfered with the physician's prerogatives by not limiting the cases to those which the physician himself proposed. Finally, the doctors said, patients were accepted who could have paid higher fees than those required by the plan.

Proponents of the plan said the results showed that virtually all who took advantage of the reduced rates were patients who otherwise would have not have received any hospital or medical treatment, persons whose average income, assuming continuous employment during the year, was only $21.95 each week, with an average of more than four members to the family dependent on the income.

In sponsoring the plan the Rosenwald fund agreed to meet two-thirds of the loss, if any, incurred by the two hospitals through lack of occupancy of the beds set aside for the middle rate patients, and also to pay one-third of any loss incurred by the hospital and doctor if patients accepted under the plan failed to pay their bills. The fund also paid the salary of the officer who investigated the various applicants for treatment under the plan.

SYNOPSIS.

Clare, fifteen year old daughter of Iris de Bertincourt, disappears mysteriously from her home in a remote section of Paris. Iris has been separated for years from her husband, Marcel, a man of great charm but no moral sense. They are cousins and the possible heirs of their tyrannical Aunt Victoire, the Comtesse de Castelmaurou.

Iris planned to divorce her husband and marry Maj. Alan Charnwood. Charnwood about to depart for Africa, has postponed his trip to search for Clare, assisted by Tommy Rostetter, a journalist.

Iris moves to her agent's home and learns that her husband is already domiciled there. He seems to have changed in character, and has taken charge of the search for Clare. Iris and Alan plan to meet at Helen Roderick's, the American woman for whom Iris has been working. Alan meets Marcel at Helen's and learns that they are friends, unknown to Iris. He recalls having seen Marcel at Le Touquet, gambling heavily and hobnobbing with a coarse looking couple. That night Alan sees Marcel entering the home of Suzanne Marly, an actress. Alan receives a wire giving him an extra fortnight's leave in Paris.

A letter is sent to Iris, stating that Clare is being held for ransom. Her aunt offers to pay the sum asked if Marcel and Iris promise to become reconciled. Marcel meets Iris and Alan at Helen's and drives them home. He accompanies Alan to his hotel room. Alan receives a faked message recalling him immediately to Africa.

INSTALLMENT XXXVII.

DIGGING UP EVIDENCE.

The message had borne distinctive marks of authenticity, correct name and address of sender, reference to injured machinery, steamship sailing—an immediate one—all complete. Yet Charnwood had discussed none of this with any living soul except Tommy Rostetter. Of course, the genuine telegram contained the necessary information—any one reading it would know . . . what on earth had he done with it? With a shock he recalled that he had sent it to Iris by pneumatique.

The comtesse again! Who else? Envelopes could be steamed open and regummed. . . . Striding to the desk, he fired a question at the suave manager. Was the operator who telephoned a woman?

"No, monsieur; a man," came the puzzled reply.

Still, what did that prove? Merely that the comtesse possessed a male ally, some person in her household who understood English. She could not work alone—he had known all along she must have an accomplice. Well, the chauffeur was probably the man. Iris had said that he was intelligent, shrewd, in appearance "almost a gentleman." . . .

A reproachful voice assailed him. Turning, he encountered Tommy, just coming through the outer door.

"What ho! Don't you ever think of food?" said the journalist in injured tones. "Has it utterly escaped your memory that we are dining together?"

"Dining? Listen to me: Hell's let loose; some blasted meddler is scheming to get me out of Paris. Here, let's go back to your digs where we won't be overheard."

Ignoring Tommy's amazement, he spoke a word at the desk, then, remembering De Bertincourt and the letter, glanced at the time. A quarter past eight. Too late to expect anything now. Iris had undoubtedly vetoed his suggestion.

Tommy, naturally enough, knew nothing of the day's events. He uttered a startled exclamation on learning of the anonymous letter, looked thoughtful over De Bertincourt's apparently meaningless visit to Charnwood's room, and when the final disclosure of the fraudulent telegram came stopped dead in the middle of the pavement.

"My aunt!" he cried, softly. "You're not pulling my leg, are you? Some one has got a knife into you. This looks serious."

"Serious or not, it's damned annoying. Suppose I hadn't had the wit

"Now then! Can you from memory show me the spot where this precious ransom is to be hidden? I'd like to know."

to ring up Sir Donald? In a couple of hours from now I'd be on my way to Marseilles."

"And you say you forwarded the real telegram yesterday to Madame de Bertincourt?"

"I did—like an ass! Some one has tapped that line of information, that much is certain, and that some one is——" He whispered the word as though afraid a passerby might hear—"the comtesse herself. You were right and I was a fool."

"You are satisfied as to her motive, then?"

Charnwood nodded grimly. "She has now forced the De Bertincourts to come together by paying the three million francs for them—and to clinch matters she's trying her utmost to oust me."

"Then the telephone message came from her?" said Tommy, slowly. "H'm. Well, I propose to trace that call."

As soon as the door of the flat had closed on them Tommy occupied himself with the inquiry, only to jam down the instrument disgustedly after ten minutes of wrangling.

"No good," he grumbled. "Day operator's off duty; night one has the brains of a gnat. Perhaps in the morning we'll have better luck. If you'll take an old stager's advice, you'll report this business to the police without loss of time."

"How can I do that? Iris' one idea is to keep the whole matter quiet."

"You mean she's frightened by those threats against the girl?"

"Naturally—and in spite of this suspicion of ours, I am, too. I daren't take the responsibility. If it turned out to be a bona fide case of kidnaping I should be playing with fire. What if the danger is real?"

"It may be, at that. And yet . . . hang it all, if only we could manage to dig up some conclusive evidence!"

"If!" Charnwood brought his fist down on the table so heavily as to set all the bottles quivering. "Tommy, we've got to dig it up and we've only tomorrow and next day to do it in. If we fail—but I don't need to remind you what that would mean."

His friend regarded him steadily. "I understand. The old girl would get full marks for generosity, the De Bertincourts join forces, and you, in plain language, get the push." He filled two glasses to the brim, then began irritably rummaging amongst the litter on his desk till he had unearthed a section map of France. "Now, then! Can you from memory show me the spot where this precious ransom is to be hidden? I'd like to know."

Charnwood spread the portion representing the departments of Oise and Eure et Loire on his knee and pored over it.

"Here you are—this bit to the near side of the town of Rambouillet, right away in the woods. The route De Bertincourt is supposed to follow runs like this——" And he traced a line from the Porte d'Orleans through Orsay and so on to the forest tract. Tommy examined it with interest.

"It's a lonely stretch, that. I doubt if they could have hit on a more suitable locality within a radius of fifty miles. I wonder if we could arrange an ambush so as to watch and see who comes to claim the money?"

"I'd thought of that," Charnwood replied eagerly. "Indeed, I have been planning something of the sort. Only it's a grave risk, for if I'm discovered the poor child might be the one to suffer."

"Only if it's not a family affair."

"It must be the comtesse," Charnwood insisted. "Otherwise, why this consuming anxiety to remove me?"

"Right. That is as near as we can come to any proof. I suppose we may as well assume her to be the villain of the piece and act accordingly. What about that excursion to the château? It's not too late, you know. I've looked it up. It's twelve miles from Dijon. Still, I'm not sure if it's worth trying." He brooded over it for a moment. "When exactly is the girl's home-coming staged to take place?"

"If the letter can be believed, Saturday before noon."

"In that case they would have to get her started early in the morning—even, or perhaps we'd better say six o'clock. We might run down there Friday night, station ourselves close to the park gates, and catch sight of the party as it sets out—if it does set out! One glimpse of the girl would be enough. But if she's not there we'd be wasting valuable time."

"That's the trouble," replied Charnwood doubtfully. "It will mean giving up our watch in the forest, for we can't manage both unless we split company. It seems to me tremendously important to find out who actually fetches the money—if any one does."

"Some one will fetch it," Tommy asserted confidently. "Provided there's money there—but, for all we know, if this idea of ours is correct the old woman will hand her nephew a dummy parcel." He rumpled his hair in exasperation. "By the way, describe this precious letter to me. Did you notice anything peculiar about it?"

"Not especially—but I'm nothing to go by. It was printed by hand in purple ink on common paper torn from a tablet and posted Tuesday evening in Paris. The printing was even and well formed. Rather like that attractive lettering one sees on architects' blueprints."

"Then you'd say it was the work of some one clever at drawing?"

"Quite. Indeed, now I think of it, the map at the end was very skilfully executed, with little conventional trees sketched in to indicate the forest."

Tommy looked interested. "That fact seems suggestive. Hold on—is there any chance at all of getting a squint at this document? Could you borrow it for half an hour?"

"I don't know. I hope to meet Iris tomorrow morning. She might consent to let us look it over."

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

An Efficiency Exhibition.

Several years ago, while engaged as a switchboard operator, I had for a boss an old army captain who was a bear for "efficiency." He didn't mind so much our not being busy all the time, but expected us to pretend to be, especially if an outsider entered the office. On one particularly dull day, on which no calls were received until noon and none were made, I was just arising to go to lunch when the door opened.

The boss was standing nearby, so I immediately turned to the board and "plugged" several lines and jabbered away for dear life. Finally I turned to see what impression I had made on the supposed client and saw standing there a man with rolls of wire and a tool kit, saying, "Your board is dead; I just came to fix it." N. F.

Sunday Evening Club Is Host to Veterans of '61

Orchestra hall echoed last night to the shrill piping of flutes and the ruffle of drums as a sizeable detachment of G. A. R. veterans marched down the aisle and up on the stage as guests for the closing meeting of the Sunday Evening club's twenty-fourth season. South Shore post of the American Legion provided an escort for their more venerable comrades, and Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Association of Commerce, greeted the veterans for the Legion and the club.

"You have been our inspiration since we were children," Col. Randolph told the gray haired veterans. "You are our pride and our promise, you and the comrades living and dead whom we honor today.

"We have never been a military nation, but we took to heart the lessons that you gave us. You taught us that a million men can't spring to arms over night unless they are prepared. You taught us the value of protective coloring in uniforms, of the danger of a massed front in the face of modern weapons of war; you showed us the value of good food and sanitation and service equipment and medical supplies. Our forefathers fought and fell and died for this country. They also froze and bled and starved doing it."

Dr. Charles O. Brown, commander of Ulysses Grant post of the G. A. R. spoke briefly on Lincoln previous to Col. Randolph's address. The Rev. Albert W. Palmer of Oak Park, president of the Chicago Theological seminary, also delivered an address on patriotism.

BANQUET MARKS ANNIVERSARY OF WHITMAN'S BIRTH

More than 500 persons attended the twenty-sixth annual dinner of the Walt Whitman Fellowship in the Cameo room of the Morrison hotel last night. The gathering was to celebrate the 112th anniversary of the birth of the "good grey poet." Speakers were Carl Sandberg, poet; Clarence Darrow, attorney; Frederic Babcock, editorial writer for THE TRIBUNE; the Rev. Edward Scribner Ames, Rabbi Solomon Goldman, the Rev. George S. Mills, and George Dillon, boy poet whose verses, "Boy in the Wind," recently won him honors.

Girl Turns Aside a Sure Thing for One with Verbal Promise

BY DORIS BLAKE.

He is 37. She is 30. Her salary is $35 a week and his $40. He is a clerk and writes that "his future does not offer him much." But he is a steady worker, having been in the same place twelve years. And through a building and loan association he has saved $2,000 and has kept up a $5,000 insurance policy.

They were engaged and all looked rosy. Three months ago a divorced man appeared on the scene. The girl immediately began to have excuses when her clerk suitor called up. The other one has a car and a line full of promises. The girl believes everything he tells her.

His rival knows him for a dead beat, a liar, and a fraud. She says she is tired of working, but when she stops she wants something worth stopping for. And she can't see where she and the clerk will ever get ahead. And that's the status, at the moment.

The copy book answer, I suppose, would be to let the girl go as a poor piece of baggage. But can you say that? Women are getting harder headed about marrying. Call it mercenary, if you will, or call it long visioned. To some young women $40 a week would look good. To a girl earning $35, $40 is just $5 more than she has been using on herself. She calculates on a possible family and all the expenses attending it. Anyway, whether it is a healthy sign or an unhealthy one, women just are figuring out costs.

It would seem that a steady young man with a sub saved would be a better future investment than a fly by night about whose record you know nothing. But that's the gamble taken by the one who keeps a cold money eye on her matrimonial bargain.

Beside, the girl probably does believe all she hears from the second suitor. And who is to stop a girl from believing? The best you can do by her is to hope that her day of awakening will not come too soon.

As for the jilted one—time and another girl are the only consolations to offer. There are any number of women who'd jump at the chance to marry on $40 and a neat little savings account and a paid up insurance policy.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Keep Your Other Friends.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 17, and like a fellow who wants to go steady with me. Am I too young? ELSIE."

Yes. At your age, it would be a mistake to eliminate your other friends.

Nothing Wrong.

"Dear Miss Blake: I asked my girl not to ride in a certain fellow's car. She did. Was it right for her to do so? BOB."

She has a right to decide the matter for herself, Bob.

Hot Oil Treatments Will Put Gloss on Lack-Luster Hair

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Sometimes I stop in the middle of my work here to ask myself: Why can all this dry hair be? Dry hair, dry hair, dry hair—letter after letter reveals it. I know, of course, that there are certain things peculiar to our day and methods of caring for hair. I know, for instance, that the drying machines have contributed no inconsiderable amount to this particular hair problem. And curling and permanent waving machines do their bit, too.

I know that nervousness, of which there is much prevalent, has a drying effect on the hair. Not directly, maybe, but through its effect on the system and then on the hair. And I do know that some of this excess drying of the hair is directly due to the kind of reducing that leaves all fat properties out of the diet.

But what I think is even more responsible for the numerous calls for help is the consciousness that is current now about beautiful hair having to have gloss or sheen. The hair may not actually be as dry as reported, but it doesn't shine with a ripe, warm gloss.

Now, there's a thing about gloss or sheen to the hair that I want to recall to your attention. I've mentioned it before. Glossy hair makes the face look younger. If you want proof of this you can have it by getting the hair in such condition that it has a gloss. Dry hair is like dry skin—the fresh, warm color has a faded look about it. In fact, you could say that hair sheen is makeup for the hair as rouge is for the cheeks.

Now, I'd suggest that if your hair is dry you give yourself some hot oil treatments. They're awfully good. Use a good quality of olive oil and as warm as you can comfortably stand it. Saturate the scalp with the oil and tie the head up for the night shampooing in the morning.

Or, if that looks like too much of a job, the night before your shampoo rub your scalp full of a like ointment like white vaseline. Anyway, do something. Give the scalp some kind of oil nourishment.

If you can afford to go and get a course of hair treatments do so. The oil application and salves and the professional wielding of the scalp will improve your hair remarkably in a short time. You can do it yourself, understand. But there is a body of women who'll only get things attended to by having professionals do it.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

C. W.: USE EQUAL PARTS OF camphor and glycerine to whiten the hands. The old reliable glycerine and lemon juice, or glycerine and rose water lotions may be employed.

The length of the reservation list for the Century of Progress banquet being given this evening at the Blackstone under the auspices of the Association of Arts and Industries shows how many people want to hear all about the progress being made on plans for the exposition, which is planned to open two years from today. Several of the banks have taken tables, the Harris Trust, the Foreman State National, and the Central Trust among them, and the B. & O. railroad has reserved a table. Mrs. Frederic Upham's guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Conrad H. Poppenhusen, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Stewart, and Mr. and Mrs. Orville Taylor. Others include Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, the Richard S. Folsoms, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Sims, Frank G. Logan, the Otto Schmidts, the Mark W. Cresaps, and the Hayden Harrises.

Admiral Byrd at Burial of Igloo, His Pet Terrier

Dedham, Mass., May 31.—(AP)—Igloo, the fox terrier which accompanied Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd to Little America in the Antarctic, was buried here today while Byrd and his son, Richard Jr., stood beside the grave. The interment was in Pine Ridge cemetery, a burying ground for animals. After the grave had been filled in the admiral placed a wreath of white roses over it. A simple headstone bearing only the name "Igloo" will be placed on the grave later. Igloo died on April 21. The terrier was given to the famous explorer six years ago by a friend in Washington, who had found the dog on the streets of the capital. As a puppy it went to Spitzbergen with Byrd when he and Floyd Bennet flew over the north pole and accompanied its master as a matter of course when the latter sailed for the Antarctic.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., May 31.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover have the quietest White House they have had in many months. Their only guest is the American ambassador to Belgium, Hugh S. Gibson, who has been there for more than a week.

The secretary of war and Mrs. Hurley headed the receiving line last night at the ball given at the Carlton by the army air corps social club for the 200 flyers who came with the army air fleet yesterday who were "based" in Washington over night. Among others who received were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Fechet, the assistant secretary of war and Mrs. F. H. Payne, the assistant secretary of war for aviation and Mrs. Brubee Davison, and the assistant secretary of commerce and Mrs. Clarence M. Young. The assistant secretary and Mrs. Davison entertained at dinner preceding the dance.

Mrs. Robert P. Lamont, wife of the secretary of commerce, has returned to their Washington home after a several weeks stay in New York.

Postmaster General and Mrs. Brown have gone to Brookville, Mo., to attend graduation exercises of the school their nephew attends.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter entertained at a dinner dance last night at Grasslands, Washington's oldest and most exclusive country club, in honor of the former's niece, Miss Audrey Campbell, whom they have adopted. The party was in celebration of the 18th birthday anniversary of the debutante, who is the daughter of the late Maj. and Mrs. Colin Campbell, the latter formerly Miss Nancy Leiter. Miss Campbell has recently joined Mrs. Leiter here from her studies in Aiken, S. C. Mrs. Leiter did not open the Leiter mansion for the short time she will be in town. She is the guest of her mother, Mrs. John R. Williams. Mrs. Williams is entertaining a housea party for the debut of Miss Campbell and for the celebration of her own birthday today. Her house guests are, in adition to Mrs. Leiter and Miss Campbell, her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Huston Rawls of New York; Miss Beatrice Shiverick and Miss Lee Arnold of New York; Lieut. Hugh Fenwick, Charles S. Dewey Jr. of Chicago, and Thomas Leiter, son of Joseph Leiter, who is in Chicago connected with the management of the Leiter estate.

Wife Stands in Armed Camp, with Critical In-Laws, Weak Mate

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"We are making our home with my husband's people and they are always criticizing the way I manage the children, and it is making it hard for me. My husband always sides with his folks and puts all the blame on me for everything the children do."

In at least half the letters that are concerned with the way some relatives-in-law are causing trouble appears some such statement as the above. Now, a husband and wife may have their private tiffs, they may disagree over the management of the children when they're alone and the children and other grownups are out of hearing, but no woman can get anywhere if her husband is not loyal to her and her relatives-in-law are against her.

"United we stand, divided we fall," applies not only to a country but to a family. With a husband's disloyalty too many things fall—peace, the dignity of his wife's position in the household, and the well-being of the children.

A man owes a woman loyalty because she is his wife. He owes her loyalty because she is the children's mother. She cannot, single handed in an enemy camp, rear her children properly. She cannot maintain her position of authority in the children's eyes if some one is "always belittlin'" her—if other adults run counter to her ideas, dispute her ways, criticize her, and then her husband fails her. It is unfair to her and unfair to the children. They suffer from such pulling one way and another, from such division and discord.

Especially where three generations are living together and a wife is putting forth her best efforts in a difficult situation does a husband owe her his loyalty.

'Equal Rights' Women Cheer Labor Victory

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 31.—[Special.]—Feminists who demand equal rights for the woman worker won a rights for the woman worker won a victory over those who urge protective legislation for the woman who works when Doris Stevens and other members of the National Woman's party recently prevented Mary Anderson, head of the woman's bureau, from participating in an international workers' conference on night work for women.

DORIS STEVENS.

This fact, which started as a rumor several weeks ago when Secretary of Labor Doak suddenly cabled Miss Anderson on her way to Geneva to stay away from the meeting, was today made clear by the National Woman's party at the closing session of its conference.

Here is the resolution, introduced by Mrs. Dora G. Ogle of the "Equal Rights" magazine:

"Be it resolved, that the National Woman's party while not opposed to participation by the United States in international labor conferences, expresses itself as opposed to any representative, man or woman, who supports legislation handicapping women's economic advancement, and

"Be it resolved, that the National Woman's party congratulate the secretary of the department of labor upon his decision to withdraw from the conference the representative committed to discriminations against women."

It was passed unanimously and enthusiastically.

The incident marks one more crisis in the everlasting battle between the two feminine factions, the one which thinks that the women ought to be protected, by minimum wage laws, by night work prohibitions, etc., and the one which thinks that the only way women can get as big a pay check as men is to have all economic discriminations removed.

This latter group, whose forum is the Woman's party, today passed another resolution frowning upon discriminations in still other fields of activity. For instance, in the question of nationality it pleaded for an international consideration of nationality laws that will give men and women precisely the same opportunities.

It condemned the department of labor for its recent deportation to Canada of Mrs. Lillian Larsh, "the penniless widow, Michigan born, who was deprived of her nationality because she had married an alien." And it promised to make further investigation and to stir up the next congress in an effort to "get more humane consideration at the hands of the department of labor," for such women.

Following up the suggestion of Mrs. Rebekkah Greathouse, assistant district attorney, and a niece of Senator Morrow, the conference called on the parties to given women greater recognition.

GOLD STAR MOTHERS IN CITY ON WAY TO VISIT SONS' GRAVES

Five Gold Star mothers from California arrived in Chicago yesterday on the Los Angeles Limited of the Chicago and North Western railroad en route to visit their sons' graves in France. They are Mrs. Inez Pielop, Mrs. Oliette Nelson, Mrs. Elizabeth Meyer, Mrs. Laurie Howell, and Mrs. Minnie McConnell. Mrs. Pielop, who was greeted here by her son-in-law, Stanley Done, 1901 Oakdale avenue, is also to visit the grave of her brother's son, who served in the German army.

Paris Suggests New Sleeping Modes

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The Sleeping Beauty in the wood was surrounded by such a high hedge of thorns that even if her nightie got somewhat dusty and démodé during her hundred years' nap, no girl friend could look in and criticize her, anyway; but the modern Parisian sleeping beauty can be caught napping any day, or night, for her night gear is just as pretty and up to the minute as her day wear, and it is apt to be a lot more luxurious when it comes to material.

Our three sleeping beauties, sketched today, have just waked up enough to show you what Paris is doing along this line. The one at the left is wearing a pajama ensemble in two shades of pink, satin finished, fine silk jersey. The trousers are really a divided skirt with the low flare afforded by gored flounces, the darker gores being separated by paler pink sections. The incrusted decoration of the hip yoke is continued on the front of the sleeveless inside shirt, and there is a little separate sleeveless bolero for breakfast in bed.

Next comes a simple but elegant sleeveless nightie of cantaloupe mousseline, that has an empire bodice outlined by curved bands of the mousseline, edged with rickrack, as are the décolleté and arm holes. Vertical tucks on the hips maintain the slender line. The bow and streamers are almond green satin.

The third nightie, from Calvayrac, might easily pass for a morning frock. It is in pale pink crêpe de chine, printed with tiny flowers in rose and green. It has a real directoire bodice with central shirrings emphasizing curves. Rose colored satin ribbon surrounds the arm holes, in the effect of a bolero; it forms the high waisted belt and edges the balloon sleeves. This also has the skirt tucked over the hips. Its shorter hem is interesting.

Food Talk.

One of our readers asks, "Could you give us recipes with the ratios of ingredients rather than the actual measurements of ingredients? For example, can't we tell the cook to use one measure of egg whites with so many measures of sugar and so many measures of flour, etc., to make a white cake, instead of giving the actual number of eggs and cups of flour?"

It is possible to write some recipes in that fashion but it is not safe to w[illegible] many that way. For illustration: I can suggest in the making of meringue that one use for each egg white 1 tablespoon of sugar, and I can not feel guilty for any failure the cook may have. In the making of cup custard it would be safe to advise for each egg the addition of 2-3 cup milk and 1½ to 2 tablespoons of sugar and a few grains of nutmeg.

Within certain limits one might make biscuits according to the following directions: For each cup of pastry flour use 1½ teaspoons baking powder, ¾ teaspoon salt, 1½ tablespoon fat and 6 to 7 tablespoons of milk. But one cannot go much beyond the use of three cups of flour and have success. The same principle applies to all sorts of cake and pastry.

When the quantity of ingredients becomes too large or too small the stirring or mixing is necessarily slower [illegible] more vigorous than in medium amounts. The woman of average strength is keyed up to do her best work within certain energy limits. She may make perfect biscuit when she uses only 2 cups of flour, but she may not do so well when she tries 2½ times that amount. She must always confine herself to quantities that she can manipulate with her customary vigor. Then she can hope to obtain her usual good results.

In my opinion it is best to follow recipes that have been carefully worked out. When large quantity recipes are developed the cook takes all the obstacles to large quantity production into consideration. In large batches of batters and doughs there is usually less baking powder used to take care of the less vigorous mixing that is naturally given to large quantities. And less thickening material is used in large quantites of mixtures like white sauces, pie fillings, and gravies. In the large mixture there is less evaporation of liquid and so less thickening is required for a large than for a small quantity.

For these reasons I am not enthusiastic about doubling and tripling recipes. It is much better to keep at hand good recipes even if they are more trouble to use than some ratios that one might easily remember. Better results are assured.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S DRESS.

This redingote dress is a charming design and is especially kind to the too heavy figure. The collar of the printed silk crêpe dress gives a lengthened line, falling softly in rever fashion over the coat of plain silk crêpe. Both the coat and [illegible]es are finished with applied bands that have a tendency to reduce the appearance of bulk about the hips. It is just the thing for travel, business, or town wear.

The pattern, 3083, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards of 39 inch material for the dress, with 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material for the coat.

City of Martyrdom Honors Joan of Arc on Death Anniversary

ROUEN, France, May 31.—(AP)—St. Joan of Arc, personified by a young girl of Rouen, this afternoon rode proudly through the streets of this ancient capital of Normandy, scene of her martyrdom. She rode to the blare of trumpets and cheers of the descendants of the French whom the warrior maid freed from British rule five centuries ago.

LONDON, May 31.—(AP)—The speech of George Bernard Shaw over the radio last night, in which he said among other things that Joan of Arc lacked "sex appeal," today brought a protest from the Rev. Francis Woodlock, a well known Catholic priest.

Father Woodlock today said while preaching in London:

"I want to offer a strong word of protest against the impudence [illegible] might almost say criminal folly—of British Broadcasting company authorities for issuing an invitation to Bernard Shaw to speak on St. Joan of Arc over the wireless last night.

"The British Broadcasting company has no right to let loose that irresponsible playboy and mountebank to preach on this solemn occasion a panegyric of a Catholic and national saint.

Shaw, scheduled to speak twenty minutes, talked for an hour.

Whiten Teeth

3 Shades in 3 Days

NOBODY likes to look at teeth that are dull, dingy, yellow, discolored or eaten away by decay. And there's now no reason why you should have such teeth. They're unnatural. And the new scientific Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique proves they're unnatural—by removing stain and yellow, and making teeth gleaming white.

Try this technique for a few days . . . A half-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush, morning and night. You'll note an improvement after the first brushing. Your mouth will feel cleaner than ever. And in just 3 days teeth will look whiter—fully 3 shades whiter. Gums will feel firmer and look healthier. All because Kolynos does what no ordinary toothpaste can do—it kills the millions of germs that cause most tooth and gum troubles. And cleans teeth as they should be cleaned—RIGHT DOWN TO THE BEAUTIFUL NAKED WHITE ENAMEL WITHOUT INJURY.

Kolynos is unique—unlike anything you've ever used. The very moment it enters the mouth it FOAMS, thus permitting the use of a dry brush which makes Kolynos 10 times more effective.

This penetrating FOAM gets into and cleans out every tiny pit, fissure and crevice. It erases tartar and yellow—washes away the unsightly mucoid coating. It kills the millions of germs that swarm into the mouth with every breath and attack teeth and gums—kills 190 million in the first 15 seconds.

Easily and quickly this remarkable Kolynos FOAM cleans teeth gleaming white and keeps them sound. It stimulates gums and keeps the breath sweet and fresh.

If you really want sound, dazzling white teeth and firm, coral pink gums, try this way. You'll be glad that you did. Buy a tube of Kolynos from any druggist today.

TENNES RETAINS $10,000 MOTOR BOAT TROPHY

WINS SECOND HEAT TO CLINCH M'DONALD CUP

Throngs Line Lake for Races.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

HORACE TENNES.

Tennes' victory, a climax to the eight outboard races sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, was witnessed by thousands from the double deck promenades of Navy pier and from the shore line as far north as Chicago avenue. It was the largest crowd ever to see a speedboat pageant in Chicago.

Tiny Outboards First to Race.

The tiny outboard boats, with their drivers perched precariously on the 14 foot craft, flipped across the waves at dangerous speeds in the first half of the five hour program. Then the inboard drivers, from the 125 cubic inch hydroplanes to the 250 horsepower motors, competing in six divisional events, sped around the course in search of the gold and diamond championships. Forty-two inboard motors, the largest field ever gathered in Lake Michigan, competed.

The larger inboard boats were not bothered by the rough water, but their pilots required skill to negotiate the sharp turns, and the swirling wake of the leaders was none too smooth a route for the other contestants. Splashing spray all but hid the boats from view on the far leg of the course, while on occasion the judges' barge was rocked violently as the racers cut past it for the final lap of their five mile dashes.

Peabody Beats 7 Rivals.

Pat Peabody, son of Stuyvesant Peabody, won the contest for motors of 10 horsepower and less. A field of eight started, and young Peabody won in 10 minutes 33 seconds, seven seconds better than the time of Mary Alcott Richardson, the only girl in the inboard competition. R. H. Gontier of Chicago was third in 10 minutes 37 seconds.

Jack Bersonnet, in the 100 horsepower event, was timed in 10 minutes 13 seconds, and as the larger motors took the course the time for the five miles decreased correspondingly.

Benjamin B. Bryan Jr. then sent his 96 foot 125 horsepower motor twice around the course in 8 minutes 37 seconds, first in the field of nine. Ernest Young of Covena, Cal., was second, and Harry Moir Jr., third. Young lost the race by 14 seconds.

Henning Makes Fastest Time.

George Henning won the 300 horsepower event and repeated that triumph in the free for all. His time in the former race was 7 minutes 41 seconds, and he clipped four seconds from this mark in the free for all. He traveled the fastest of any boat inboard or outboard, in the regatta.

Bob Guttman of Manitowoc, Wis., winner in the first five mile heat for the $10,000 McDonald outboard championship, set the speed record for small craft. He was timed in 8:09, a speed of 36 miles an hour. That time, however, was nearly equaled by Tennes, who won the second heat in 8:10. Red Woodworth, Northwestern football star, and winner in the race for class E and F motors, did the five miles in 8:15. Woodworth had no racing luck in other events, being forced to stop in the McDonald cup race while leading when his batteries broke loose, an almost unheard of accident.

Heat Winner Breaks Down.

Six motors finished the first heat for the central west amateur championship. The winner, Guttman, broke down at the start of the final heat, and since total elapsed time for both races decided the title, he was eliminated. Al Gallert of Chicago, second in the first heat, broke his steering wheel, and was out of the bedding event. Thun Tennes, third in the first heat in 8:20 seconds, came back to win the second heat 10 seconds faster and the championship.

Janet Boller, 18 years old Milwaukee girl, who Saturday finished third in the displacement division of the Milwaukee to Chicago marathon, won the displacement free for all.

Red Woodworth's first racing mishap, in the class B race, cost him victory after he had led for four miles. Motor trouble forced Red out, and George Parsons, in second position, capsized. John Coyner won the title at an average speed of 27.9 miles per hour, while Jackie Maypole, whose motor on Saturday won the marathon

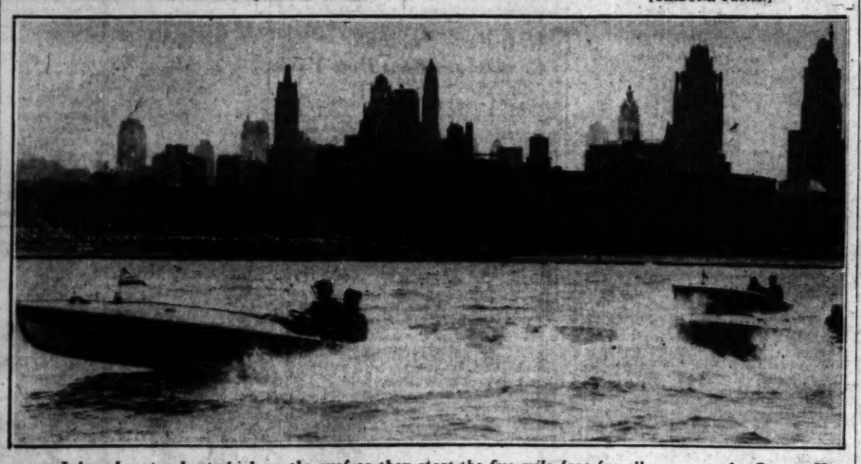
SKIPPING FROM WAVE TO WAVE

On to victory. August Walle pilots his V178 to first place in the class C five mile race for outboards. Walle's time for the spin was 11:20. [TRIBUNE Photos.]



Inboard motor boats kick up the surf as they start the five mile free for all race, won by George Henning of Chicago. These speed boats whirled around the course off Navy pier at nearly 50 miles an hour. Chicago's skyline provides a striking background.

2 World Records Broken in Casting Tourney Here

Two world's records fell in the interclub casting tournament yesterday at Washington park. Bob Clarkson, holder of the all around championship with 99 points, broke his own mark by scoring 100. Howard Chatt of the Illinois Casting club set a new record in the wet fly event, scoring 100 points. The former mark of 99 was made by Gordon Ericksson.

FIGHTERS SEEM TO NEED GROANS OF MAT BUSINESS

Few Ouches and Grunts Might Boom Game.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 31.—The wrestling industry will now enjoy a summer layoff after a prosperous indoor season, during which the boys demonstrated again that at one word from the press the public will do just as it pleases.

Even though the newspapers invariably covered the so called championship matches of the various so called champions and their respective business partners in a broadly facetious tone of voice, and even though Jim Londos, one of these champions, confessed that he always endeavored to give the customers a modicum of drama along with their sport, the wrestling business outprospered the prize fighting industry by a good margin in New York. In the end, no apparent harm has been done the customers and it is possible that some good was done, as Mr. Jack Curley's weekly entertainments soon developed into a kind of young and old boys' Wednesday night off the street club.

A Puzzling Popularity.

The recurrent popularity of wrestling is one of the amusing puzzles of the sport industry in the United States. For many years the game has been without friends, so forsaken that newspapers which would hesitate to denounce poison ivy were not afraid to express themselves on the subject. Mr. Jerome Beatty, an old former newspaper man, himself, tells me of an incident illustrative of this.

Mr. Beatty was working in a newspaper office which was so full of sacred cows that it was as much as a reporter's job was worth to mention the name of the guest of honor at a routine hanging lest the party turn out to be a friend of the management. But one day he took a small item over the phone about a brakeman's having been injured in a switching accident in the local railroad yards, wrote about fifty words on the mishap, and turned it in to the desk. A few minutes later there was a commotion at the desk, and Mr. Beatty was summoned to face a city editor who sat waving the copy and spluttering excitedly.

"Have you gone crazy, Mr. Beatty?" the city editor demanded. "Don't you know that our respected owner and publisher is a stockholder in this railroad? Do you want to get fired and get us all fired, writing a story like this?"

Beware Anything but Wrestling.

"I am very sorry," Mr. Beatty said, "and I suggest that you post a list on the bulletin board of the persons and firms who are not to be mentioned in the columns of our great, free, and fearless journal except in complimentary terms."

"That would be the long way around," said the city editor. "Just remember always that this paper takes a firm uncompromising stand on wrestlers and nothing else."

I am inclined to believe that the introduction of sound effects into wrestling during the recent season had much to do with the revival of popularity and prosperity. The boys always were pretty garrulous in the clinches, talking over their family affairs, their investments and their vacation plans in low confidential murmurs, but in the past they tried to maintain a mistaken stoicism during the application of the punishment or apparently punishing holds. Starting last fall, however, Mr. Curley, told the members of his herd to some good conservatory of the drama, to pass a voice test and then learn to utter a répertoire of bird calls and wild animal cries.

Acoustics Aid Rasslers.

The acoustics of Madison Square Garden were an item of singular pride with the late Tex Rickard, who often boasted that they were the best acoustics that money could buy, and, with motions as if planning the immediate removal of Collins, but they had to be content with one run. Blue opened with a three base drive into right field. Watwood walked and Fonseca popped to Melillo. A pass to Fother-

Sox Held to 4 Hits; Browns Pound Thomas for 6-2 Victory

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

A total of four hits—three by Lu Blue—is not conducive to the winning of ball games. That was the best the White Sox could do yesterday while showing themselves before 15,000, so they lost a 6 to 2 argument with the lowly St. Louis Browns.

Although they were reduced to next to nothing as hitters, the south siders had a chance almost to the finish. Because two of their hits were triples, they were able to score two runs, and for seven innings this was enough to keep them in the lead or at least in a tie. But in the eighth there was a violent uprising against the pitching of Tommy Thomas and the decision was settled in a few minutes by the scoring of four St. Louis runs. Three of these were due to one of those present day rarities—an inside the park homer off the bat of Jim Levey.

Browns Use Three Pitchers.

That it should have been necessary for the Brownies to employ three pitchers, even though the Sox did no hitting, may seem strange, but it is easily explained. Rip Collins, the Texan, started the show and remained for six innings, at which time Manager Killefer, being one run behind, figured it prudent to summon a pinch hitter. Then Dick Coffman pitched a bit, but got himself into such complications in the eighth that Killefer lost no time proving that, even with a four run lead, he was worried. He ordered Sam Gray to take charge with the bases filled and the veteran snuffed out a possible rally as easily as a wind can snuff out a candle.

In the first inning the Sox made

Ask Recheck of Schneider's Auto Victory

Indianapolis, Ind., May 31.—(AP)—A second official recheck of the records was demanded tonight to determine whether Louie Schneider, Indianapolis, or Fred Frame, Los Angeles, won the 500 mile race here yesterday.

Harry Hartz, Los Angeles, for whom Frame was driving, made the demand. W. D. Edenburn, Detroit, chief steward of the contest board of the American Automobile association, said a hearing would be held tomorrow morning. Schneider, according to the official records, which have been rechecked once, crossed the finish line 59 seconds ahead of Frame.

Meyer Claims 3d Place.

At the same time tomorrow the officials will hear a protest from Louis Meyer, South Gate, Cal., that he finished third in Myron Steven's car instead of fourth. Ralph Hepburn of Los Angeles was flagged in third place yesterday and Edenburn said today's recheck showed no change, with 16 seconds separating the cars at the finish.

Edenburn, A. C. Pillsbury of Los Angeles, also a steward of the contest board, and Chester Ricker, director of timing and scoring, will consider the protests.

Phil Shafer of Des Moines, Ia., also protested against the officials calling him out of the race and forcing him to go to his pit for conference on a complaint that he had passed a competitor in violation of instructions during the rain. He was out of the race four and a half minutes.

Schneider Wins $29,250.

When the prize money is distributed to the drivers at a dinner tomorrow night Schneider, as things now stand, will receive $29,250, officials figured. Frame, for second place, will get $12,650, and Hepburn $6,350. Myron Stevens, as original starter in the car Lou Meyer drove into fourth place, will be given $4,000; Russell Snowberger, Philadelphia, fifth, will get $3,500. Jimmy Gleason, Philadelphia, sixth, won $2,200; Ernie Triplett, Los Angeles, seventh, $1,800; W. H. Stubblefield, Los Angeles, eighth, $1,950; Cliff Bergere, Los Angeles, ninth, $1,500, and Chet Miller, Detroit, tenth, $1,400.

AL ESPINOSA AND LEHMAN DEFEAT WALSH AND EVANS

Al Espinosa and Johnny Lehman defeated Frank Walsh and Chick Evans in a best ball match at the Bryn Mawr Country club yesterday 1 up. This one stroke was also good in the score of the best ball count.

Espinosa was the big shot for the winners, having a 34 out and 35 in, for a 69, 3 under par. Walsh was erratic going out and had a 37, 1 above par, but came home in 34, 2 under, for a 71.

Espinosa and Lehman turned 3 up, but then Walsh and Evans started and at the fifteenth Walsh's birdie won the hole and squared the match. Espinosa dropped his tee shot a foot from the pin on the sixteenth for a birdie 2 and the margin of victory.

BETTY NUTHALL LOSES IN FRENCH TENNIS FINALS

Borotra defeated his compatriot, Christian Boussus, 2-6, 6-4, 7-5, 6-4, in the finals of the men's singles and Fraulein Aussem, the German champion, upset Betty Nuthall of England, 8-6, 6-1.

SHOWS PIRATES BRUINS' BEST PITCHED GAME

30,000 See Faster Chicago Team.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Those splendid old Pirates came clear from Pittsburgh yesterday to take the most ruthless licking of the year—a two hit shutout by Bob Smith. The score was Chicago 5, Pittsburgh 0.

Smith was by all odds the stingiest pitcher the Cubs have seen this year, either for or against their cause. He walked the first batsman in the game and no more. Sankey got a single in the third and Suhr got one in the fifth. That was the Pirate onslaught.

BOB SMITH.

L. Waner got on base with one out in the ninth on an error by English and went from first to third unmolested. He was the only Pirate to see third and one of two who reached second. Suhr reached the half-way point on a wild pitch after his single.

Crowd Sees Faster Cubs.

It was the Cubs' fourth victory over the Pirates in three days and the fifth in a row, counting one last Monday and the tenth in thirteen played with Pittsburgh this year. Incidentally, it was the second time in a week that the Cubs have sported a four game winning streak, the interruption being the occasion when Silas Johnson got hot in Cincinnati last Thursday.

If you were one of the 30,000 customers who viewed yesterday's spectacle, you probably noticed that the team as currently constituted has an element of speed and dash which was sadly missing from the outfit with which Manager Hornsby started the season. The pep of the young men seeking to maintain their jobs, in addition to being vastly useful in itself, is reported to be encouraging to the pitching and certainly has had an inspiring effect during the last week on the slow brethern who still remain in the cast.

The hitting totals during the stretch of eight victories which began last Monday, marked by only one defeat, have not indicated that any batting strength has been sacrificed in the process of getting some zip into the team, if you'll continue to pardon the editorial vein we seem to be using. In the slaughter yesterday, for instance, the new Cub team made ten hits off Heine Meine, who came to town justly proud of two shutouts recently accorded the champion Cardinals.

Ready for Eastern Foes.

The doings of the week climaxed by the showing yesterday, left the Cubs in fine spirit for the opening of the eastern invasion of the west, which begins with the Robins' game tomorrow. The Cubs still are smarting over the fact that one victory over Boston and one over the Phillies were all they were able to gather when they limped and splashed about the east not so long ago.

And they have reached the point in their progress where they want to expand their program. It is nice to have won 18 of their 21 victories from the Reds and Pirates, but the boys now say they are ready to pick on some one else.

The idea of scoring in the first inning having worked out so splendidly in both Memorial day games in Pittsburgh, Manager Hornsby gave the signal for a run in the first inning. After Moore had been thrown out, English beat out a bouncer in front of the plate. Hornsby then smacked one off the right field fence. English lost sight of the ball and stopped at second, depriving his boss of a double and himself tenancy of third base. Stephenson walked, filling the bases. Then English scored while Sankey was throwing out Cuyler. Hemsley ended the inning with a pop to Suhr.

First Hit for Pirates.

It was three up and three down for both nines in the second inning, but in the third the Pirates rallied sufficiently to make a single off Smith. Sankey got it with one out, but was forced by Meine, after which L. Waner flied to Moore.

In their end of the third, the Cubs again got the bases full and the divi-

YANKS BEAT SENATORS.

Washington, D. C., May 31.—(AP)—The New York Yankees defeated Washington, 4 to 2, today in a game called in the eighth inning on account of rain.

Lloyd Brown, Senators' pitching ace, hurled winning ball, but errors contributed to his downfall. In the seventh with two down Kuhel fumbled Reese's grounder. Babe Ruth then smashed the ball into the left field stands for a home run.

Detroit, Mich., May 31.—(AP)—Cleveland took a wild 6 to 4 game from Detroit in the series closer here today, a balk by George Uhle and two errors figuring in three of the Indian runs. The balk permitted Morgan to score from third.

Ferrell was almost ejected for insisting on more than the legal number of warm-up pitches upon entering the box and Manager Roger Peckinpaugh was sent to the clubhouse by Umpire McGowan for protesting too vigorously when McGowan called a wide warm-up throw a ball. Morgan hit a homer in the seventh with none on. Score:

Chicago Girls, 17, on Trail of Tennis Crowns

Two 17 year old Chicago girls are preparing for an attempt to bring tennis prestige to the midwest this season.

The players, Eugenie Sampson and Helen Fulton of the Chicago Town and Tennis club, are being groomed for the major tournaments by F. Lee Smith, developer of Johnny Doeg, Marjorie Gladman and Junior Coen.

Miss Sampson, a co-ed at the University of Texas last winter, plays a strong game. Her service and ground-strokes are among the most severe seen in many years among the juniors. According to Smith, she hits the ball much harder than Helen Wills did at her age, and with the consistency that comes with experience and practice, should win a high ranking.

Miss Fulton of the North Shore Country Day school plays a skillful well rounded game. She has a strong assortment of strokes which makes her a brilliant match player. She plays equally well at the net or in the back court.

These girls, who have won many trophies throughout the country, will team up for all doubles events. Their principal objective is the national girls' singles and doubles championships to be held in Philadelphia in September.

Smith Gives 2 Hits; Cubs Whip Pirates

dend in the inning was one run. English doubled with one down and Hornsby walked. The pair moved forward while Traynor was throwing out Stephenson, and Woody scored while Cuyler was beating out a bouncer along the third base line. Hemsley walked, filling the bases, but Grantham threw out Jurges.

Two runs rewarded a nice bit of ball socking in the Cubs' fourth. Grimm pushed off with a double to right center. Smith popped to Suhr, but Moore doubled to center, scoring Grimm. English beat out a wicked bounder to Traynor, Moore stopping at third, whence he scored while Hornsby was forcing English. Meine threw out Cuyler.

Outfielder in Double Play.

The Cubs' fifth run was obtained in the sixth despite the blighting influence of an unassisted double play by Outfielder Comorosky. Grimm led off with a hit for the second time, a single to center. Charley went to second on Smith's sacrifice, and scored on Moore's single to center. Meine cut off L. Waner's throw and had Moore sunk trying to reach second, but Sankey dropped Meine's toss and Johnny was safe. English lined to Comorosky and Adam ran in to second with the ball to double Moore, who had run past third.

L. Waner was the fourth Pirate to reach first base when he landed on English's fumble with one out in the ninth. Cuyler then went to the screen to pull down Grantham's drive. L. Waner went from first to third unmolested before his brother Paul finished the game with a fly to Stephenson.

Outdoor Fight at Mills Stadium Is Postponed

The opening outdoor boxing show at Mills stadium, which featured Jackie Fields, former world's welterweight champion, and scheduled for Thursday night, was postponed yesterday. According to Promoter Jim Mullen, the show probably will be held June 8.

GEM MICROMATIC RAZOR AND BLADES $1.00

BY FRENCH LANE.

Jockey C. E. Allen probably will object to being called an old timer.

But I'm going to refer to him in those terms and strengthen the statement a bit by saying there isn't an old timer among the jockeys in America that can outride him when he is in form.

An old timer in the jockey ranks can include any rider who has served his apprenticeship. Allen isn't an old timer in years, for he has just turned 22, but it was several seasons ago that he left the apprentice ranks. He has been in enough turf turmoil since then to make a lot of people think he is old enough to be growing long, gray whiskers. One of those turmoils got him a suspension of a year. Others had him on the ground for various periods.

Allen Not to Blame.

In a lot of his trouble—maybe all of it—I don't believe Allen was to blame. Eager to force his way to the front, he took any and all mounts that were available. Just to be frank, I think the trainers and owners of some of the horses on which he was beaten and for which the wrath of the crowds descended on to his small shoulders, were more to blame than Allen. In other words, he was in the saddle on some horses that were "cold."

But this piece isn't to deal with those affairs. It is just to tell you that Allen is in form, that he is riding better than any jockey that has come to Chicago this season, and that McAtee, Fator, Garner and the other stars in New York haven't anything on this boy when he is in form.

When Allen won on Tack early in the Washington Park season he did a job of riding that would be a credit to Sloan, Archer, Sande or any of the other great knights of the pigskin of the past. He rated the pace perfectly, and he seemed to know just when to whip one after another of the horses which came up to challenge. He was out from the rail far enough to make it difficult for any horse to race past him on the outside. He wasn't out so far that anybody could have come through next to the rail. He didn't foul anybody, but he wasn't taking any of the worst of it. Then came another good ride on Silver Lake.

Should Wind Up as Star.

Yes, sir, Allen is in form and if he isn't too ambitious and doesn't want to ride in too many races he's going to wind up the year one of the saddle stars of America.

I'm sure Allen was in earnest yesterday morning at Washington Park after he had finished galloping a half dozen horses when he said, "I'll show 'em this year that the bad races I've been charged with were not my fault." Even at 22 Allen is not making any loose talk at this stage of his career. He doesn't have to.

Cousin Jo, the sensational winner of the Kentucky Oaks and proclaimed by many the best filly that has come along since the days of Rose of Sharon, will not get a chance to race before she fills her engagement in the Illinois Oaks next Saturday.

Numerous attempts have been made to fill a race which would include Cousin Jo, but everybody with a horse eligible dodged the issue.

Cousin Jo is bred on the lines of a great many worthwhile racing tools. She has the Domino line above and the Bonnie Scotland line below. Sired by Stimulus, who was by Ultimus. Cousin Jo increases her blood on top through the dam of Stimulus, Hurakan, who was by Uncle.

Cousin Jo is royally bred on her mother's side. Her dam, Gentle Julia, was by Ballot out of Nell Wilder which was by Broomstick. This is a cross of imported Voter and Broomstick, and turfmen say it is par-

DUFFY FLORALS BEAT HOUSE OF DAVID NINE, 2-1

Alexander Pitches First Three Innings.

Scoring two runs in the ninth inning, the Duffy Florals of the Chicago Semi-pro league yesterday defeated the House of David baseball team at Shewbridge field. Muggies' single with the bases filled gave the Florals a 2 to 1 victory.

Grover Alexander hurled the first three innings for the House of David.

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland, May 31.—The golfing hangover which has been afflicting Great Britain this summer will go into its last headache tomorrow. Bobby Jones has gone and his two titles are bound to fall into other hands. A week ago his amateur crown was claimed by an unknown an this week 214 amateurs and professionals will strive to win the British open.

Thirteen Yanks have gathered at this ancient golfing capital a few miles north of St. Andrews in hope of turning the trick.

Farrell, Sarazen in Field.

Among them are Johnny Farrell, United States open champion of 1928; Gene Sarazen, who took the same championship at Skokie in 1922; William Hunter, former British amateur champion, and MacDonald Smith. Smith has been here for the last two months, playing daily.

The other challengers among the professionals are Joe Turnesa of New York, Horton Smith of New York, Tony Manero of New Jersey, Tommy Armour, Joe Kirkwood, a resident of Chicago, and Arthur Straub.

There is not much hope among the amateurs. The Americans entered are Johnnie de Paolo of California, Tom Maguire and Joshua Crane.

Play Two Courses.

The members of the British Ryder cup team are here as well as the outlaw, Henry Cotton, who won the Southport tournament two weeks ago. José Juardo and Tomas Genta, leading Argentine players, with their compatriots, Hector Freccero and Marcos Churio, are also entered.

The field will play two qualifying rounds at Carnoustie and Panmure courses tomorrow and Tuesday. The first hundred will go on to the championship in the next eliminations, which end Thursday. The final will be played on Friday.

Doeg Defeats Bell for Second Title in Row

Hunters Urged to Lower Illinois Crow Population

BY BOB BECKER.

Help us exterminate some of the excess crow population in Illinois, is the request which the Illinois department of conservation has been sending out recently as it urges groups of sportsmen to stage county crow shots during the next few weeks. The success of the recent Kendall county hunt, which accounted for hundreds of the big black birds and their nests, is used by the department as an example of what groups of sportsmen can do to deal the crow population a blow and at the same time help the quail and pheasants, because crows are confirmed egg eaters and nest destroyers.

Kendall county turns out a large crowd of hunters every May for their crow round up. Many farmers are included in the groups which sweep through the county in search of crows. Teams are formed and the losing one buys a dinner for the team which scores the most points by their shooting of horned owls, crows, destruction of crow nests, etc.

In a state which does not have a regularly constituted department of vermin control this county hunt system undoubtedly is one of the most effective methods of wiping out some of the excess crow population. When we talked with Ralph Bradford, director of the Illinois department of conservation, a few days ago he told us that his department was ready to assist any county in the setting up plans for a crow hunt. All that is needed in any locality is a group of sportsmen or farmers to start the ball rolling. One organization meeting to divide the hunters into teams and to allocate certain teams to districts so that the favorite haunts of the crows are combed usually will get the machinery of the hunt under way.

Probably the best organized campaign against crows [and magpies] are now being conducted in the Canadian provinces. Up there the crow population has been increasing by leaps and bounds and is now annually destroying the nests and young of thousands of waterfowl. Conservation authorities stepped in with a comprehensive drive against these birds and offered rewards to people if they will exterminate them.

Farmers or sportsmen groups in Illinois that want to give the nesting game birds a lift by destroying the crows can get information on possible plans for a county-wide hunt by addressing a letter to the department of conservation at Springfield.

ISO-VIS TEST CAR COMES HERE FOR YOU TO SEE

AAA REPORT
certifies to excellent lubrication by New Iso-Vis in Ford

1 Iso-Vis Motor Oil did not thin out from dilution.
2 During the entire test of 9,000 miles, all parts of engine and chassis were lubricated effectively.
3 Consumption: Iso-Vis 50 (Heavy) in 1,000 mile test at 30 m. p. h.—less than 1 qt. At higher speeds, all oils showed greatly increased consumption.
4 Carbon: only 6.7 grams per cylinder at 30 miles per hour, using Iso-Vis 50 (Heavy).
5 Cylinder Wear: too slight to measure.
6 Red Crown Ethyl Gasoline used—did not knock.

WHAT a hectic life this car is leading. Why, in a little more than 3 weeks on the Indianapolis Speedway, it ran through more than a year's average mileage. But its sturdy engine keeps humming along as sweet as you please. And that speaks mighty well for the motor oil in it—New Iso-Vis.

This Ford is gathering more data on the road after being used in the 13-car lubrication study conducted by the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association. See this car at your Ford dealer today.

Read the A. A. A. report on New Iso-Vis. That's the kind of lubrication your car deserves. Change your oil this week and put in New Iso-Vis—the only motor oil that will not thin out from dilution.

STOCK AVERAGE IS STILL AHEAD OF THAT OF 1926

Study Helps Dispel Pessimism.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 31.—The outstanding part of last week's financial picture was the continuous lowering of prices on the stock exchange.

It differed from the declining markets of last autumn in presenting less evidence of a concerted "bear campaign" on the larger scale, or of selling that was necessitated by financial difficulties of the sellers. These influences are always present to some degree in a prolonged decline of stocks occurring in times of trade depression; but the pressure on the present occasion seemed to originate mostly with holders of stocks who had fallen into a mental state of outright pessimism over the financial future.

For this attitude the decrease of 30 per cent or thereabouts in company earnings as compared with recent happier times, the numerous reductions in company dividends, and the absence of any general recovery, either in trade activity or in staple prices, are perhaps sufficient explanation. But the stock market's action nevertheless deserves closer examination. For one thing watchers of the market are likely on such occasions to forget that for every 2,000,000 shares or thereabouts sold on a declining market 2,000,000 shares were bought by somebody, and that the buying certainly did not proceed exclusively from "covering" by bear operators. It is also reasonable, in considering present stock exchange prices, to make comparisons with other periods than the years of abnormally inflated values.

Comparison of Averages.

Most of us, when commodity prices were being drastically readjusted during 1921, made the mistake of measuring current values by the highest of 1920, forgetting the extent to which they overtopped those of not very distant normal times. How this applies to stock exchange quotations may be judged from a simple comparison of the "averages." Last week's low figure, which which was the lowest reached in the year and a half of reaction, represented as compared with the highest of 1929 an aggregate decline of 61⅛ per cent. When comparison is made, however, with the years before Wall street's wild speculation distorted all ideas of intrinsic values, results are curiously different.

Last week's average, it is true, was the lowest reached at any time since June, 1926. But 1926 was a prosperous year and so was 1925; yet the averages in those two years were carried respectively 8 and 15 per cent below last week's lowest. Not only so, but the recent low average is very substantially above the highest reached at any time in the period from 1914 to 1924, inclusive, a period which covers the episode then known as the war time industrial inflation and the spectacular rise of the "war stocks."

Meaning of Readjustment.

No doubt, this is cold comfort for investors or speculators who bought stocks in 1929. But it has some bearing on the question, just what the present readjustment means. Whether stock exchange prices are at a given moment above or below intrinsic values and if so, then how much, is often a question of great difficulty. We know by experience that the psychology of over-confidence in 1929 is certain to carry them above such a level, and that the natural tendency of exaggerated despondency is to carry them below it. The markets of today and the state of mind which animates them, have been made the subject of many historical contrasts and comparisons, but one has been overlooked.

Plan Merger of Foote Gear, Dodge Corp.

Plans were disclosed last night for the consolidation of Foote Brothers Gear and Machine company and the Dodge Manufacturing corporation into a $16,000,000 Dodge-Foote corporation that would represent the largest unit in the world engaged in the manufacture of machinery for the mechanical transmission of power.

Consolidation would be effected through the exchange of stock and the assumption of liabilities of both companies, requiring no public financing, according to a letter to stockholders outlining the plan. Incident to the merger, a funding arrangement would be concluded for the Foote Brothers obligation to banks totaling some $800,000, it was also disclosed.

Plans Are Approved.

Directors of both corporations have approved the plan and stockholders are asked to subscribe to it by depositing their shares with designated committees.

Dodge Manufacturing corporation is the largest manufacturer in the country of mechanical power transmission machinery, with plants in Mishawaka, Ind., and Oneida, N. Y. Foote Brothers Gear and Machine company is an important agency in the manufacture of gears and speed reduction units with its main plants in Chicago. Their activities supplement rather than duplicate each other, it was pointed out in outlining the advantages of consolidated operations.

May Move Plant.

It is planned to transfer the gear manufacturing business of Foote Brothers to the Mishawaka plant of Dodge where it can be accommodated by present facilities, thereby effecting factory economies. Further economies are anticipated in administrative expenses and in sales costs.

Among the directors of the corporation are F. N. Bard, as chairman of the board, also chairman General Water Treatment company; G. C. Miller, present president of Dodge Manufacturing corporation, who will be president of the new corporation; James C. Cox, vice president and treasurer, William Wrigley Jr. company; J. L. Kimbrough, president of Indiana Bridge company; J. F. Griswold, present president of Foote Brothers Gear and Machine company; Ralph M. Shaw of Winston, Strawn & Shaw, attorneys; E. W. Thomas, vice president of A. C. Allyn & Co., and Temple Williams, secretary and treasurer of the new company.

NO CUTS IN PAY, COLUMBIA MOVIE HEADS ANNOUNCE

"In spite of the general slashing of wages taking place in the motion picture industry, Columbia Pictures corporation will not cut the salaries of its employés," was the statement made by Joe Brandt, president of Columbia Pictures corporation, and Jack Cohn, treasurer, in addresses at the third annual convention of that organization, which opened yesterday morning at the Congress hotel.

The convention, which is to last three days, is being attended by 175 district managers, branch managers, and salesmen, all of whom are located in the middle west and southern territories.

"Economies other than that of cutting employés' salaries can and should be effected in this business," said Mr. Brandt. "More money can be saved in careful production activities at the studios than in the minor sums deducted from the pay envelopes of the men and women out in the field. Our organization has always watched studio expenditures carefully. In addition to this, our business has managed to keep on an even keel. I therefore merely voice the sentiments of my associates when I say that in return for the efforts of our employés during the season that has just drawn to a close, Columbia Pictures corporation will make no salary cuts. If anything, we are looking forward to increasing salaries should the present progress of Columbia be maintained."

Ten Years Ago in Finance

In view of present day happenings in the financial world it is interesting to look back ten years to 1921 when a somewhat similar depression prevailed. Herewith are a few items culled from The Tribune files:

Central Leather and Remington Typewriter discontinue their dividends on preferred shares and there are intimations that several other large industrial and railroad companies will omit or reduce dividends in the next two months.

Trading in Union Carbide and Carbon shares almost monopolized business on the Chicago Stock Exchange. Continued heavy selling, in anticipation of reductions of the $6 dividend rate, drove the price down to 46, from which it rallied to close at 48½.

United States Steel sold at 82⅛ and American Can at 28½. Peoples Gas sold at 51¼.

A bondholders' protective committee has been formed as a result of the May 1 interest default on the ten year 6 per cent gold bonds of Federal Sugar Refining company. Deposit of the securities with Chase National Bank of New York is requested by the committee.

COMMERCE DEPT. NOTES BUSINESS GAIN FOR APRIL

Washington, D. C., May 31.—The commerce department reported today that business conditions generally showed continued and in some instances marked improvement during April. Greater than seasonal improvement was shown by manufacturers of food products, automobiles, leather and shoe products, cement and tobacco, but iron and steel and nonferrous metal products manufactures were smaller than in March.

"April was the third consecutive month," the department said, "in which the volume of business in the United States, after allowing for normal seasonal trends, showed further slight expansion from the low level established in January, while the seasonal decline occurring in early May has been slightly larger than usual."

"Industrial production, as measured by the federal reserve board's seasonally adjusted index, registered another increase in April, and in that month was 9 per cent above the December level. Output of manufacturers was larger than in March.

"The index of mineral output, adjusted for seasonal changes, increased nearly 5 per cent from the low level of the depression established in March.

"Building construction in April, as measured by contracts awarded, decreased 9 per cent from the preceding month instead of continuing the seasonal increase."

American Smelting and Refining.

Please give me information on American Smelting and Refining stock.—Miss K. B.

American Smelting and Refining company was incorporated in 1899. With its subsidiaries it constitutes the world's largest smelting and refining enterprise. It is also an important producer of metals. Extremely low prices for copper, zinc, silver, and lead, which necessitated heavy inventory writeoffs and caused a smaller profit margin, in addition to smaller volume, were responsible for a 43 per cent drop in profits from 1929 to 1930.

Net income for 1930 was $11,098,751, which was 3.17 times dividend requirements on 500,000 shares of 7 per cent preferred [par $100], 6.33 times dividend requirements on 200,000 shares of 6 per cent second preferred [par $100], and equal to $3.77 per share on 1,829,940 no par common shares.

A charge against earnings of $2,612,525 was made in 1930 to adjust inventories to market price. In addition $9,304,000 was deducted from reserves to adjust inventories. Had the latter been charged against earnings, net income for 1930 would have been $1,794,661. Deficit, after all charges, for 1930 was $6,740,550.

Companies engaged in the mining industry enjoyed comparative prosperity in 1929. American Smelting and Refining company was no exception. Net income was $21,831,583, or $10.02 per common share. Previous to 1930 earnings had shown a steady upward trend since 1921 with the exception of a slight decline in 1927.

Due to the policy from 1924 to 1929 of reinvesting a large part of its earnings in the company, working capital has shown a steady increase.

On Dec. 31, 1930, current assets were $84,675,026, and current liabilities were $14,765,640. Cash and United States government securities alone were $24,932,506. Working capital was $69,909,386, against $68,562,913 on Dec. 31, 1929.

On April 8, 1931, Francis Brownell, chairman of the board, was quoted as stating that earnings so far in 1931 were slightly more than preferred dividend requirements. He stated that dividends could probably be paid for two years without seriously affecting working capital, but earnings would be considered in declaring future dividends.

Dividends on the common have been paid at an annual $4 rate since Feb. 1, 1929.

NEW EPOCH IN WHEAT TRADING BEGINS TODAY

Change for Better Is Expected.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A new epoch in wheat trading starts today. The government is out of the futures market and, so far as is known, has no intention of reëntering.

The market has had a dismal experience during the last year, and trade leaders look forward to a change for the better, not only in the wheat trade, but in general business situation. Everything bearish has been known for months and the belief is that its influence has been discounted.

Close observers express the opinion that should anything happen to the southwest winter wheat crop and the American and Canadian northwest spring wheat crop, new buying will come into the market in volume and an advance of 10@15 cents. Should it be maintained for a while, it would restore confidence in general business and start the country on the upgrade.

Looks to Future.

"With the assurance from the farm board that they will not participate in handling of the 1931 wheat crop, and will not dump their holdings of cash wheat, regardless of price, the grain trade is looking to the future with more confidence and expects that political interference will subside, with the result that there will be more interest in the grain market," says J. F. Jackson of Faroll Brothers. "Commodity prices preceded the security decline and they should lead in the inevitable return of confidence and price enhancement. With pessimism at a premium, it is well to look backward two years, when optimism knew no limit. It is difficult, however, to become enthusiastically bullish on wheat for a material advance when confronted with a world's abundance of old wheat and a new crop in the making. The development of the latter is now one of the sustaining influences at the 60 cent level."

Fred Uhlmann, who is in close touch with all markets of the world, expresses the opinion that Liverpool July wheat, in closing Friday at 62¾c, makes it impossible to sell much old or new wheat either from Canada or the United States." This is one of the reasons why, in spite of the fact that the trade is very nervous over the continued drought in Canada, markets show no advancing tendency," says Mr. Uhlmann. They would decline but for the fear that a crop disaster in Canada might change the whole situation and keep shorts from pressing the market."

Winter Wheat Harvest.

Cutting of winter wheat has started in Texas, and it is expected that machines will begin cutting in southern Oklahoma this week. The southwest as a whole has the promise of one of the largest, if not the largest, wheat crops in its history. In the northwest the situation is the reverse of that in the southwest. Favorable weather with plenty of moisture there would make a big crop. If general relief does not come within the next few weeks there is likely to be a short crop of spring wheat. A wet harvest in the southwest would also change the situation there.

Farm board representatives say there will be plenty of storage room for the new winter wheat when it begins to move in volume, which will be in about 30 days. There is 41,000,000 bushels more storage at 14 of the leading markets than a year ago. Railroads have around 65,000 box cars immediately available in the southwest for moving the new crop. Should there be no exports in volume from the gulf or the Atlantic seaboard in the next 60 days we might easily run into a congested situation, as these would not be unloaded promptly after a month's movement.

FOX FILM 1930 NET EARNINGS $9,469,000 OR $3.64 A SHARE

New York, May 31.—(AP)—Delayed by differences over auditing policies, the 1930 annual report of the $300,000,000 Fox Film corporation, made public today, shows its net income available for dividends amounted to $9,469,000.

This was equal to $3.64 a share on 2,525,680 shares of A and B stock outstanding at the close of the year. The 1929 earnings were equal to $10.28 a share on a much smaller capitalization. During 1930 1,600,000 new shares were issued.

The publication of the report has been delayed for several weeks by differences between the accountants employed by the management and accountants employed by the banking group which underwrote new financing for the company in April. The above figures are based upon the audit made by the regular auditors for the company. The report also explains, however, that a different method of amortizing sound film used by the accountants for the bankers would have resulted in an additional writeoff of $894,261, and consequent reduction of net profit. This, however, the report says, would merely result in a decrease by the same amount in future amortization of sound films.

The company had total income for the year ended Dec. 27 of $102,004,009, compared to $83,184,112 in the preceding year. Net operating profit amounted to $10,251,827, from which was deducted $1,046,392 of nonoperating expenses. Current assets at the end of 1930 amounted to $33,005,677, of which $5,038,943 was in cash. Current liabilities were $18,211,560.

The delay in completing the annual report has forced several delays in the date of the annual meeting, which now is expected to be held in June. It has also led to an investigation by the stock exchange. Several new directors are slated for election at the meeting, including Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the Chase National bank.

The notes will be priced at par.

Furniture Buyers Arrive for Semi-Annual Mart

Chicago's summer convention season, which hits its stride around June 1, is in full swing today with thousands of furniture men from all parts of the country in the city for the opening of the semi-annual national furniture mart and style show at the American Furniture Mart, 666 Lake Shore drive.

The furniture exhibition, largest trade show of its kind in the world, continues until June 13. During the two weeks between 10,000 and 15,000 visitors will attend the Furniture Mart, including buyers from retail furniture and department stores, manufacturers and their salesmen.

Special from South.

One of the largest single delegations arrived last night when a special train from the south brought manufacturers from North Carolina and Virginia, two important furniture states.

During the second week of the furniture show, additional thousands of retailers will be brought to Chicago by the radio trade show, which opens June 8. The two are closely allied, since furniture stores are an important outlet for radio sales, and the fact that the two are being held simultaneously in Chicago this June is expected to benefit both.

Approximately 7,700 passes to the Furniture Mart have been requested by buyers for furniture stores, officials of the building announced, while exhibitors and their staffs required additional thousands. More than 700 manufacturers participate in the mart showings, their factories being located in about 250 cities in 30 states.

Merchandising Clinic.

A feature of the convention at the Furniture Mart will be a series of merchandising clinics, sponsored by the Furniture Club of America, at which model rooms will be constructed and suggestions offered by leading merchandisers on how the furniture shown should be sold. The clinics are part of an organized effort on the part of the furniture industry to improve its methods in its competition with other industries for a share of the consumer's dollar.

William H. Wilson, vice president of the Furniture Mart, announced last night that the work of arranging the 16 floors of furniture exhibits had been completed and that everything was in readiness for the buyers today. Included in the displays are all types of home furnishings, including stoves, refrigerators, lamps, kitchen equipment, chinaware, etc., as well as the staple lines of furniture.

State, Municipal Issues Will Total $51,171,316

New York, May 31.—(AP)—New state and municipal financing scheduled for this week totals $51,171,316, compared with $24,522,913 last week and a weekly average of $39,392,405 for the year to date, the Bond Buyer reports. Los Angeles county, Cal., school districts will consider bids Monday for a block of $2,000,000 bonds, and the State of Wyoming will receive bids Tuesday for $2,300,000 in bonds.

Baltimore and Ohio Lays Off 2,000 Shop Workers

Baltimore, Md., May 31.—(AP)—Approximately 2,000 shop workers of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad were laid off indefinitely today, in an order effective tomorrow. The slash was ordered by Charles W. Galloway, vice president in charge of operation. The layoff will be felt in every shop along the 6,000 miles of the Baltimore and Ohio lines, Galloway said, with the employés who will be retained to work on part time only.

(NEW YORK CITY)

3% One-Year Gold Notes

To be dated as of June 16, 1931 — To mature June 15, 1932

Interest (December 15 and June 15) and principal payable at the office or agency of the Corporation in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York. Callable, in whole or in part, at any time at 100 and accrued interest on 30 days' prior published notice. Coupon Notes in denominations of $1,000 and authorized multiples thereof, registerable as to principal, and fully registered Notes in denominations of $1,000 and authorized multiples.

The Staten Island Edison Corporation, an operating property of the Associated Gas & Electric System, does the entire electric light and power business in the Borough of Richmond (Staten Island), New York City. Electricity is furnished to over 41,000 consumers in all parts of Staten Island. The total population served is estimated at 158,000. Gross earnings, including other income, for the twelve months ended April 30th, 1931, were $4,000,332 and net earnings before interest, depreciation, dividends, etc. were $2,208,448, as compared with annual interest requirements of $266,120 on the Corporation's total funded debt, including this Issue. Such net earnings were before and after depreciation, respectively, 8.29 times and 7.15 times the above annual interest charges. 96.5% of the gross earnings for the period were derived from sales of electricity.

Notes are offered when, as and if issued, and received by us, subject to the approval of Messrs. Travis, Paxson, Wallace & Phillbin of New York, who will pass upon all legalities in connection with this Issue. Delivery will be made in the form of definitive Notes on or about June 16th, 1931.

BONDS BOUNCE AROUND TO SELL AT LOWER PRICES

Bank Finds Canny Buyers Picking Up Bargains.

New York, May 31.—(AP)—The bond market went through a series of gyrations last week which reached their conclusion in a number of new low prices in various groups in the last two days of that period.

The preference of investors for high grade issues continued and some of this group even gained moderately. The late losses in the more speculative bonds no doubt were caused to some extent by the weakness in stocks on Friday and possibly the week-end holiday induced some selling by timid holders.

A pungent comment on present bond market conditions is printed in the current review of business of the National City bank.

Sees Bargain Prices.

It says: "Unquestionably there has been a good deal of hysteria in connection with the bond market and there is evidence that a good many investors are sacrificing their securities needlessly, with results which are unfortunate not only to bondholders themselves but to business which is dependent upon the bond market as an aid to recovery.

"Although it is true that the severity of the world depression has increased the number of bonds which have been obliged to default or about which some question may be raised, this is no justification for indiscriminate liquidaton. While panicky investors are throwing their holdings overboard other and more astute buyers are taking the opportunity to pick up many sound issues at what in the long run will undoubtedly prove to be bargain prices."

The effect of the holiday was apparent also in the new securities offered. The bulk of the issues publicly offered were floated on the first four days of the week.

The aggregate of such flotations was $106,279,000, compared with $93,235,000 for the previous week.

Selective Buying.

Further evidence of the preference for high grade bonds appeared on Wednesday when the $60,000,000 issue of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York was sold at wholesale within a few minutes after the subscription books were opened.

Since the federal reserve bank of New York reduced its rediscount rate on May 8 to the lowest level on record at 1½ per cent, which was followed by reductions in other federal reserve banks, the bond market has experienced further selective buying, concentrated in the high grade issues.

SHARP DECLINE IN MONEY RATES BRINGS NEW LOWS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 31.—The principal occurrence of the last month in the money market has been a continuation of the decline in money rates which started late in April, says the June 1 review of credit and business published today by the federal reserve bank of New York.

"The decline was led by acceptance rates which reached the lowest levels since the bill market was established in this country, and carried all of the other principal rates in the New York money market, except call loan rates, to new low levels for many years," the review continues.

"Other developments affecting money rates were the reduction of interest rates on deposits by banks and the cut in the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve bank of New York, followed by other banks of the reserve system.

"The decline in market rates for acceptances accompanied successive reductions in the buying rates of the Federal Reserve bank of New York," the review continues. "During the early months of this year reserve bank bill holdings declined with unusual rapidity, and the small volume in February and March was much smaller than in previous year."

The review reveals that during the month there was a decrease of $3,000,000 in gold held under earmark for foreign account at the Boston reserve banks, which was partly offset by a special export of $600,000 of gold to Mexico. The net gain to the gold stocks of the country during the first five months of the year is estimated at about $202,000,000 as against $233,000,000 in the period of January to May in 1930. A gain of approximately $69,000,000 occurred in May.

Manitoba Pool Approves Open Market Selling

WINNIPEG, Man., May 31.—(AP)—Open market selling of wheat and coarse grains has been approved by the Manitoba wheat pool, R. M. Mahoney, general manager, announced tonight.

He said the optional system, whereby members who wish to do so will be able to collect the full spot price on delivery to pool elevators, will go into effect in Manitoba tomorrow.

Here is the ANSWER to questions which bother many investors
